PRESIDENT WIRES SPENCER HIS STATEMENT IS FALSE

CLEVELAND BEATS BROOKLYN IN FIRST GAME OF SERIES, 3-1

Coveleskie Hurls Brilliantly for American League Team While Marquard Is Pounded for 3 Runs.

By E. L. Mockler,
Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

EBBETS FIELD, Oct. 5.—Cleveland got first blood in the 1920 series by a 3-to-1 score, in a game that, on the whole, was rather featureless. It was common, everyday baseball from start to finish. Speaker was right when he declared in advance his confidence was based on Cleveland's greater prowess with the bat.

While they only gathered five hits off the trio of pitchers Robinson sent against them, these safeties were convincing and timely, and there was more will and power in their outfield drives.

In fielding, too, the Indians had a little more snap and vim. Speaker played almost like a ball team in himself. He was all over the outfield.

Just the same, the big break of the game came to the Indians. This was in the second inning when Koney lost Burns' high pop fly in the sun and let it fall safe between his extended arms. Burns, thinking a catch sure, was just trotting to second.

Koney made a quick recovery and threw and had there been anyone to get the ball Burns would have been out. But there wasn't, and the ball went to the left field. Burns went all the way around.

The Indians had the jump and they made the most of it. Marquard's nerve, dependable ordinarily, faltered a bit and before the Robins were settled again the game was gone.

Here is a summary showing how the runs were scored in the first title game:

CLEVELAND, second inning—Burns sent up a high fly which fell safe behind Konetchy. Konetchy then threw the ball to left field, Burns scoring. Gardner was retired and Wood walked. Sewell singled, putting Wood on third. O'Neill doubled, scoring Wood.

CLEVELAND, fourth inning—With one out, Wood doubled to left center. O'Neill again doubled, scoring Wood.

BROOKLYN, seventh inning—Wheat doubled to right, went to third on Myers' infield out and scored while Konetchy was being retired on a grounder to Burns.

Attendance figures showed that 23,365 persons attended today's world's series game, the gate receipts for which were $79,609, exclusive of war tax. This was announced by Charles H. Ebbets Jr., secretary of the Brooklyn club.

Bright skies and a western breeze with snap enough to it to keep the big flag in deep center stretched out with scarcely a wrinkle in its silken surface greeted the Indians and Brooklyns.

Despite the chill in the air, the elements seemed somewhat more enthusiastic over the business in hand than the fans. At 1:20 o'clock, half an hour before game time, the grand stand seats all reported sold and with the spectators said to be mourning because they could not get more tickets to profiteer on, were not half filled.

The bleachers were packed and in the draw for position had the better of their wealthier neighbors, for they were in the full glare of the sun, while the grand stand crowd shivered and shook like the well-known Nanki-Pooh as he gave the sign.

The Brooklyns had the shady side dugout and did their warming up where it was mostly needed. The Indians had but a step or two take to get the position in pursuit of which the Kaiser wrecked Germany and they all took it. Both teams had their full force out and there were almost as many players prancing around as there were photographers.

Just Like Tom Cahill.

At 1:30 a section of the police band, drum major and all, and a detachment of firemen came in through the field exit escorting Mayor Hylan. His Honor waived his hands to the grand stand crowd with the same grace of gesture that marked Tom Cahill in those football pictures sent home from Sweden. The band tried to wake up the crowd with "Hail, Hail, the Gang's All Here," even if most of them hadn't arrived yet.

When, at 1:35, the Brooklyns went out for fielding practice the crowd showed its best effort in the "Hip! Hip!" while Mayor Hylan came over and posed playing hands with Tris Speaker for a "welcome to our city" picture.

At 1:48 the "orchestra floor" of the stand was perhaps 65 per cent filled, the balance tier was about 40 per cent.

Marquard Appeared Cool.

The roaring began as the boy with the big horn announced the lineup so none of it was heard. It grew louder when Evans, first up in the opening round, fouled one, and then reached a climax when he was thrown out at first.

One thing that seemed to please the fans was the coolness with which Marquard tackled his job and the splendid control he showed when Speaker was called out on a called third strike, which split the plate. The crowd went dizzy.

Coveleskie didn't seem a bit worried by the magnitude of his task either.

The sun played Brooklyn a mean trick when it got in Konetchy's eyes and Wood's pop fly dropped between his hands.

Burns had rounded first, when Koney threw in the direction of second, the ball rolled away to the bleachers and Burns had reached

BALL AT COLISEUM AFTER THE PARADE

22 Floats Are on General Theme of Flowers and Fruits—Special Train and Car Service.

Out-of-town visitors for the Veiled Prophet's parade tonight arrived in large numbers during the day at Union Station and interurban stations.

The parade is to start west from Twenty-second and Market streets at 6:45, and will traverse its route until the Prophet and his retinue enter the Coliseum at 10, for the Veiled Prophet's ball.

Guests at the ball are expected to gather from the time when the doors open, at 8 o'clock. A program of exhibition dancing, beginning about 9:15, will precede the arrival of the Veiled Prophet and his court.

Guests are admitted to the ball by invitation, and it has been announced that the rule against transference of invitations will be enforced strictly. In cases where persons present tickets bearing names known to be other than their own, they will be excluded, it is stated, and the persons to whom the tickets were issued will not receive invitations in future years.

Tickets for the upper gallery have been distributed. All persons on the main floor and in the balcony must be in evening dress, but this rule does not prevail in the gallery.

Subjects of Floats in Parade.

The 22 floats which will compose the parade are on the general theme of flowers, fruits and plants. The subjects of the floats are:

1. The Veiled Prophet, on a rose Throne.
2. Title float, Flowers, Fruits and Plants.
3. Flowers of Parnassus.

Members of the Veiled Prophet's retinue will be on each float. All are masked, and all are men, though some take feminine parts. While they are in artistically designed scenes, these performers do not usually stand on their artistic dignity, but condescend to make merry with the crowd.

SENTENCES OF 94 I. W. W., INCLUDING HAYWOOD, UPHELD

Circuit Court of Appeals Approves Convictions for Obstructing Draft Law During War.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Oct. 5.—The United States Circuit Court of Appeals handed down a decision today upholding the conviction of William D. Haywood and 93 other I. W. W., who were found guilty and sentenced to Leavenworth prison for obstructing the draft law during the war.

Two counts were thrown out by the Appellate Court, but in all others the decision of the lower court was affirmed.

Haywood, former general secretary of the I. W. W., and most of the other defendants have been at liberty under bond for more than a year, pending hearing of their appeal.

Haywood and 14 other defendants were sentenced to 20 years in prison by Judge K. M. Landis, and in addition the defendants were fined sums ranging from $20,000 to $35,000.

Of 166 tried, 97 were found guilty and all but three appealed. Some of those who failed to obtain their liberty on bonds, have served out their sentences and have been released.

Four Charges in Indictments.

The 166 were indicted on four conspiracy counts—conspiracy to forcibly prevent execution of certain Federal laws, to intimidate citizens from exercising certain rights, to induce male citizens to resist registration for military service, and to cause disloyalty and refusal of duty in the military and naval service. The last charge was brought under the espionage act.

The appeal was brought on two general grounds—that documents seized by the Government on search warrants Sept. 5, 1917, were erroneously admitted in evidence, and that the documents were not shown to belong to the defendants.

Haywood was looked upon as the leader of the I. W. W. He was general secretary and a member of the Executive Board of six, four of whom were convicted. William Virtola, the fifth, was indicted but never arrested, and sixth place was made vacant by the lynching of Frank Little at Butte, Mont., by a mob.

Incidents After Trial.

The 166 defendants were arrested in Washington, California, Arizona, Utah, Pennsylvania, Kansas, Michigan, Minnesota, Illinois, New York and other states.

The trial was followed by several sensational incidents, including the explosion of a bomb in the Federal Building, killing several people, and the receipt of bombs through the mails by Judge Landis and Assistant Attorney-General Frank H. Nebeker, a special prosecutor in the case.

Otto Christensen, attorney for the defendants, announced he would ask for a rehearing.

LEFT-HAND TURNS TO BE BARRED

Rule to Be Applied at Eighteenth and Washington.

Left-hand turns of all vehicles will be abolished at 7 a. m. tomorrow at Eighteenth street and Washington avenue. An exception will be that westbound Park and Compton street cars will continue to make a left turn there. The scheme is the same as that in use at Grand avenue and Lindell boulevard and at Grand avenue and Olive street. Abolition of left-hand turns at other downtown corners is being considered.

The rule will apply throughout the 24 hours of the day at such corners.

PHYSICIAN HELD ON INDICTMENT IN SALE OF OIL STOCK

Dr. John G. Massie of Belleville Arrested on Charge of "Feloniously" Obtaining $15,600 From 7 Persons.

HE WAS PRESIDENT OF OKLAHOMA FIRM

Town Visited by Stock Salesmen Last Winter—Foreclosure of Mortgage Ended Dividends.

Dr. John G. Massie, 44 years old, a Belleville physician, was arrested at 4:50 o'clock yesterday afternoon at his home on a capias issued by the St. Clair County grand jury, following his indictment on seven charges of working a confidence game. His bond was fixed at $5000 on each charge, or a total of $35,000.

The indictments grew out of the sale of oil stock, and allege that Dr. Massie "unlawfully and feloniously" obtained $15,600 from seven Belleville residents.

Dr. Massie is president of the Ilgahoma Petroleum and Gasoline Co., of Oklahoma, stock of which has been purchased by at least 40 persons in Belleville and vicinity. Stock salesmen visited Belleville last winter and interested a number of persons in the oil concern, mostly on the fact, it is said, that Dr. Massie was the president.

Dividends Discontinued.

Dividends of 1 and 2 per cent a month were paid on the stock until last spring, when it was announced that the Bank of Nowata County, Okla., had foreclosed a mortgage on the property on which the oil wells were located. Dividends were discontinued, and investigation by the investors and State's Attorney Schaumleffel resulted in the indictments.

The complaining witnesses and the amounts which they are said to have invested in the stock of the company are Erwin Seibert, $1000; Dr. William Bahrenburg, $5000; Clemens J. F. Fischer, $2100; George Ruebel Sr., $3000; Andrew C. Hoehner, $3000, and Oliver F. Eckert, $1500.

Although they are not listed among the complaining witnesses, State's Attorney Schaumleffel's father and brother, William Schaumleffel Sr. and Jr., each invested $2000 in the stock.

Other Indictments Expected.

The Ilgahoma Petroleum and Gasoline Co. is said to be a reorganization of the Ilgahoma Oil Co. The original company was capitalized at $75,000. The reorganized company was said to represent a capital investment of $1,500,000. Officials of the company, besides Dr. Massie, are: P. D. Todd, vice president; John M. Schipley, second vice president, and Herbert D. Todd, secretary-treasurer. The latter is said to be a relative of Dr. Massie.

It was reported about the courthouse at Belleville this morning that other indictments will be voted by the grand jury as a result of the investigation of the company's affairs.

Dr. Massie was seated on an iron bench in the corridor of the jail when a Post-Dispatch reporter asked for a statement. He said that on advice of counsel he had no statement to make at present.

STRIKERS TRYING TO KEEP WORKERS FROM RESTAURANTS

EMPLOYER JOINS PICKETS ON STREET

In Apron and Cook's Cap, He Engages in Good-Natured Colloquy With Waitresses in Front of Place.

Striking waiters, waitresses and cooks today extended their picket lines to the back doors of the 15 hotels, 42 restaurants and five clubs involved in the open shop controversy which last Friday resulted in the walkout of approximately 2200 union members. The purpose of the back door picketing was to dissuade applicants for work from taking the places of strikers.

James Scully, secretary and business agent of Waiters' Union, Local No. 20, and a member of the Local Joint Executive Board of the Hotel and Restaurant Employes' International Alliance, which is conducting the strike, stated that miscellaneous hotel and restaurant help had applied for affiliation with the striking unions. He mentioned bellboys, busboys, chambermaids, vegetable women and laundresses, who, he said, were desirous of being organized, and added that many applications for membership in auxiliary bodies had been received.

Employer in Cap and Apron.

Edward A. Benish, proprietor of the Benish grill room and cafeteria at Eighth and Olive streets, who also is president of the Associated Restaurant Owners, wearing the white coat and cap of a cook, appeared in front of his place of business at lunchtime yesterday and carried on a good-natured colloquy with three picketing waitresses.

"Don't patronize Benish's, he's unfair to organized labor," sang one of the girls as she passed her former employer.

"No, don't patronize Benish, replied the proprietor in loud tones. "He's got more business now than he can handle."

"Yes, you've got all your cousins and aunts and uncles down there," said the picket.

Exchanges With Pickets.

"There's no use going in there for food," shouted another picket. "The cooking is being done by pot-slingers and dishwashers."

"Is that so?" echoed Benish. "Just notice the satisfied looks on the faces of those who come out."

"If you're so busy, why don't you get in there and help?" one of the girls asked.

"I just wan to look you over," he replied, "and see who you are."

Members of the Women's Chamber of Commerce have volunteered to serve the luncheon tomorrow to the Men's Chamber of Commerce at Hotel Statler if conditions warrant. All luncheons at the Statler had been canceled, but with the aid of volunteer help the chamber luncheon will be served, it was said.

The women of St. Luke's Catholic Parish, Richmond Heights, because of the shortage of waiters, have volunteered to serve at their church the annual banquet of the Alumni Association of Kenrick Seminary tomorrow. The affair would have been held at the Missouri Athletic Association had it not been for the waiters' strike.

Spencer's Original Statement in Speech

"He (Spencer) quoted Wilson's statement to the Rumanians and Serbs, in which he said Wilson told them that if any nation ever invaded their territory he would send the American army across the seas to defend their boundary lines."

Spencer's Defense.

(From the Senator's public statement.)

"The official stenographic report thus quotes the President of the United States in speaking to the Rumanian delegates, who were present at the peace conference at Paris on that occasion. He said to them:

"'You must not forget that it is force which is the final guaranty of the public peace—if the world is again troubled—the guaranty given you means that the United States will send to this (the European side) of the ocean their army and their fleet.'"

KAUF AND TONEY TESTIFY TO MONEY OFFER TO THROW GAMES

Players Testify That Heinie Zimmerman Made Offer and Say They Refused to Take It.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Oct. 5.—Benny Kauf told the grand jurors this afternoon that he had received an offer from Heinie Zimmerman to throw a ball game, but refused to take the money. Fred Toney testified that he had been offered money by Zimmerman to help throw the same game, but had refused.

Today's inquiry turned on the National League, and particularly the cases of Hal Chase, Heinie Zimmerman and Lee Magee, who were dropped from the league last year.

President Stoneham of the New York Giants, Manager McGraw, Pitcher Toney, Outfielder Kauff, Capt. Larry Doyle and Edward L. Mackall, the team's trainer, were among the witnesses. Others to be heard today include Hughey Jennings of the Detroit Tigers and Gene Dubuc, a Toledo (American Association) pitcher, formerly with the Giants.

Dubuc, before going into the grand jury room, said he would testify that he received a telegram from Bill Burns, the veteran southpaw, last fall, telling him to bet on the Cincinnati Reds to win the 1919 world's series.

RETRENCHMENT IN AUTO INDUSTRY NOTICEABLE ABROAD

Rubber Importations Through London in September Fell to Less Than $18,000.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch.

LONDON, Oct. 5.—Retrenchment on the part of automobile manufacturers in America is regarded as responsible for the huge decrease in September of rubber importations through London. In the last nine months a total of more than $30,000,0000 worth was imported, but in September imports fell to less than $18,000.

In the same nine months precious stones, mostly diamonds, valued at more than $20,000,000 went to New York from London and more than $7,000,000 worth of art objects. During September, 27 thoroughbred horses valued at $243,000 were shipped to America for breeding purposes.

CONGRESSMEN LOOK FOR FLATS INSTEAD OF REPAIRING 'FENCES'

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5.—Representative Julius Kahn, Republican, of California, has undergone the experience of having his apartment sold almost from under him.

Immediately after the adjournment of Congress he went to his former home in California and while there received notice that the apartment he has occupied for a long time had been sold and that he would have to move out in October.

Nearly a score of members of the Senate and House have undergone similar experiences in Washington in the last month and have had to spend their vacations in Washington looking for a place to live during the sessions, instead of campaigning.

CONFIRMS TUMULTY'S PREVIOUS DENIAL

Telegram From White House Says, "I Requested Him to Issue Denial," and Adds, "I Reiterate the Denial. The Statement You Made Was False."

SECRETARY ALSO HAD WIRED TO SENATOR

Tumulty Told Him Files at Office Would Show Mr. Wilson's Written Direction to Say That Statement in Speech Was False.

By the Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 5.—The President went after Senator Spencer today without mincing words. In a telegram to Spencer, over his own signature, the President indicted the Senator on two accounts. He refuted Spencer's insinuation that Secretary Tumulty had falsely named the President as authority for a denial of one of Spencer's campaign statements, and he reiterated the denial itself. He said flatly that Spencer's statement that the President had promised military aid to the Rumanians and Serbs in the event of the invasion of their countries, was false.

The telegram to Spencer, sent from the White House this afternoon, is as follows:

"Senator Selden Palmer Spencer, St. Louis, Mo.:

"I have just been shown your statement that my secretary's denial of the previous statement by you that I had promised American military aid to Rumanians and Serbs was issued by him without my knowledge and sanction, and that you did not for a moment believe that I had made any such denial or that the matter was ever called to my attention. I wish to state that your statement was called to my attention by Mr. Tumulty, and that I requested him to issue the denial to which you refer.

"I reiterate the denial. The statement you made was false.

"WOODROW WILSON."

TUMULTY WIRED SPENCER HE WAS REFUTED BY RECORDS

Told Senator Files Showed President's Written Direction to Deny Statement.

By the Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5.—Joseph P. Tumulty, secretary to the President, has started an Ananias Club on his own account, electing Spencer of Missouri as a charter member. In a telegram sent to Spencer last night Tumulty hit back at the Senator for stating that he, Tumulty, had falsely given the President as authority for a denial of a statement by Spencer in a campaign speech.

The denial by Tumulty, made at the direction of the President, was exclusively published in the Post-Dispatch Saturday. It was given to the Post-Dispatch correspondent here in response to his request for comment by the President on a statement by Spencer that the President told a delegation of Rumanian and Serbs in Paris that "if any nation ever invaded their territory he would send the American army

PEOPLE STAND AT ARMORY TO HEAR F. D. ROOSEVELT

3000 Seats Not Enough for Audience of Democratic Nominee for Vice Presidency.

ENTHUSIASM FOR LEAGUE ARGUMENTS

Speaker Calls Harding a "Trimmer," Saying One Thing One Day and the Opposite Next Day.

Before an audience which filled the 3000 seats of the First Regiment Armory and overflowed into the space behind the seats and into the lobby, fully one-third of his hearers being women, Franklin D. Roosevelt, Democratic nominee for the vice presidency, last night made the first speech here by a candidate of either party on the presidential ticket and aroused great enthusiasm by his characterization of Harding as a "trimmer" and by his whole-souled advocacy of the League of Nations covenant.

Roosevelt, who is 38 years old, and the youngest of the major candidates, made a fine impression on the audience. Tall and "fine-looking," he early captured the interest of the newly enfranchised women in the gathering, and while not "Rooseveltian" in the sense of being an explosive orator, he made a telling speech without apparent effort and few gestures. His voice, while not strong, has a ringing quality which easily carried his words to all corners of the hall.

Calls Harding "Trimmer."

Early in his speech he announced that for the first time in his campaign he would introduce the word "trimmer" as applicable to Harding and his party advisers. The American people, he said, hate a man who says one thing and does another, but hate more a man who says one thing today and another thing tomorrow. Such a man, he said, is a "trimmer."

He aroused great enthusiasm at the start of his speech by saying "Not a human being on earth can persuade me that Missouri is going Republican." From all parts of the hall came cries of: "You're right" and "We know she won't."

Roosevelt quoted the commendation given to President Wilson by Gov. Coolidge of Massachusetts, Republican candidate for Vice President, when Wilson returned from Europe with the treaty and League of Nations covenant as an instance of the "trimming" which since then has characterized the change of attitude of Republican leaders.

Change in Republican Front.

He pictured the complacency with which Republicans in the Senate at first received the treaty and covenant, and their later change of front after, as he said, Will Hays, chairman of the Republican National Committee, had told them that if they allowed President Wilson to make a success of the treaty and League of Nations program it would mean Republican defeat at the polls in 1920. The Republican leaders, he said, then agreed that their only hope of party success would be to "cast the good of the nation overboard."

In the course of his speech Roosevelt said: "I will bet that the Post-Dispatch and the St. Louis Times will not print a word of my remarks about Harding."

From all parts of the hall came the cry: "You mean the Globe-Democrat." Roosevelt quickly made the suggested correction, showing that he had not meant to say that the Post-Dispatch would not fairly report his speech. "You get me," he said, smiling. "I mean the Globe-Democrat."

Criticism of Spencer.

He criticised Senator Spencer of Missouri and Gov. Morrow of Kentucky for saying that the League of Nations covenant would make it necessary to send American boys to fight in European wars, and said he and his party were willing to have it stated in the instrument of ratification of the peace treaty that American boys could never be sent abroad except by vote of Congress.

He evoked laughter by quoting some of Senator Harding's recent utterances, especially the one in which, three months after his nomination for President, Harding said: "I am at present without any specific constructive program on foreign affairs."

When he said that so far as the sentiment of the American people is concerned "we have already joined the League of Nations" the entire audience stood up and there was cheering for several minutes.

"It is a question that is above party," he said, "and thinking people everywhere are swinging into line for the League of Nations."

Mentions Graves in Europe.

Tears came to the eyes of many women in the gathering when Roosevelt told of the $1,800 graves of American soldiers "over there" and said: "Those boys died for something. They did not fight for a mere military victory. As a nation we know we were fighting for a greater stake than the defeat of the Germans. We hoped to put an end to all war for all time. We fought for some definite creative instrument which would make war, as a crime against civilization, impossible, and would make it unnecessary ever again to send 2,000,000 American boys across the water."

There were few interruptions of the speech, most of them being in the way of approving comment. One man with long gray whiskers, called out: "How about that Roosevelt family brand that they say you haven't got?"

Replies to Questions.

"My only reply to that," said Roosevelt, "is that I wear no man's collar." He further digressed to say: "I have heard that a silly young man is going about the country trying to make people believe the Republican party won the war."

As is known, the assertion that Franklin D. Roosevelt "does not have the brand of our family" was made recently by Lieutenant-Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, who is campaigning for the Republican ticket.

A young man in the audience asked why Democrats did not prevent the removal and imprisonment of a man who tried to question Harding at a meeting in Baltimore.

"They couldn't prevent it, because Baltimore has a Republican Mayor," replied Roosevelt. The same young man asked for an explanation of article 10 of the league covenant.

Roosevelt explained that action under the article would be called for only in the case of a threat of external aggression or an overt act of external aggression against one of the member nations, and in that event the Council of the League of Nations would be empowered only to make recommendations as to how the aggression should be prevented, and in any event involving participation of the United States use of United States troops could not be ordered "by any power on earth except the Congress of the United States."

Shakes Hands With Hearers.

Another questioner said: "Suppose Canada should want to withdraw from the British Empire?"

"That would be none of our darned business," replied Roosevelt.

Referring to a Republican slogan of the McKinley-Mark Hanna days, Roosevelt said: "What workingman in this hall tonight would be satisfied merely with the promise of a full dinner bucket?"

From the rear of the hall came a cry from a parched throat: "No; what we want now is a full beer bucket." Roosevelt joined in the laughter.

The meeting was called to order by Edward F. Goltra, Democratic National Committeeman for Missouri, and Roosevelt was introduced by Gov. Gardner.

Mrs. Roosevelt had a seat on the platform. At the conclusion of the meeting she was introduced. She stood while the audience cheered. After the meeting many in the audience filed past the platform and shook hands with Roosevelt.

Roosevelt's Speech.

Roosevelt's speech was as follows:

"After what I have seen in your State today and after what I have heard here tonight there is not a human being in the world that could persuade me that Missouri is going Republican. The tide has turned.

"I want to preface my speech tonight with some good news to every lover of this country: Whichever party is elected they can be assured that whatever may happen to the country itself, something which in the minds of most of us symbolizes our country will be safe. Senator Harding has at last made another definite statement. I read it to you to show that I am always willing to give him credit for any definite thing which he may say at any time. Here it is—Senator Harding's announcement, with all due solemnity befitting such a statement, that 'Under no circumstances will I suffer any change which will affect the American flag or any substitute therefor.'

"I will confess that I have been secretly much worried since Chairman Hays some time ago appropriated the American flag as the exclusive patented property of the Republican party. I have wondered what they would do with it after they got it. Some feared that they would symbolize the confederation which they advocate by making it a flag combining our own colors with the Crescent of Turkey, the Snake of Mexico and the Bear of Russia, thus symbolizing the four-party agreement of those who prefer to remain outside, but I am glad to learn that more conservative counsel has prevailed.

Criticism of Harding.

"I know the Senator too well not to know he has not made such an important announcement without long and serious consultation with Senator Penrose and Senator Lodge. I feel sure that in thus speaking he expressed not only his individual determination but that of the senatorial syndicate which he has so clearly indicated will help govern this country in case of his election.

"Tonight we are going to coin a new word. In my time I have had a great deal to do with boats. When they sail a boat they set the sails to catch the wind, whichever way it blows. They call that trimming the sails. 'Trim'—that's the term which gives us a word that has not been used yet in this campaign. And that word is 'trimmer.' American voters hate a man who says one thing and does another. They hate worse a man who says one thing one day and another thing the next day. Before Nov. 2 the American public is going to know to whom the word 'trimmer' applies, and the American people will vote against everything that word implies.

Straddling the Fence.

"If we look back in our history we will see that all our great Presidents have been the opposite of trimmers—they have stood for clear-cut, definite policies—they have been above partisanship for the mere sake of partisanship—they have used language which could only be taken one way—they have carried through great measures for the good of the nation because they have been simple, direct and brave. Above all, they have never been caught seeking the support of people on both sides of the same fence. It is these qualities which have made them great.

"On the other hand, the weakest of our Presidents have lacked these essentials. They have played politics. They have considered party or party victory above the nation's good—they have tried to run with the hare and trail with the hound, seeking to gain the support of opposite factions at the same time.

"To attempt to carry water on both shoulders, at the same time, means necessarily an insincerity of thought and speech. It means a deliberate attempt so to frame one's words that they may be construed as having opposite meanings. It means either a complete lack of convictions, or of purpose or of policy, or else a trickery of language.

"In our daily associations with men and women we run across this type, and we end by holding them in contempt. Do we respect the man who agrees with us today and a moment later with someone holding the opposite view? Do we look up to the man who has no definite convictions about any subject, but seeks merely to avoid argument? That type of individual not only never gets very far in this world, but contributes very little of good to this world as he passes through it. He is a mill-stone round the neck of progress. He is a "trimmer."

"Let us go back to the time when President Wilson returned from Paris with the treaty of peace and the draft of the League of Nations covenant. I was in Boston when the President was welcomed there by Gov. Coolidge, the same Calvin Coolidge who is running for Vice President on the Republican ticket. Here is what Gov. Coolidge said then: 'Mr. President, I welcome you on behalf of the people of the great Commonwealth of Massachusetts, and I assure you that the people are behind you today as in the past, and as they will be in the future in your splendid effort to carry through this great purpose for the American people.'

Will Hays Assailed.

"Lodge and other Republican Senators suggested changes in the covenant, insisting that the words 'Monroe Doctrine' be specifically used in the instrument. The President went back to Paris. He carried the suggestion with him. The framers of the covenant saw the wisdom of it and the Monroe Doctrine was put in the final draft.

"Then, laying the foundation of a plot of 'trimming,' Will Hays, chairman of the Republican National Committee, called Republican Senators together and told them that if they permitted the President to make a success of the treaty and League of Nations program it would mean Republican defeat in the 1920 election. Hays and those Senators agreed that the only hope of Republican success was to cast the good of the nation overboard. For one year that covenant was before those Senators and in that time there never was a moment when Lodge and his associates were willing to let it go through at any price. They were sacrificing their country to win a party victory.

"This year the managers of the Republican party have mapped out a campaign of 'trimming.' I do not speak of the rank and file of Republicans who hold definite convictions. The difficulty which Will Hays encountered more than a year ago was that of reconciling irreconcilable differences. He planned to do this by forgetting the differences. He did this by attempting to divert attention from these differences, and this could only be done by creating false issues.

"Things went well for him for a time. At Chicago, by the use of 'trimming' language, a platform was devised by the 'trimmeres,'" which a Hottentot or an Esquimaux could equally well swallow. It meant everything and it meant nothing.

Long Task of "Trimming."

From then on began the real task of trying to 'trim' the American voters up to Nov. 2. It was a difficult thing, this running of a campaign of 'trimming' for four months without spilling any of the water from either shoulder.

"The straw that broke the back of a patient public was the admission in Baltimore a week ago tonight by Senator Harding that he had no specific constructive program on foreign affairs. It became clear that, of course, this had to be so, because to have had a program of definiteness would have spoiled the whole theory of keeping discordant elements together.

"It has been a hard task to 'trim' the American voters and to go for four months, as the Republicans have tried to do, without spilling water from either shoulder. We have had time to think, to judge and watch, and we have reached the conclusion that the Republican campaign of 1920 is based on the great principles of a monumental vacuum.

The Hatred for Democrats.

"Of course, it had to come. That kind of 'trimming' was bound to be seen through by the reading and the thinking public. They have realized that in foreign affairs the Republicans are against the league because it was organized when a Democrat was President. They realize that in domestic affairs the campaign of the Will Hays organization is merely destructive—that it is based on hate of anything accomplished for the nation by any Democrat.

"So they have 'trimmed' and criticized and slandered, but it will not be for long. In four weeks this nation will decide to keep on going forward to rebuke 'trimmers' and to sustain men with clear-cut, definite opinions, leaders who are not afraid.

"In Baltimore a few nights ago when Senator Harding was speaking a man in the audience called out: 'Where do you stand on the League of Nations?' That man was hurried out of the hall and put in jail. Harding waited 20 minutes before answering the man's question. There was no chance to consult Penrose and Lodge.

Harding and the League.

"Now, after being a presidential candidate for three months and after having served in the United States Senate throughout the discussion of the treaty and the covenant, where does Harding stand? Here is his answer to that question: 'I am at present without any specific constructive program in foreign affairs.' But there is a ray of hope. He may stand somewhere sometime if the voters give him a chance, for in another speech he has said: 'If elected the first thing I will attempt to do will be to find a program of world association and co-operation.'

"Here is another one from Harding, published this morning. He says: 'I approve what Senator Borah has said in his public addresses.' And at the same time we find Borah quoted as saying: 'I will fight anyone who tries to put over a League of Nations.' Note that he says not 'the' League of Nations, but 'a' League of Nations.

"We know that so far as the sentiments of the American people are concerned, we have already joined the League of Nations, and we take no stock in men like Spencer of Missouri and Morrow of Kentucky who tell us that the league covenant would require us to send American boys overseas to fight the battles of other nations. Morrow of Kentucky in a recent speech said that if the King of Siam and the Emperor of Timbuctoo had a quarrel, we would have to send our boys over to settle it. Morrow must know that statement is unfair, even if he doesn't know where Siam and Timbuctoo are.

Advertising Against League.

"As part of the Republican campaign, advertisements have been printed in newspapers, saying that the league would send our sons to war at the behest of politicians. I leave it to you if that sort of advertising should be permitted.

"These men know they are misrepresenting the facts. They know as well as we do that no war could ever be declared without the consent of Congress and we are willing and ready to put into the instrument of ratification of the treaty the definite statement that American boys shall never be sent abroad to fight except by vote of Congress.

Approved by Churches.

"The churches of America are behind the league. The Presbyterians, Methodists, Unitarians, Congregationalists and many other denominations have indorsed it to the extent of 80 per cent of the church membership of America and on top of that Pope Benedict in his latest encyclical approves the association of nations to prevent wars.

"On this question we have a right to ask those who suffered from the war—the women who gave their sons. Over there are $1,000 graves of boys who died for something. It was not mere military victory they fought for. As a nation we knew we were fighting for a greater stake than the defeat of the Germans. We hoped to gain an end of war. We hoped for a definite creative instrument that would make war, as a crime against civilization, impossible, and would make it unnecessary ever again to send 2,000,000 of our sons across the water.

"In Louisville, Ky., the other day the National Board of American War Mothers passed a resolution indorsing 'The only league that stands for world peace.'

Tells of Indorsements.

"At a West Virginia railroad station I met a man who had lost two sons in the war. He said to me: 'I know they did not die in vain, for you will go on in your effort to get a League of Nations which will make it unnecessary to send boys to war.' In St. Paul or Minneapolis I met an old lady whose only relative, a grandson, had died in the war, and she expressed the same thought.

"Harding Getting Into Corner."

"If the English language means anything at all, it means that Senator Harding is at last being driven into a corner—it means that the American public have received from him a direct approval of Senator Borah's opposition to our going into a League of Nations, not merely 'the' league, but 'a' league.

"I want you to contrast this with the definite statements of Gov. Cox and myself. We favor going into the League of Nations which 39 or more countries have already joined, and, furthermore, we are wholly willing that it be made clear to every American that nothing in our going in the league shall take away in the slightest degree our existing rights under the American Constitution, including the right of the Congress of the United States to declare war or send our troops overseas. It seems to me that that is pretty plain English, and I trust that from now on there will be a noticeable falling off at least of the deliberate Republican misrepresentation of what Gov. Cox and I stand for."

Democratic Vice-Presidential Nominee, Sketched at Meeting Here

FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT.

1920 World's Series Players Cleared of Any Scandal Connection

CHICAGO, Oct. 5.

By the Associated Press.

BROOKLYN and Cleveland last night were cleared of any connection with the baseball scandal, so far as evidence presented to the Cook County grand jury is concerned.

State's Attorney Maclay Hoyne and his assistant, Hartley Replogle, who is in charge of the baseball inquiry here, issued statements declaring no evidence or testimony in any way implicating any member of the two pennant winners has come before the grand jury.

The grand jury in New York previously had exonerated the Brooklyn players of any connection with reports that attempts had been made to fix the 1920 series.

'WE ARE IN ACCORD IF HARDING HAS MY VIEW,' BORAH SAYS

Idaho Senator Declares Republican Nominee, From 18 Months in Senate, Knows "Where I Stand."

AGAINST A LEAGUE BY WHATEVER NAME

Campaigning for Brandegee, He Says the Issue Is Whether We Shall Take on Europe's Strife or Stay Out.

By the Associated Press.

DANBURY, Conn., Oct. 5.—America's entry into an association of nations, which has been proposed by Senator Harding as a substitute for the League of Nations, was opposed here last night by Senator Borah of Idaho. Opening a four days' speaking tour in support of the candidacy of Senator Brandegee, another of the Republican "irreconcilable" opponents of the league, Senator Borah declared that the thing which made the United States "powerful for good is its complete freedom and its unembarrassed right to throw its influence on the side of justice and peace in every great crisis of affairs."

In a statement issued before the meeting began, Senator Borah commented on the reported assertion of Senator Harding that his views and those of Senators Borah and Johnson were in entire accord.

"From his 18 months in the Senate, Senator Harding knows my views," Senator Borah said. "If he accepts them, then we are in perfect accord."

Opposed to Any Alliance.

Declaring himself unequivocally opposed to an association with the nations of Europe, he said he had nothing to say in favor of proposed substitutes for the League of Nations.

"A league, concert, alliance, combination, copartnership or association—it is all the same to me," he declared. "I always have opposed and always will oppose such an alliance. There can be no question of who I am supporting for President. Cox favors going into the league, while Harding has declared in favor of staying out."

"Our right as a people," said Senator Borah in his speech, "unembarrassed by alliances, leagues or associations, to determine for ourselves in every crisis and in the face of every confronting situation what it is our duty to do and what it is in the interest of humanity and civilization to do; involves the whole question of self-government, the whole question of an independent republic, and I venture to say that the voters of the Republican party will never compromise this right."

"The real question which this whole league scheme presents to the average citizen is this: Shall we go into Europe and take upon ourselves as a people, and as a part of our burdens and obligations, the turmoil, strife, racial conflicts and the imperialistic schemes of the old world, or shall we stay out? Keep that plain, fundamental proposition before you.

"All these schemes lead to but one destination—Europe. Whether you have it with or without reservations, it all leads to Europe and joins your children and your children's children to their councils, their settlements, their standards of living, their conception of government, their wars and their eternal diplomatic intrigue just now tormenting Europe as it has for 300 years.

"They All Lead to Europe."

"Whether you call the scheme a league, a concert of Powers, an alliance or an association, they all lead to Europe and place upon the already bended backs of American taxpayers their scheme of exploitation and waste, and upon the shoulders of the American youth the military burdens which must eventually grow out of this scheme.

"This is the reason why Lloyd George is perfectly willing for us to come in on our own terms. This is the reason which Viscount Grey is willing for us to fix up our own method. For they understand, and have so declared, that once in the method of getting in is immaterial.

"Witness some of the scenes at Versailles, such as the betrayal of the Chamber of Deputies, the deal by which Shantung was bartered away to an unfriendly Power. America sat in the settlement and was silent. If not silent, then by reason of her association, powerless. That is the first time in all her history that she connived at the betrayal of a friendly people and broke every pledge, legal and moral, which a people could make.

"And that is the first time that the United States ever sat in on a European settlement."

Borah's Telegram to Harding and Statement by Candidate on League

MARION, O., Oct. 5.

By the Associated Press.

SENATOR HARDING'S headquarters made public today this telegram from Senator Borah:

"In view of reports I wish you to know my speeches in the future will be along same lines as at Dayton, and in the Senate. I want to see you win and want to see the league scheme defeated. In my own way I shall devote my time to the achievement of both propositions."

Senator Harding, in a statement Sunday night, said he had received detailed information of speeches by irreconcilable Senators and had found in them no lack of harmony with his own views.

"I approve what Senator Borah has said in his public addresses," Senator Harding said, "and I am sure I shall approve also what he says to the voters in the future.

"I have just received a full stenographic report of the address of Senator Johnson made at Los Angeles, Sept. 25. It dissipates conclusively any notion that Senator Johnson is out of harmony with the platform and the candidate."

MEXICAN SAILORS SAVED IN SHIPWRECK, WOMAN IS LOST

Father of Only White Woman on the Speedwell Asks Colby for Investigation.

By the Associated Press.

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 5.—Details of the sinking in last week's tropical hurricane of the steamship Speedwell in the Gulf of Mexico are expected today from the steamer Lake Superior, due at Santiago, Cuba, and the oil tanker Sun Oil, reported near Tampico, Mex.

Interest was added to the case last night when George W. McDuff, father of Mrs. Edward M. Richardson, believed to have been the only white woman aboard the vessel, telegraphed to Secretary of State Colby requesting an investigation of what he suspected was foul play among the members of the crew.

McDuff stated he was unable to reconcile himself to the fact that negro and Mexican members of the crew were saved while the only white woman aboard probably perished.

The Lake Superior, a United States Shipping Board steamer, which sailed from Pensacola Sept. 30, picked up 13 survivors, including one passenger. The Sun Oil, a Pacific & Orient tanker, has four survivors aboard. The bodies of five persons were in the boat which she picked up, two of them women. Capt. Johnson of the Speedwell was reported to have gone down with his ship, lashed to the rigging.

The Speedwell, with five passengers and a crew of 19, sailed from Belize, British Honduras, Sept. 25, for New Orleans. In an effort to dodge the hurricane the vessel ran directly into it and was abandoned in a sinking condition, Sept. 29.

MILK PRODUCERS TO MEET TODAY TO PLAN END OF STRIKE

Failing to Get Ear of Distributors, They Will Discuss Question Among Themselves.

The Board of Directors of the Southern Illinois Milk Producers' Association, weary of waiting for the St. Louis distributors to talk to them, are having a meeting at the Railroad Y. M. C. A. in East St. Louis today to talk among themselves and try to find a way to let go of the "strike" which they began Sept. 16, when they demanded $3.60 per 100 pounds for milk and withheld shipments from the St. Louis distributors when they refused to pay more than $3.56.

Ever since the "strike" began the producers have been trying to get somebody to talk to them. Either D. A. Brooks, the president, or N. E. Baum, the secretary, has been at the Y. M. C. A. every day, and sometimes both. But the distributors, getting a supply of milk from other sources, principally Wisconsin and Ohio, had no desire for conversation.

Last Wednesday the producers met and fixed $3.60 as the basis of negotiation on the October price and waited for somebody to come and negotiate, but nobody came. Then they sent W. H. Fahrenkrog, the vice president, to see Robert L. Kayser, general manager of the St. Louis Dairy Co., and tell him that the producers were ready to talk and to suggest that the producers and distributers owed it to the consumers to do some talking. Kayser said he would let them know by Monday whether the distributers would talk. No word came yesterday and the meeting of the board of directors was called for today to "discuss calling off the strike."

What the producers would like to know is who will talk to them after they call it off.

MACSWINEY STATES HE IS VERY WEAK; GETS GOOD REST

LONDON, Oct. 5.—Lord Mayor MacSwiney, who, this morning, began the fifty-fourth day of his hunger strike, passed a fairly good night at Brixton prison, according to a bulletin issued this forenoon by the Irish Self-Determination League. From 9 o'clock last night until 6 o'clock this morning he was very quiet and restful, it is said, but it is impossible to say whether he slept all that time. The bulletin adds that the Lord Mayor was much weaker this morning.

MacSwiney himself stated this morning that he felt very weak, but was suffering no pain, the bulletin says.

REGISTRATION IN 2 WARDS PADDED, REPUBLICANS SAY

Precinct Workers Checking Up Lists in Fourth and Fifth Wards With Their Pollbooks.

FRAUD ESTIMATED AT 2300 NAMES

Democratic Leaders Laugh at the Charge and Will Not Make Any Counter Inquiry.

Predictions that 2300 fraudulent registrations would be found in the Fourth and Fifth wards, Democratic strongholds, were made today by Republican City Committeeman Oetting of the Second Ward, chairman of the subcommittee which is checking the registration in every precinct where it is suspected there may have been padding of the registration rolls. This subcommittee is holding daily sessions at Republican city headquarters.

Oetting said that about 1300 registrations in the Fifth Ward and about 1000 in the Fourth appear to be fraudulent. After it has finished checking these wards the subcommittee probably will take up the Sixth and Seventh wards, Oetting said. These wards also cast a large Democratic vote.

Precinct Workers Aiding.

Total registration in the wards under investigation by the Republicans is as follows: Fourth, 6662; Fifth, 6506; Sixth, 5871; Seventh, 6147.

The Republican committeemen in the wards under question are called into the sessions of the committee and their pollbooks, made in a pre-registration canvass of each precinct, are used to check the registration. In many cases precinct workers will be sent to the various places from which large numbers of persons have been registered to see if they all live at the specified addresses.

Democratic organization leaders yesterday laughed at the charges of the Republicans, and declared that the Democratic City Committee will not make any counter investigation in Republican wards.

Democrats Not Worried.

"What's the use?" one Democrat said. "There might be some interesting developments in an investigation of registration in some of the wards which have a heavy negro vote. But if we attack them and get them angry they will vote in droves. It's practical politics for us to keep quiet, for these charges will go up in thin air. The Republicans won't find anything wrong with many of the registrations they are objecting to, so let them have their fun. It happens every four years."

Republican politicians today filed with Charles Claudius, Republican clerk of the Election Board, 22 names, which they said had been registered from the Planters Hotel in the First Precinct of the Fifth Ward, for which the polling place is in the courthouse, and that investigation at the hotel indicated that none of them lived there. The names given were as follows: Samuel Boguslaw, Leroy Candle, Samuel Ehrlich, J. E. Gilson, James Gallagher, Joseph Green, Isaac Goldstein, Abe Goldman, W. P. Hindes, Milton Jacobs, Adam Lindsay, Adam Morley, Lawrence Masters, John S. Murphy, R. A. Patterson, Max Pohlman, William P. Roff, Morris Rosenberg, Abraham Roth, Robert Stanley, Ansel W. Stokes and Richard W. von Mora. The matter will be investigated by the board.

GEN. FAYOLLE REVIEWS FUTURE U. S. OFFICERS AT WEST POINT

French General Gets Salute of 17 Guns—Praises America's Military Academy.

By the Associated Press.

WEST POINT, N. Y., Oct. 5.—With all the dignity that is West Point's, America's future army officers passed in review yesterday afternoon before Gen. Marie Emile Fayolle, the distinguished French soldier, who came to this country as France's representative to the American Legion convention. The General's party included his aid, Lieut. Petra de Soubeyran; Brigadier-General Collardet, French military attache in Washington; Col. Requin and Capt. de Senechal, active president of the Comrades de Combat, which corresponds to the American Legion. The French party was escorted by Gen. H. C. Hale, Col. William Weigel, chief of staff at Governor's Island; Col. John J. Bradley, post commander; Lieutenant-Colonel Raymond Sheldon and Lieut. J. P. Cromwell, aid-de-camp to Hale. The trip was made up the Hudson in Secretary of War Baker's yacht.

Gen. Fayolle was greeted at West Point with a salute of 17 guns. Three battalions passed before him in review. Gen. McArthur, commandant of the military academy, then escorted the French party on an inspection tour of the various buildings. Gen. Fayolle said he never had seen a riding hall as large as West Point's.

"I am greatly impressed with West Point," said. "An army is only as good as its officers, and West Point speaks well for America."

across the seas to defend their dary lines."

The Post-Dispatch correspondent personally saw the memorandum which Timulty prepared for the President, and saw in pencil at bottom, in the President's handwriting, signed with the initials "W. W." h. authorization to Tumulty to deny Spencer's statement. The telegram which Tumulty sent to Spencer is as follows:

"Newspap. representatives have called my attention to a statement given by you to the St. Louis papers c inding the following quotations:

"'I do not for a moment believe that the President made any such denial, or that the matter was ever called to his attention as J. P. Tumulty indicated in his letter. Anyone who knows the situation at Washington knows that Mr. Tumulty is himself conducting the administration of government far more than the President of the United States, and has become accustomed to issue orders and make statements originating entirely in his own mind, but falsely announced as having back of them the knowledge and sanction of the President.'

"I shall not attempt to characterize the reflection upon the President himself which is found in this statement. I shall leave to your own conscience to say whether you consider this statement as worthy of a Senator of the United States. The statement you make charging that I have falsely issued a denial at the White House that the President had promised American military aid to the Rumanians and Serbs is one that I cannot allow to pass without comment. It is a fact that the President, in his own handwriting authorized me to say that the alleged quotation from you contained in the St. Louis Post-Dispatch was false. If you doubt the authenticity of the President's authority, his written direction to me is on file in the White House, where either you or any representative you may appoint may examine it.

"J. P. TUMULTY,
"Secretary to the President."

NEGRO ROBBER STRIKES WOMAN

Victim, Taken to Hospital, Loses $37 and Diamond Ring.

Mrs. Julia Wagner, 50 years old, of 2725 Madison street was taken to the city hospital at 11:30 o'clock last night after she had been knocked down and robbed by a negro as she was about to enter her home.

The negro struck her on the left temple with a piece of iron.

Mrs. Wagner told the police when the negro stopped her he demanded her money, and she started to scream, whereupon he struck her. She fell, stunned, and he grabbed a handbag from her arm and escaped. The bag contained $37. He also took a diamond ring, valued at $75, from her finger.

SCENE OF MURDER OF WOMAN RE-ENACTED

Kansas City Man Shows Detectives How Stranger Killed Young Woman With Him

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Oct. 5.—In an effort to gain some detail which would lead to a clew to the perpetrators of the midnight shooting of Saturday on a lonely road two and one-half miles southeast of the Hillcrest Country Club, when Miss Florence Barton was killed and her fiance, Howard R. Winter, wounded, Winter and city detectives yesterday afternoon re-enacted the scenes of the tragedy.

The party, consisting of Winter, his father, R. L. Winter, E. E. Beasley and Harry Bozzell, city detectives, Kimber L. Barton, father of the slain girl; Kimber L. Barton Jr. and H. R. Barton, her brothers, drove to the scene of the murder, an' there Winter in actions and words portrayed the Saturday night scene when a motor carrying three men drove alongside his coupe. One of the men alighted from the car and questioned Winter, and when Winter raised his hand to his face, the man fired several shots.

Howard R. Winter, looking years older, according to a brother of the murdered woman, went through the action in a melancholy way. He repeated the words of the assailant, his own, the cry of the young woman, and then he wept.

But the reproducing of the scene failed to develop any evidence that might bring about the discovery of the identity of the supposed bandits. Detectives examined the road and patches of ground adjacent to the scene, but could find nothing to help them they said.

Winter said one of his assailants wore a dark brown suit, was about 5 feet 10 inches tall, and wore a cap. He knew nothing of the two men who remained in the car.

Reward of $4330 Offered.

A total of $4330 has been posted in rewards for the apprehension and conviction of the man who shot Miss Barton.

The Round Table of Club Presidents, an organization embracing the officials of more than 30 social and civic clubs, adopted resolutions yesterday recommending that the citizenry co-operate with the police through a civilian police organization "to the end that lawlessness may be suppressed in the community."

Robbery Motive, Say Police.

Robbery was the motive that led to the shooting, detectives declare, after investigation. All other theories have been cast aside after checking up various angles of the case.

Six robberies by three men in a motor car in the vicinity of the murder have been reported to the police during the last three weeks, and detectives are of the opinion that these are the men who fired on Winter and Miss Barton.

Kansas City Police Suspect Giles Was Whisky Runner.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Oct. 5.—R. L. Giles, 51 years old, former owner of the Dryfoos Hotel and an oil operator, whose body was found on Sunday night partly covered with weeds in a deep ditch nine miles south of Lees Summit, Mo., with a bullet wound in the back of the head, was last seen alive on Sunday afternoon, Sept. 26, by Frank Washburn, former partner with Giles in the hotel.

Washburn stated last night that he and Giles had sold their interest in the hotel Sept. 14, and that they started in a motor car for St. Louis the following day, with the intention of buying a saloon in St. Louis. They stopped at St. Charles, where they visited for three days with James Washburn, father of Washburn. They then went on to St. Louis, were unsuccessful in finding a suitable location, and went to Kansas City Sept. 22, where they registered at the St. George Hotel.

Giles had a note for $2000, for which he was to receive pay on Oct. 1, and, according to Washburn, Giles was trying to obtain advance money on this note.

The police have no clew as to the murderer.

Police say they believe Giles was murdered by whisky thieves when he was engaged in transporting liquor illicitly from St. Louis.

The name of Mrs. Nell Fields, manager of the Koken Retail Cutlery Store, in the Arcade Building, was found in Giles pocket. Mrs. Fields said today that she had met Giles in a business way about three weeks ago, and had seen him five times, until he left here about 10 days ago. He told her he was 46 years old, and had been married twice, his second wife being divorced. He told her he was selling automobile parts at the St. Louis County Fair.

MULE CAR OF 1875 AND NEW TYPE ON DISPLAY BY U. R.

Exhibition in Twelfth Street to Show Development of Carriers.

The United Railways Co. today placed on Twelfth street, between Olive and Locust, a red, four-wheeled mule car, built in 1875, which formerly ran on the Bellefontaine line, and which seated 14 passengers in lengthwise seats, and a new car, built this year, which seats 60 persons. The two are intended as a comparative exhibit.

The old car is 10 feet long, and the new one is 50 feet long. A mule was attached to the old car, and Patrick O'Hara, 75 years old, an old-time mule car driver, now employed as a curve cleaner, was on the front platform. Copies of a leaflet contrasting transportation conditions now and in 1875 were distributed to persons inspecting the old car.

Dr. Eliot Defines Election Issue as Selfish Desertion of Our Allies Against Continued World Leadership

Harvard's Venerable President Emeritus Says Republicans Are Perverting the Grand Slogan "America First" to Mean Isolation and Loss of World Respect.

THE POST-DISPATCH begins herewith, by special arrangement, serial publication of the article, entitled "The Voter's Choice in the Coming Election," by Dr. Charles W. Eliot, the venerable president emeritus of Harvard University, in the October number of the Atlantic Monthly. This article defines the chief issue of the campaign as moral, in that it involves the continued world leadership of America and the fulfillment of this country's obligations to a sorely wounded world. He laments the campaigns of libel and villification of the President that is fostered and sanctioned by the highest Republican authorities and shows by words and deeds the great plane of thought and ideals onto which President Wilson has led humanity during the greatest crisis of its history. The issue, as he sees it, is shall we continue on this highway of idealism or fall back into a selfish isolation that will impair the respect in which we have been held by the world? An installment of this notable article will be published daily until it is presented in full.

By CHARLES W. ELIOT,
President Emeritus of Harvard University.

We that are strong ought to bear the infirmities of the weak, and not to please ourselves.—Paul to the Romans: XV. 1.

(Republished from the October number of the Atlantic Monthly by special arrangement)

It is only a minority of the voters, even a small minority, who make an intelligent choice at any election. Most practical voters follow their party leaders or their party newspapers, without much use of either their minds or their wills. This fact is not to be regretted in ordinary times; because party government is the only form of government which has proved possible in the democracies, and to successful party government a certain stability in political parties seems to be essential. Moreover, the free Governments in which political parties are only two, with the occasional and generally precarious development of a third, have been on the whole much more successful in procuring for the people concerned real progress in education, production and trade, and real toleration in religion, than the Governments which have to be carried on through numerous political parties, which naturally tend to become mere factions, compelling the administration to rely on temporary groupings within which there is little real sympathy, or even much hostility.

In extraordinary crises, however, like that of Europe in 1914, or that of America at this moment, this normal stability of great parties in free Governments becomes a serious danger. The formidable question then presents itself—presents itself now in this country—how large a proportion of the voting mass will rise to the occasion, and make a sound choice between the policies and men set before them by the two contending parties—a choice sound, not only intellectually, but morally. A larger proportion of the young voters than of the old will free themselves from partisanship, and make their choice on simple moral grounds. This fall the ex-soldiers will choose best of all; because they know more about the facts than stay-at-home people do, and want to make as sure as they can that their dead and disabled comrades have not died and suffered in vain.

A Momentous Crisis.

The American people are now approaching a momentous crisis. They are called upon to render a decision on questions not primarily economic or industrial, but relating chiefly to national duties, responsibilities and obligations. The decision will depend on the present state of the national character, which is, of course, an outcome of the moral and religious leadership enjoyed by the people during the past three centuries, and of the national experience at home and abroad during the same period, and also on the openness of the people's heart to the world's appeal for help. Under these circumstances the stability of the two great parties in the country is sure to be impaired, the number of independent voters will increase, and many more voters than usual will be making a real choice among the policies and persons that solicit their votes.

What are the documents which the intelligent and conscientious voter needs to study, in order to make up his mind whether he ought to cast a Republican or a Democratic vote? The leading documents are, of course, the official platforms of the two parties, the "key-note" speeches at the conventions, and the acceptance speeches of the candidates. It is a grave misfortune and hindrance that these documents are, with two exceptions, deplorably long, much less explicit than they should be, and defaced with vituperation, bombast and vote-catching appeals to the thoughtless and ignorant. The exceptions are the speeches of acceptance of the two candidates for the vice presidency.

It now (Aug. 22) looks as if September and October were going to supply the inquiring voter with some other means of making up his mind how he ought to vote. These means will apparently be better adapted to the reading habits of the American people than the official documents now accessible; because they will be short editorial paragraphs in the newspapers, or short reports of utterances by the leading candidates. The best opinion now seems to be that the ordinary American will put off reading an article in his newspaper which exceeds a column or so in length, or an article in his magazine which exceeds eight or 10 pages. He may intend to read it later, but seldom does. If the newspapers and periodicals conform to this confirmed habit of their readers, there is hope that the voter who wishes to cast a considerate and righteous vote will get some help from the press origin-

Befogging Issues.

The Republican managers seem even now to be studying how to shift the main issue of the campaign from repudiation of the covenant and treaty to repudiation of President Wilson and all his works They hope that there are more voters who dislike the President, condemn severely his mistakes and failures, and see no merit in his achievements, than there are voters who reject outright the covenant and treaty and wish to have the United States kept out of all participation in the struggles of the world toward international cooperation, the reduction of armaments and the prevention of violence by strong peoples against weak ones, and of wars for new territory or new trade. They incline to withdraw the rejection of the league covenant as the primary issue, and to rely chiefly on the impatience of short-sighted people with those Democratic measures of the past seven years which have disturbed their private business or their accustomed pleasures. They think it safer to seek the votes of the numerous people who are tired of the strenuous ideals of the eloquent but unpractical and mentally isolated President. They hope to profit by the reaction from the moral exaltation of the war-time, and by the common wish for a change in political, economic and industrial management. All the more it is important to state, and keep stating until the election, the real issue which the people are to decide on the second of November.

Fortunately these issues are moral issues. In all free Governments based on a wide suffrage sound popular decisions are obtained on moral questions more quickly and more surely than decisions on economic, legal or administrative questions. This fall the main questions before the people might properly be called religious, if that word did not suggest to many minds some sectarian or ecclesiastical interpretation.

The Moral Ground.

The reflecting and responsible voter is going to make his choice on moral grounds. He is going to ask himself who are right, the President and his supporters in and out of office, or the opposition Senators who have been preaching for more than a year that the noble phrase "America first" means, in the respect to national conduct, not moral leadership and enterprise, and service without thought of self, but selfishness, desertion of brave comrades-in-arms, seeking cover from new risks for liberty and humanity, and refusal to participate in protecting the weak against the strong, and in making aggressive war too dangerous, in either civilized or barbarous regions, to be undertaken.

The two political platforms differ from each other most strongly in their descriptions of President Wilson's character and achievements. The Republican platform condemns and repudiates in hot terms both President Wilson's abstract political philosophy and the practical conduct of the administration of which he has been for seven years the head. One would infer from that platform that President Wilson had never said or done anything that was right, and that his administration had been an abject failure before the war, during the war and after the war. The Democratic platform praises both the principles which President Wilson has expounded and stood for—or in other words the ideals which guide and animate him—and the measures his Cabinet and the administrative bureaus at Washington have already put into execution or are now advocating.

The first thing, therefore, for the thoughtful voter to do is to satisfy himself as to the principles of government which President Wilson believes in and has acted on. The next thing will be to consider what the two Wilson administrations have done for the country.

ADMITS MOTHERHOOD OF HER "HALF SISTER"

Woman Testifies Her Stepmother Posed as Mother and Brother Didn't Know It.

The petition of Thomas Conniff of Louisville, Ky., for a writ of habeas corpus ordering his sister, Mrs. Lucille Meyer of 2825 Gamble street, wife of a mechanic, to surrender custody of a 14-year-old girl known as Elizabeth Conniff, was denied yesterday by Circuit Judge Kimmel when Mrs. Meyer took the stand and declared that she was the mother of the child.

When Mrs. Meyer took the stand her counsel prefaced her testimony with the following announcement: "We propose to show that this child is the blood daughter of Mrs. Meyer, instead of being her half-sister, as has been supposed."

Judge Kimmel turned to Mrs. Meyer. "Is that true? Are you the mother of this girl?" he asked.

Mrs. Meyer, her voice muffled by her handkerchief, answered, "yes."

"Tell the circumstances," the Court instructed.

"She was born when I was a girl, 17 years old," Mrs. Meyer replied in a low tone. "I was not married. To keep disgrace away from the family, my stepmother agreed to pose as the mother of the baby. Nobody knew the truth but us and my father. We were living in St. Louis then.

"As soon as I was able, I left town. My father and stepmother moved to Iowa. She died four years later. A year after her death I was married, and I wrote to my father to learn where my daughter was, but the letters came back. I never heard of her again until a year ago, when I was attending a funeral in Louisville. Then I found out that she was in an orphange there, and I made up my mind to get her."

"Who was the father of your child?" asked the Judge.

"I can't tell that," the witness replied.

Refused to Give Up Child.

Last August her present husband, Grover Meyer, to whom she has been married two years, went to Louisville and obtained the girl from Conniff, who supposed she was his halfsister. Conniff had recently taken her from the orphanage. Meyer brought the girl to St. Louis, and Mrs. Meyer refused Conniff's request to return her to Louisville.

Conniff testified that he had always supposed Elizabeth was his half-sister, and said he did not accept his sister's story of being the mother.

"It does not appear likely that a woman would make an admission of that sort except from the strongest motive," said Judge Kimmel. "I do not believe she would tell such a story unless it is true."

The Court asked Elizabeth where she desired to stay.

"With mamma," replied the girl, and Judge Kimmel so ordered. The petition of Conniff was dismissed.

FORMER SOLDIERS ARRESTED IN PARK, CARRIED REVOLVERS

Couple, Aroused by Action of Two, and Fearing Holdup, Made Complaint to Guard.

Harry M. Eudaley, 21 years old, of 1343 Semple avenue, a former soldier, who says he is a brother of Edward Eudaley, known to the police as "John E. Jackson, the bridegroom highwayman," now in the Jefferson City penitentiary, and Glenn Dilley, 21, of 4708 Newberry terrace, a former soldier, were arrested in Forest Park at 9 o'clock last night while both had loaded revolvers in their pockets.

Leon Aubuchon of 3614 Cass avenue, and a girl were seated on a bench near the Wabash Railroad bridge and the Grand Drive, when they noticed the young men walking back and forth near them. Aubuchon believed he was about to be held up and hailed a passing park guard, who placed the two young men under arrest and held them while Aubuchon searched them.

In explanation of the revolvers, Eudaley told the police he had had some troubles with some negroes on Kennerly avenue, and last night, when he and Dilley started to the park with two girls, they put the revolvers in their pockets for self-protection. The girls left them near the park, they said, and they were "strolling" through when arrested. They denied any intention of robberies of any kind. They were held pending applications for warrants.

LEAVENWORTH, Kan., Oct. 5.—Officials of the Federal penitentiary today awaited instructions for the release of Eckhart V. von Schack and Franz von Bopp, former Consul-General and Vice Consul-General for the Imperial German Government at San Francisco, who, it was announced, have been granted paroles. It was said the former German agents probably would be set at liberty during the day.

The two German plotters were brought to the prison in the summer of 1918 to serve sentences of five years each for violating the neutrality of the United States. They were convicted of setting upon United States soil a plot to overthrow British rule in India, with the object of weakening Great Britain's efforts in the world war.

In Many Conspiracies.

Besides the Hindu revolt plot, other conspiracies charged against the two consular agents included issuance of false clearance papers to ships carrying supplies to German commerce raiders in the Pacific; the blowing up of a barge of dynamite in the harbor at Seattle; a plan to set on foot within the United States a military expedition against Canada; blowing up a Canadian Pacific tunnel in British Columbia and the St. Clair tunnel at Fort Huron, and plans to destroy factories, railroads and shipping in the United States.

The revelation of the Hindu plot came shortly before the United States entered the war and the trial took place in January, 1917.

The two prisoners became eligible for parole several months ago, but after hearing before the Parole Board their applications were not granted.

Swiss Intervene.

Representations were made to Washington recently by the Swiss Government in behalf of the former German officials and two weeks ago their cases were brought before the Parole Board again. A favorable report then was made to the Department of Justice, resulting in their parole, according to prison officials.

Both are expected to return to Germany upon their release.

BURGLARS IN FIVE OFFICES IN BOATMEN'S BANK BUILDING

Hoyt Metal Co. Robbed of $450 in Liberty Bonds and $100 in Thrift Stamps.

Five offices in the Boatmen's Bank Building, Broadway and Olive street, were entered by burglars between Saturday night and yesterday. Desks in each of the offices were rifled.

From the Hoyt Metal Co. the burglars obtained $450 in Liberty Bonds; $100 in Thrift Stamps, $75 in postage stamps, 50 old coins, 10, two revolvers and 25 car tokens. A watch was the only article taken from the desks in the office of the American Metal Co. At the offices of the Olive Street Terrace Realty Co. and the Certain-teed Products Co. a number of desks were broken open, but nothing was taken. From desks in the Remhoff Investment Co. the burglars took $5.60 and a fountain pen. The locks on doors in each of the offices were forced.

KIRKWOOD WOMEN VOTING

Four Hundred Expected to Cast Ballots on Bonds.

Kirkwood women voters today are casting their first ballots, on a $25,000 bond issue for rebuilding and resurfacing part of the Denny road within the city limits.

The polls opened at 6 a. m. and will close at 7 p. m. About 400 women are expected to vote. The county is to build the road from Olive street to the Gravois road, including a 2-foot strip through Kirkwood. The bond issue is to be used to make the road 35 feet wide in the city. The strip is about two miles long.

128 Boys at Country Day School.

The St. Louis Country Day School opened its fourth year Monday with an enrollment of 128 boys. This is a large increase from the 68 with which it opened in 1919. Two new masters have been added to the teaching force. William R. Canty is to teach geography and mathematics, and coach the football team. Robert Guinn teaches Latin, French and English, and also will assist in the supervision of athletics.

LONG PROMISES TO 'MIX IT' WITH SPENCER

Candidate for Senate Says Hereafter He Will "Call Names and Point to Faces."

Breckinridge Long, Democratic nominee for United States Senator, and John M. Atkinson, Democratic nominee for Governor, in brief speeches following Franklin D. Roosevelt, at the Armory last night, announced their intention of waging vigorous campaigns against Spencer and Arthur M. Hyde, Republican nominee for Governor, with much more of the personal element than has so far entered into their speeches.

"Atkinson and Gardner have been 'taking the hide off of Hyde' and I'm going to tackle Dr. Jekyll," Long said, referring to Senator Spencer. "He has been directly contradicted on the authority of the President of the United States and the explanation he has made in reply does not vary one speck from his original statement.

To Attack Spencer.

"Now, he is a lawyer and has been a judge, and in his statement he said the President bound the United States to send soldiers abroad, when every high school boy in the country knows that under the law and the Constitution the President has no power to bind the United States.

"I am tired of this campaign of falsification and villification, and in the future when statements I know to be untrue come to my attention, I am going to take exception to them. I dislike to descend to personal controversy, but when a statement is made that I know is not the fact, I am going to call names and point to faces and call it what it is.

"Today at Cape Girardeau I stood on the same platform from which Senator Spencer spoke 10 days ago. There he said that the President took to Paris a young man from the State Department drawing $3000 a year and paid him $24,000 a year. That statement is false and untrue. I was in the State Department at that time and I know that no State Department employe was paid 1 cent more in Paris than he was paid in the State Department.

"That is only a sample of the Republican campaign of misrepresentation, falsification and villification."

Says He Has Two Opponents.

Atkinson said he thought at the beginning of the campaign that he he had only one opponent, Mr. Hyde, "but I've come to the conclusion," he said, "that I have two, Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde." Atkinson said that later in the campaign he would speak in St. Louis and would give particular attention to fair and honest election questions.

"I will show you," he said, "the scheme the Republican party leaders had to capture elections in Kansas City through changes in the election laws in Kansas City, changes they would not consent to in St. Louis where they controlled a majority of the wards. I wish I had time to go into it tonight, but I will before this campaign is over."

LAWYER LOSES $269.288 CAMPBELL ESTATE CLAIM

John S. Leahy Not Entitled to Administrator's Fee, Judge Falkenhainer Rules.

Circuit Judge Falkenhainer today decided against John S. Leahy and in favor of the Mercantile Trust Co., in Leahy's suit for $269,288.17, which Leahy alleged was due him as fees for his services as administrator pendente lite of the James Campbell estate.

When collateral heirs of Campbell contested his will in 1914 the Probate Court set aside the executorship of the Mercantile Trust Co. and appointed Leahy temporary administrator. This appointment was set aside by Judge Hennings in the Circuit Court. Hennings' action was sustained by the State Supreme Court.

In his ruling today the Judge held that the decision of the Supreme Court was final and that Leahy had no legal claim to fees.

COUPLE ARRESTED ON ROOMER'S CHARGE THAT THEY ROBBED HIM

Solicitor Says Man Held Him While Woman Took $500 From His Pockets.

Hyman Salzberg, 37 years old, of 2820 Dickson street, a tailor, and his wife, Fannie, were arrested yesterday on complaint of Isaac Belenco, 35, of 2419 Market street, a solicitor, who formerly roomed with the Salzbergs, and who says they robbed him of $500.

Salzberg, he said, accused him of trying to lure Mrs. Salzberg from her home and both attacked him. While Salzberg beat him, he charged, Mrs. Salzberg removed the money from his pocket.

Detectives sent to arrest the couple say they caught Mrs. Salzberg trying to hide $500 in bills, which Belenco identified by pencil marks as his. Mrs. Salzberg said Belenco gave her the money. The Salzbergs gave bond.

PRISONER MAY BE LEINEMAN

Sacramento Police Hold Man as Suspect in 1912 Escape.

The police received a message today from Sacramento, Cal., stating that a man arrested there, who gave his name as Fred Lynam, was believed to be Frederick M. Leineman, who escaped from jail here April 2, 1912.

Leineman, known as "Lefty," was one of three who escaped from the jail soon after it was first placed in use. He was under sentence to a four years' term in the penitentiary for merchandise thefts, and was accused also of killing and mutilating horses and mules during a teamsters' strike.

—Only One of a Kind

IN this unusual collection of Women's Frocks and Gowns one may not only find an exclusively designed and charming model at a much-less-than-usual price, but also delightfully individual expressions of authentic late modes and copies of Parisian models.

The afternoon Gowns make their appearance in satin meteor, satin crepe, duvetyn, velvet and crepe Georgette—fashioned along the slim lines now in vogue—with many simple models and others more elaborate with touches of jet, beads and embroidery.

The Gowns for evening and for the dance are of chiffon velvet, taffeta, satin, Chantilly lace and tulle and satin combinations. Among these bouffancy is preferred—and often there are gleaming ornamentations of crystal beads, sequins and jet—some of these being in designs on imported robes.

Sportsmen Sense the "Call" of the Wild

THE first of October has come and gone and with it has come to every Red-blooded American, the desire to get out his gun and answer that indefinable call of the wild. Is it the chill mornings which signals? No one knows but it seems that somewhere from afar comes a call, so irresistible—and there is no choice but to pack up the old kit bag. The faithful old gun becomes the center of interest and no pool of water or marshy land is overlooked.

The Gun—

FIRST the Sportsman thinks of his gun—he pulls out his old most trusted one from its corner and spends many a happy hour in cleaning it until it fairly shines. Then he orders from us enough ammunition to last him during the season (we have a large and complete line of loaded shells, all sizes of shot and all brands of powder).

But perhaps the trusty rifle has seen many seasons and the hunter is in need of a more modern and up-to-date automatic. And so when he comes in he will find here automatic, repeating and single shot guns, which will bring to his face a satisfied grin and he will willingly replace his old model.

CATARRHAL DEAFNESS MAY BE OVERCOME

If you have Catarrhal Deafness or head and ear noises or are growing hard of hearing go to your druggist and get 1 ounce of Parmint (double strength) and add to it ¼ pint of hot water and a little granulated sugar. Take 1 tablespoonful four times a day.

This will often bring quick relief from the distressing head noises. Clogged nostrils should open, breathing become easy and the mucus stop dropping into the throat. It is easy to prepare, costs little and is pleasant to take. Anyone who has Catarrhal Deafness or head noises should give this prescription a trial.

FRIENDS OF IRISH FREEDOM REFUSE TO HEAR HAWES

Candidate for Congress in Eleventh District Ordered to Leave St. Matthew's Hall in Middle of Address.

WAS REPLYING TO REPUBLICAN OPPONENT

Tumult Alleged to Have Been Started by Friends of Bernard P. Bogy, Who Has Been Indorsed by Branch.

Tumult which reached a climax when a large delegation of the friends of Bernard P. Bogy, Republican nominee for Congress in the Eleventh District, left the hall, and which culminated in orders from the Rev. Father Joseph T. Shields to "get out or I'll put the lights out," accompanied the effort of Harry B. Hawes, Democratic nominee, to get a hearing last night from the Gen. Shields Branch, Friends of Irish Freedom, in St. Matthew's Hall, Sarah street and Kennerly avenue.

Bogy and Deputy Sheriff Samuel Wheeler, his political adviser, who were present, left when the secession occurred, and while Hawes was charging connection between Wheeler and the Independent Voters' League in 1917. The Independent Voters' League, as is known, is a secret political organization which by "dark-lantern" methods has endeavored to defeat candidates for office who are Catholic or have Catholic sympathies.

Hawes Invited to Speak.

It was evident from the first that Bogy's friends and some others were disposed not to let Hawes speak, although he had been invited to address the meeting by Mrs. Belle Tracy of 3917 Maffitt avenue, chairman of the branch, and although Bogy had been given a hearing and indorsement of the branch at the September meeting.

Hawes charged that Wheeler attended a meeting of emissaries of the I. V. L., at the home of Frank Hablutzel, 3834 Juniata street, in August, 1916, as told by Julius Haller, an unsuccessful candidate for the Republican nomination for Mayor in that year, to a Post-Dispatch reporter, March 5, 1917, and printed the following day. Wheeler told reporters after the meeting last night that he had been Haller's campaign manager and attended the I. V. L. conference as Haller's representative. Wheeler asserted that he is not a member of the I. V. L. and never has been. He said that he is a member of the Friends of Irish Freedom.

Before Hawes started to speak, while Mrs. Tracy was introducing him and asking for a hearing for a man "who had been judged in his absence," two or three men who sat near Bogy and Wheeler began to assert that the meeting was "packed" and to seek its adjournment.

Says He Seeks Only a Hearing.

Hawes then rose, with Mrs. Tracy's permission, and explained that he agreed with the objectors that nobody should be permitted to vote except members of the Branch, and said that for that matter he was not seeking an indorsement, but a hearing. Then one of the objectors persisted that all who were not members of the Branch should withdraw, and Mrs. Tracy reminded them of a sign outside the hall that "all lovers of liberty are invited to attend."

Hawes finally got started speaking, had reviewed his "lifelong friendship" for the Irish, told about a bill he introduced into the State Legislature to cure activities of the I. V. L. and of the excoriation to which he had been subjected in that connection, and opened his charge against Deputy Sheriff Wheeler when the latter jumped up and offered to bet $100 that nobody could prove he had anything to do with the I. V. L.

Phil Dyer, Democratic City Committeeman from the Twenty-second Ward, got up and, above the hubbub which arose, asserted that Wheeler did have some connection with the league. Patrick Flood, treasurer of the Council of the Friends of Irish Freedom, pushed his way to the front of the hall and, with Hawes' consent, started a speech, which closed with an assertion that "Wilson could stop the murder in Ireland tomorrow if he wanted to," and an appeal to adjourn the meeting. He declared it adjourned, and with considerable noise part of the crowd departed, Bogy and Wheeler going with them. Most of the women, of whom about 40 were present, and some men, remained, and Hawes then finished his speech.

Wanted to Question Bogy.

Hawes said that he wanted to ask Bogy, if he had remained, if he approved of Harding's assertion that the Irish question is a local issue between Ireland and England. Bogy said afterward, while sitting in his automobile with Wheeler, that he intended to work and vote for recognition of the Irish republic and "didn't give a damn about Harding's position."

Just as Hawes concluded, Father Shields, pastor of the parish, accompanied by a younger priest, entered the hall and ordered the meeting ended. He refused to listen to Hawes' efforts to defend himself. Hawes said afterward that he assumed some of the group which left had informed Father Shields that disorder was occurring in the hall.

Feeling between partisans of the opposing candidates ran high and a number of spirited exchanges, all vocal, occurred outside after the meeting had terminated, women as well as men staying "to see the fun," as one put it.

Iowa Banker Killed in Auto.

CASE AGAINST LAWYER DISMISSED BY STATE

St. Louisan Was Charged With Obtaining $4000 From East St. Louis Widow.

A charge of obtaining $4000 from Mrs. Pearl I. Asselmeyer, a young widow, of 3316 Bond avenue, East St. Louis, by means of a confidence game, on which Wilson A. Noell, 26 years old, an attorney, of 4605 Kennerly avenue, having an office in the Merchants'-Laclede Building, was arrested Sept. 25, was dismissed yesterday by Assistant State's Attorney Weber in Justice Brady's court after Mrs. Asselmeyer had testified that she had not given the money to Noell direct.

Weber had prepared a second complaint against Noell charging him with embezzling $100, an amount which Mrs. Asselmeyer said she gave to Noell to start a suit in the Federal Court to recover damages for the death of her husband, Paul Asselmeyer, who was killed while employed as a conductor by the Illinois Traction (McKinley) system.

Weber and Joseph McGlynn, attorneys for Noell, discussed when the embezzlement charge should be heard, and it was agreed to have the hearing forthwith. Weber left the courtroom, saying he would return in 15 minutes. While he was gone Noell and McGlynn departed. When Weber returned he discovered that no warrant had been issued in the embezzlement case, and Noell had not been arrested. He conversed with McGlynn, who said Noell was under the impression the entire matter had been dropped, and had returned to St. Louis. He agreed to have Noell in Brady's court at 1 p. m. Oct. 11, for preliminary examination on the embezzlement charge.

Asselmeyer was killed last January by being run over by a car at Springfield. Noell became Mrs. Asselmeyer's attorney in negotiations with the Workmen's Compensation Board. She was awarded $4000, of which, she said, she gave Noell $1200 as a fee. Later, she said, Noell advised that she file suit in the Federal Court, inasmuch as the McKinley system is engaged in interstate traffic. She said she loaned him $200, and gave him $100 to institute the suit. She said yesterday that Noell had not instituted the suit, and the embezzlement charge is based on his alleged misappropriation of the $100.

Mrs. Asselmeyer said that in addition to obtaining the $1200 fee and the $300, Noell obtained $4000, part of that being insurance money. She said she loaned the money to a St. Louis shoe merchant, taking a mortgage on his stock, and later, at Noell's solicitation, gave Noell orders to obtain the money from the shoe merchant, accepting from Noell a personal note, and lien on fees in three compensation cases in which he is an attorney. She said she has been unable to realize on the liens, and has been told that two of the cases have been settled and Noell collected his fee.

Noell asserts that Mrs. Asselmeyer is amply protected and the note will be liquidated when it becomes due Dec. 17.

COX COMPLETES PLANS FOR LAST CAMPAIGN TRIPS

Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, West Virginia and New York to Be Chief Battleground Until Election.

By the Associated Press.

DAYTON, O., Oct. 5.—Plans for completion of the Democratic national campaign, now declared by leaders to be entering its last stages, were formulated yesterday by Gov. James M. Cox, National Chairman George White, Senator Pat Harrison, chairman of the National Speakers' Bureau, and E. H. Moore, the pre-convention manager. The conference was held at Trail's End.

As a result of the conference Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, West Virginia, New York, New Jersey and Maryland probably will be the chief battle ground until election, according to Senator Harrison, though all details have not yet been worked out. Gov. Cox will spend four days campaigning in his home state, three days in Indiana, one day in West Virginia, one in New Jersey and most of two days in Illinois. Night meetings have been arranged for Indianapolis for the twenty-eighth and Chicago the thirtieth. It also was announced the Governor will speak in Baltimore, the date for the meeting not having been decided.

First Speeches in Ohio Oct. 14.

The Governor's first speeches in his home State will be Oct. 14. He will speak first at Van Wert, Lima and Bellefontaine, with a night meeting either at Springfield or Dayton. The next day will find him at Detroit and then again into Ohio with a noon speech at Akron and a night speech in Cleveland, spending Sunday there. From Cleveland he will go into New York State, where on the eighteenth he will speak at Rochester at noon and Buffalo at night. Two days will be spent in New England, it was said.

He will speak at Madison Square Garden in New York on the night of the twenty-third.

Tomorrow evening the swing into Kentucky, Tennessee, Indiana and Illinois will begin, reaching the most extreme western point at St. Louis, where the Governor will speak on the night of Oct. 11, swinging back towards Ohio through Indiana and Illinois on the twelfth and thirteenth.

The candidate spent most of yesterday resting at his home, and received a delegation of women headed by Mrs. Florence Kelley, general secretary of the National Consumers' League, and Mrs. Maude Wood Park, chairman of the National League of Women Voters.

On most of the questions presented by the women, especially, children welfare and the Kenyon cold storage bill, Gov. Cox told them he had stood for such reforms for 12 years and that Ohio had laws similar to those they sought nationally.

In connection with assertions by the Democratic campaign directors that a reaction toward the Democratic ticket has set in and that the Irish people, who have been either opposed to or only lukewarm for the League of Nations now are lining up for Cox and Roosevelt, the Governor said he had received a telegram from Edward A. Ryan, who was arrested at Baltimore when he sought to ask Senator Harding a question, saying he was for the Democratic candidate. The text of the telegram was not made public. Gov. Cox expects to remain in Dayton today and return to Columbus tomorrow.

TRIAL OF $37,500 DAMAGE SUIT AGAINST JUDGE MIX BEGINS

Trial of the $37,500 damage suit of Alex H. Asadorian, a rug dealer, against Police Judge George E. Mix was begun in Circuit Judge Ferriss' Court today. Asadorian alleges that Mix struck him in the face when acting as attorney at a hearing of a civil suit before a commissioner about three years ago.

In examining the jury panel of 18 Asadorian's attorney, Randolph Laughlin, questioned the talesmen as to what wards they lived in and if each knew who was Republican committeeman in his ward. Most of them did not know the committeemen. One prospective juror said he thought he lived in the Twenty-sixth or Twenty-ninth Ward. There is no Twenty-ninth Ward. The questions were asked because Mix is a Republican, and an active worker for the party.

Edward Foristel, attorney for Judge Mix, questioned the talesmen as to whether they owned automobiles. Only two of the 18 said they did. This question was asked because, as Police Judge, Mix has been severe on automobilists charged with traffic law violations.

LODGING HOUSE TO OPEN NOV. 1

The municipal lodging house at 110-12 South Twelfth street will be opened for the winter Nov. 1. Last winter, from Nov. 1, 1919, to March 31, 1920, the lodging house provided shelter for 11,546 men, including 475 negroes. These figures do not take account of the fact that many of the lodgers are "repeaters." Of these men 3754 were lame or infirm. The maintenance cost $9166.42. There were 25,471 separate meals served. A free employment bureau is maintained. The lodging house was instituted in 1914. Food and shelter is free.

TRACES THIEVES BY AUTO TIRES

The general store of Lewis & Sons at Hogville, Mo., was robbed of $4000 in silks and merchandise early yesterday by two men who headed for St. Louis in an automobile after the robbery.

Sheriff Whitesides told the police he had traced the automobile for seven miles toward St. Louis by a peculiar tread on the tires, but had lost the trail when the machine got to a hard road.

CLIMBS POLE TO MAKE RAID

Policeman, However, Finds No Evidence of Gambling in Coffee House.

Following a telephone message from a man who said he had lost $300 while gambling in a coffee house at 1501 Chestnut street, second floor, at 2 a. m. today, Assistant Night Chief Gerk and policemen rushed to the address.

Lights could be seen on the second floor and Patrolman Hasty climbed a telephone pole in the rear to get a look inside. He could see men but no gambling. Hasty then climbed to a roof and from there int a hall window, and he let the other policemen in. In a front room two men were found getting ready to retire. In a rear room were two others. No evidence of gambling could be seen. The four were arrested for investigation. They denied knowledge of any kind of a game on the premises.

RUSSO-POLISH PEACE CONFERENCE RESUMED

Poles Criticise Boundary Proposal, but Offer No Substitute Suitable to Them.

By the Associated Press.

RIGA, Oct. 5.—The Russo-Polish peace conference resumed last night under the guise of the chief commission with all the delegates and their staffs present, but the correspondents were not admitted.

The Poles did not present the Polish peace draft, although it is said to be completed, but made a general declaration pointing out differences between the first Soviet Moscow declaration and the second Soviet peace draft. The Poles asked reversion to the former. They also criticised particularly the boundary proposed in the second draft, but they did not submit a substitute which they would be willing to accept.

M. Joffe, head of the Soviet delegation, requested a recess of 15 minutes in which to formulate a reply. The Poles have not announced when their concrete terms will be presented.

Advices to Washington Predict Failure of Riga Parleys.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5.—Failure of peace negotiations between the Poles and Bolsheviki at Riga was forecast in official advices received yesterday. Continuing Polish military successes and the increasing strength shown by Gen. Wrangel, anti-Bolshevist leader in Southern Russia, were said to be influencing the Poles not to make peace at this time.

Gen. Pilsudski, Polish leader, was said to favor breaking off negotiations and the reaching of an understanding between Poland, the Ukranians and Gen. Wrangel. As a step in this direction, it was reported a Ukrainian mission recently visited Gen. Wrangel and concluded a satisfactory agreement.

The beginning of a strong liason between Poland and Gen. Wrangel also had been laid through military missions, it was added, and Gen. Pilsudski was said to favor sending a diplomatic mission to Gen. Wrangel to strengthen the bond.

DR. HYDE RESTRAINED FROM VISITING OR INTRUDING ON WIFE

Order Follows Plea of Mrs. Hyde in Connection With Divorce Suit Begun Saturday.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 5.—A temporary restraining order prohibiting Dr. B. Clark Hyde from visiting or intruding upon his wife, Mrs. Frances S. Hyde, of 3516 Forest avenue, who filed suit for divorce Saturday, was issued today by Judge Southern.

The order states that Dr. Hyde is restrained from "visiting, intruding in or about the plaintiff's residence, 3516 Forest avenue, and her present temporary abode, 4004 Troost avenue, and from visiting or accosting her or intruding himself into her presence wherever she may be, and from communicating with her or with the children, directly or by telephone, interfering with her possession of the children until further orders of the court."

The order is made returnable Oct. 11 before Judge Burkney, who will hear the case and pass upon a permanent restraining order.

The couple were married June 21, 1905, and lived together until Aug. 1, 1920.

In 1910 Dr. Hyde was found guilty of murdering Col. Thomas H. Swope, uncle of Mrs. Hyde. The Supreme Court ordered a new trial. After three trials the case finally was dropped, after seven years of litigation when the State and the Swope estate refused to finance it further.

"This, Madam, is the new package that makes tastier bouillon, sauces and gravies possible."

HAVEN'T you often tasted a cup of bouillon that seemed particularly good? And haven't you wondered why, at other times, the same kind of bouillon seemed flat and flavorless? The explanation is simply this:

Freshly made bouillon cubes contain full strength of flavor. Unless properly packed and protected, they lose their strength and tastiness.

The new four-fold Red Cross Bouillon Cube package keeps the cubes absolutely fresh. When you buy them they are as full of zest and tang and "savoriness" as when they left our factory.

Our patented machine wraps each cube first in wax paper, then in silver foil. They are then packed together in an air-tight waxed paper wrapper and label-wrapped.

No other cube is wrapped in this careful and sanitary way. It gives you a tasty, full-flavored cube—a cube that makes a better bouillon and gives to soups, sauces and gravies a more savory tang.

Serve Bouillon Oftener

Whenever an invigorating, refreshing drink is wanted, just drop one of these cubes into a cup of hot water. Ready in an instant.

Five individually wrapped cubes to the package.

REFORM PROGRAM IS ANNOUNCED BY SPANISH PREMIER

Changes to Be Made in Social and Economic Laws, and Attention Given to Industrial Conflicts, Dato Says.

TRANSPORTATION TO BE IMPROVED

Profiteering to Be Fought—Navy to Be Developed to "Meet Need of a Spanish Flag on All Seas."

By the Associated Press.

MADRID, Oct. 5.—Announcement of a governmental program of wide scope and of great importance was made by Premier Dato yesterday during a session of the Cabinet Council, at which King Alfonso presided. The Premier's ministrial declaration of policy stated, among other things, his intention to apply, when necessary, for full preventive and repressive measures, but he declared he would at the same time introduce reforms, remodel social and economic laws and pay close attention to the solution of industrial conflicts through the Ministry of Labor.

Bills are in preparation dealing with workmen's insurance and the housing problem, and plans have been made for the drafting of other measures regarding contracts between employers and workmen. The Premier promised the Institute of Social Reform would be made the Superior Council of Labor. Agricultural problems will be made the subject of new laws under the auspices of the Institute of Colonization, which deals with land legislation. The civil code will undergo alteration, with a view to modernize it. Development of the Spanish zone of Morocco, with respect to railroads, agriculture, mining, courts and and hospitals, will be undertaken vigorously, and an educational system will be established in which the creeds of the natives will be respected.

To Improve Railroads.

A complete plan for the reorganization and betterment of communications will be initiated, the Premier stated, bringing Spain's system of railroad lines in more direct touch with seaports, especially those trading with America. A railway rate bill will be presented to the Cortes which will authorize indispensable increases for the proper exploitation of the roads. At the same time, as the interests of the people must be cared for, rates affecting foodstuffs and articles of prime necessity will be kept down, he said.

Water power development will be undertaken and plans will be made to reach an agreement with Portugal relative to the use of waterfalls in the Tagus and Duero rivers. Similarly, a problem of afforestation and irrigation will be initiated.

Every effort will be directed to prevent profiteering, he declared, and the subject of the high cost of living will be diligently studied. Advancement of every class of the people will be sought by the Government in planning for the future development of educational facilities.

Organic Changes Possible.

Organic changes were foreshadowed by the Premier in his speech relative to the army and navy. He declared these changes would render them more efficient; that the time of service in the ranks would be reduced and reserves would be called upon more frequently to drill. More opportunities will be offered soldiers to gain promotions. The navy will be brought more in line with the requirements of Spain, as a maritime nation, which Senor Dato declared "needs a flag on all seas." Advantage of the lessons taught during the recent war will be taken by the Government in dealing with this branch of the service.

Financial reforms will be immediately begun, he said, to equalize revenues and expenditures. A new import tariff is being drafted to safeguard agricultural and industrial interests of Spain, at the same time making treaties of commerce with other nations easier to conclude, he added.

FISHERMAN FINDS CORN MASH

Part of Still Also Discovered Buried in Sand.

Four barrels of corn mash and a brass coil were found half buried in the sand at the water's edge on Steed Island in the Missouri River near St. Charles today by Charles Dunham, a fisherman. He notified Sheriff Grothe of St. Charles County, who informed the Federal authorities and officials of St. Louis County.

It is supposed that a still was in readiness for operation when the river rose rapidly and compelled its abandonment, and that part of it was washed away.

DIAZ, UNDER ARREST, MAY BE BANISHED

Prisoner Refuses to Leave Mexico of Own Volition but Will Not Resist Expulsion.

By the Associated Press.

VERA CRUZ, Mexico, Oct. 5.—Gen. Felix Diaz arrived here last night from Tlapacoyan, virtually the prisoner of Gen. Guadalupe Sanchez. No effort will be made, it is said, to convince Diaz that he should leave the country, provisional President de la Huerta having declared public opinion would not permit him to remain as a free citizen because of disapproval of his attitude toward the Government. Diaz, it is understood, will consent to leave the country of his own volition, but will not resist expulsion.

Gen. Diaz, who is a nephew of former President Porfirio Diaz, was taken when brought here. He is in custody in the hotel occupied by Gen. Sanchez, and is being treated with respect. Generals Luis Acosta and Silvino Diaz, with 30 men of Gen. Diaz's following, who were with him in the Hacienda Jobo, where Gen. Diaz had been staying since the commencement of his negotiations with Gen. Sanchez, concerning an agreement with the administration, accompanied their chief to Vera Cruz, but they are not prisoners.

Gen. Diaz was arrested by Gen. Mireles. Apparently there was some agreement by which Diaz was to surrender himself, for when Gen. Mireles, accompanied by Col. Vasquez Milano, presented himself at the Hacienda Jobo, he was received calmly and without surprise. Gen. Mireles informed Diaz that Gen. Sanchez desired him to go to Vera Cruz to continue the negotiations, as it was impossible to permit Diaz to stay longer in his hacienda.

Diaz replied that he could not go to Vera Cruz because of pending business transactions. He was told Gen. Mireles had an order for his arrest, the Government having decided it could not allow him to remain in the zone, as his presence encouraged the leaders of the Diaz troops to refuse to obey the orders of the Government, pays the salaries of these troops. Gen. Diaz said he would not offer resistance.

KITTY DONER LEADS ON ORPHEUM PROGRAM

Valerie Bergere Has a Clever Sketch and Rasso Is a Good Judge.

Kitty Doner, that paragon of boyish agility, assisted by her brother, Ted, and her "kid sister," Rose, fairly wins topline honors on this week's bill at the Orpheum. Of all the women of the stage who think they can wear a man's clothing and "get away with it," there is none who comes so near perfect accomplishment as this trim dancer whose athletic training has caused her frame to approach masculine muscularity, coupled with agility and suppleness that are amazing. Her reputation as a dancer is well founded, despite her slender underpinning. Rose Doner shows great promise, though there is, possibly a little too much youthful abandon in her "vamp" dancing. Ted Doner sings in a pleasant voice, and also does some clever dancing. It is a bright little family.

Valerie Bergere, a sterling emotional actress with a vein of humor, has an appealing sketch entitled "The Moth." The theme is not new, but it is well handled. The plot turns on a wife who plans to elope with a rich villain, but is saved by a timely accident and awakens to a realization that the only man she loves is her husband.

Signor Friscoe plays the marimbaphone in competition with a well-known make of phonograph, and Al. Plantadosi puts over some of his own songs with the "plugging" aid of Bert Walton. Rasso is a remarkably clever juggler. Irving Newhoff and Dode Phelps are back with a new budget of ragtime songs. Herbert Clifton is an "impersonator," and there is a trained dog act.

600 DISABLED SOLDIERS TO HEAR GOV. COX SPEAK

Arrangements Being Made to Convey Them From Government Hospital to Coliseum.

Arrangements are being made by the Democratic City Committee to enable disabled soldiers in the Government hospital on Arsenal street to hear Gov. Cox when he speaks at the Coliseum next Monday night. James J. Griffin, John E. Clooney and E. B. Alexander were appointed to arrange transportation for them, and 600 seats will be reserved for them.

Chairman Mestres said that if satisfactory arrangements could not be made with the United Railways, citizens would be asked to permit the use of their automobiles.

The City Committee also has ordered 1000 seats reserved for labor unions, 1000 for newspaper men of St. Louis and the surrounding territory and 1000 for members of the city and State Democratic organizations. No other seats will be set aside.

MISS LA RUE TO SING HER OWN COMPOSITION

"Salutation of the Dawn," Which She Put to Music, Will Be Given at Benefit.

One of the principal numbers which Miss Grace La Rue will sing at her Post-Dispatch Milk Fund benefit song recital Friday afternoon at the American Theater will be "Salutation of the Dawn." The words of this number are familiar to many since they are taken from the Sanskirt, but the music is a recent composition of her own. She first heard the particular version of the poem which she sings when on the Olympic returning from war work. It so strongly appealed to her that she immediately set about seeking a composer who would fit appropriate music to the words for her, but, failing to find one who seemed to understand just what she wanted, finally set it to music herself.

She tells an amusing incident concerning the first time she gave this number a place on her program. Feeling that she had entered enough fields of public notice by her singing, dancing and acting, she decided she would not presume by advertising her venture into the field of song writing, so left the composer's namespace blank. Shortly afterward she received a letter from a man who said he had written the music and indignantly inquired why she did not give him credit for the composition.

Other numbers on Miss La Rue's program will include, "Who'll Buy My Flowers?" one of the three songs which she sings in the comedy, "Dear Me," in which she is appearing with Hale Hamilton at the American Theater this week; "One Fine Day," from "Madame Butterfly," and "Your Eyes Have Told Me So," the song which she popularized in previous seasons.

William Conway, who will be at the piano for Miss La Rue, is not without his own record of musical achievement, having played accompaniments for Melba and done acceptable work in the East. He is a Heidelberg man, and this is his first season with Miss La Rue.

As stated in previous issues of the Post-Dispatch, the entire proceeds of the special matinee Friday afternoon will go to the Post-Dispatch Pure Milk and Free Ice Fund. Both Miss La Rue and Mr. Conway are donating their services, and the managers of the American Theater have contributed the use of the house.

Tickets for the matinee are being disposed of rapidly by a force of young women workers throughout the business district, and are on sale at the American Theater box office at 50 cents, 75 cents and $1.

MAN JUMPS TO DEATH AT CITY SANITARIUM DURING WIFE'S VISIT

Frank Koch Leaps From Fourth Floor Window When Walking Through Hall With Wife.

Frank Koch, 36 years old, of 1431 North Park place, a patient at the City Sanitarium, ended his life in the presence of his wife, Anna, of 3939A Greer avenue, by leaping from a fourth floor window at the sanitarium at 5p. m. yesterday. He was dead when picked up, his skull having been fractured.

Koch was admitted to the institution July 2 last. Yesterday afternoon, police were told, the wife visited the institution and was allowed to take her husband for a walk on the grounds. They had returned to the building and were walking through a hallway on the fourth floor when he leaped through an open window in the hall.

BOY, 5, BURNED BY PLAYMATES WHO "DID NOT LIKE HIM"

By the Associated Press.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Oct. 5.—Edward Pillar, 5 years old, has an even chance to recover at the city hospital from burns inflicted by playmates who "did not like him." Physicians this morning said the boy may pull through.

Edward and other children were playing in front of his home when a quarrel arose. The elder boys seized him and held him while another threw lighted matches on his clothes. His mother saw them and rushed to her son's assistance. She tore the burning clothing from the lad's body and summoned the police ambulance.

Police are searching for the other boys.

Embarrassing Hairs Can Be Quickly Removed

(Beauty Culture)

Hairs can be easily banished from the under-arms, neck and face by this quick, painless method: Mix into a stiff paste some powdered delatone and water, spread on hairy surface and in 2 or 3 minutes rub off, wash the skin and it will be free from hair or blemish. Excepting in very stubborn growths, one application is sufficient. To avoid disappointment, buy the delatone in an original package and mix fresh.

YOUTH HIT BY TRUCK AT FACTORY DIES

Cecil Lee, Whose Right Leg Was Crushed in East St. Louis Accident, Succumbs.

Cecil Lee, 20 years old, of 1817 Broadway, East St. Louis, an employe of the Certain-Teed Products Co., East St. Louis plant, Seventeenth street and the Southern Railroad, died last midnight at St. Mary's Hospital, East St. Louis, of shock resulting from injuries suffered at 5:30 p. m. yesterday when an automobile truck of the Certain-Teed Products Co. hit him at the company premises. Lee's right leg was crushed in the accident.

Mrs. Alice LeVec of 5929 McPherson avenue, and her two children, Mary, 3 years old, and Pierre, 18 months old, were cut and bruised and suffered from shock when thrown from an automobile parked in front of 5247 Delmar boulevard when it was hit by an automobile driven by Stephen R. Griswold, 511 Market street, a printer, who was being pursued by Patrolman Lutker after he is said to have overrun the policeman's traffic signals at King's highway and Delmar boulevard.

The collision stopped Griswold's flight and he was arrested charged with careless driving and failing to comply with the signals.

Edward Anderson, 46, of 6254 Enright avenue, suffered a fractured thigh and internal injuries when struck by an automobile driven by Raymond E. Williford, 5870 Highland avenue, in front of 6131 Delmar boulevard. Williford told the police Anderson stepped from behind an automobile parked at the curb directly in the path of his machine.

John Hobard, 41, of 2616 North Eleventh street, suffered scalp wounds and internal injuries when knocked down by a motor cycle ridden by Henry Marshall, 717 North Jefferson avenue, a negro, in front of 2623 North Twelfth street.

William J. Brown, 23, of Carlinville, Ill., was knocked down by an automobile driven by Lester H. Meidner, 4229 Page boulevard, at High street and Lucas avenue, suffering cuts and bruises. Meidner said he had swerved his machine to avoid the fire department apparatus when it skidded on the wet street and struck Brown.

—Easy to Care For —Easy to Buy Fuel For

This heater is reasonably priced and is sold on easy payments by most dealers.

It is easy to care for because it does not require constant replenishing with fuel,—it will go unattended for 24 hours. The feed-door is large and convenient.

It is easy to buy fuel for because it burns the cheaper fuels such as soft coal and slack as well as hard coal, coke, and wood.

And because of its special construction, it burns smoke soot, and gases, which usually go up the chimney, producing one-third more heat with one-third less fuel.

GERMANS INSIST THAT ALLIES FIX REPARATIONS AT GENEVA

Gerhard von Mutius, Head of German Financial Delegation, States Position in Paris.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Oct. 5.—Germany will expect the allies to keep the promise given at Spa that the total sum of reparations to be demanded of Germany shall be fixed at the Geneva conference this autumn, Gerhard von Mutius, head of the German financial delegation in Paris, informed the Associated Press yesterday. To prepare the basis, he said, there probably would be direct but informal negotiations between French and German experts.

Neither the time or place of the meeting, nor any of the details of such conversations regarding reparations, Herr von Mutius declared, had been determined upon and it was learned in other quarters it might be considered desirable to avoid publicity in connection with the direct negotiations because the strong pressure of public opinion in both countries might make the task of reaching an agreement more difficult.

NEGOTIATIONS BETWEEN U. S. AND JAPAN PROGRESSING FAVORABLY

Extent of Publicity for Present as to Status of Situation on California Issue.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5.—Meso Hanihara, the Japanese Vice Foreign Minister, will be able to report to the standing committee of the opposition party of the House of Peers next Monday, if he responds to the committee summons, that the negotiations between the United States and Japan regarding the status of Japanese in California are progressing favorably.

The Vice Minister is not expected to go beyond that statement, as it is understood to be a "matter" of agreement between the two Governments that nothing shall be given publicity except by mutual consent until the negotiations are concluded.

The State Department has consistently declined to make any disclosures regarding the progress of the negotiations, and consequently it is expected that Hanihara will feel equally bound not to open the negotiations to public discussion and criticism while these are still unsettled.

MEXICAN HIGH COMMISSIONER RESIGNS AND WILL LEAVE U. S.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5.—Unable to accomplish his mission to the United States, that of settling all differences between this country and Mexico, Fernando Iglesias Calderon, Mexican High Commissioner to Washington, has resigned and plans to return to Mexico City within a week. He has notified the State Department of his intentions, and says he will be accompanied by the entire mission staff of experts who came here with him. Calderon has been elected to the Mexican Senate and will take his seat in that body immediately after his return to the Mexican capital.

At the State Department it was said that the official acts preliminary to recognition of the new Mexican Government by the United States must be performed in Mexico and that Government must demonstrate its willingness and ability to fulfill its international obligations.

Urban Shocker Married in August.

It became known today that Urban Shocker, pitcher for the Browns, was secretly married Aug. 12 at Edwardsville, Ill., to Mrs. Elizabeth Kamp, 30 years old, of St. Louis. The issuance of the license was not made public at the time by County Clerk C. J. Blattner at Edwardsville at Shocker's request, because he did not want to be teased by his teammates.

NOW IS THE TIME TO BUY

LOWER PRICES ON GARDNER CARS AND THE REASON WHY

GARDNER MOTOR CAR — SPEAKS FOR ITSELF

There is no business reason why, but there is a very sig sentimental reason—the great American public demands it. Right or wrong, they say that the high cost of living must come down. They are impatient. They won't wait for a proper adjustment from the bottom up, but insist that prices on finished articles, as well as food and other farm products, should be reduced in price—and that at once.

The time for action is here. The Gardner Motor Company has joined with a large number of motor car builders and made a big reduction in the selling price of their product with a view of assisting in the good work at a heavy financial loss to themselves.

In fact, we are willing to co-operate and to run our entire plant, if necessary, for months at a big sacrifice in an effort to try and bring order out of chaos, keep our organization intact, carry out our contracts dollar for dollar.

We have over ten million dollars' worth of merchandise on the way and in over thirty-three years of manufacturing experience we have never repudiated a contract or canceled one—and we don't want to begin now, if we can help it.

Losses must be borne good naturedly and at once, and let us hope that soon "business as usual" will be the slogan everywhere.

There have been no inflated prices in automobiles and it is very unjust to say that certain other companies have unfairly priced their product. I doubt that a single builder has varied very much from the other fellow in computing costs and profits.

As for the GARDNER LIGHT FOUR now listed at our new price of $1195.00, it will be sold by us at actual cost of production, and I believe that the same can be said of any other makers who have lately reduced their price.

So, Mr. Reader, if you have in mind buying an automobile any time soon, it behooves you to get busy at once. You can feel absolutely sure that "bed rock" has been reached on the GARDNER LIGHT FOUR and no further reductions can or will be made.

The GARDNER LIGHT FOUR is not a war product and the old price included only a very modest profit. We confidently assert that the new price is now so low that we furnish the best 100% of motor car value on the market today.

Doing Away with Chance in Children's Hosiery

CHILDREN are hard on stockings, at best. The least your dealer can do is to give you children's hosiery of known value—full size, shapely, and good for at least a normal period of wear.

Probably once upon a time you got some of this exceptional Black Cat Hosiery for your children. Did you get the same thing the next time you went back to the store? Or were you forced to take something out of a mixed stock?

This practice of mixing hosiery stocks is nothing but a habit of the average dealer's mind. The real merchant broke away from it years ago. Thousands of stores are concentrating on Allen A Black Cat Hosiery as their one great standardized line.

Allen A Black Cat Hosiery has been made in the same great Mills for thirty years. Each pair will in the future be stamped "Allen A"—the Maker's personal pledge to you of uniform quality and dependable value.

"Allen"—the name of the Makers; and "A"—the standard mark of first and finest grade. Tell your dealer to concentrate on Allen A Black Cat Hosiery—keeping up his assortment and sizes, buying from the Mills direct.

Seen under a powerful magnifying glass an unstropped razor blade looks like a saw edge

Stropping keeps the tiny teeth of the blade in perfect alignment—provides a smooth, keen edge for every shave

No pull, no scrape - a fine, keen edge for every shave

No skill necessary

No skill in stropping is needed to renew the fine keen edge of the AutoStrop Razor blade. Just slip the strop through the razor head and pass the razor back and forth along the strop. You don't have to take the razor apart nor even remove the blade.

Like the leaf of a book

The AutoStrop Razor blade opens for cleaning like the leaf of a book. To clean, simply rinse and dry. No parts to unscrew—nothing to take apart and reassemble. The same lever that releases the blade also adjusts it for close, medium or light shaving.

ONLY a dulled or dulling razor blade pulls and scrapes. If your razor drags, if it irritates the skin, you can be sure of one thing—you are using a blade that has lost its new, sharp edge.

Do you know why shaving dulls a razor edge so quickly? Look at any razor blade under a microscope and you will see hundreds of tiny saw teeth, invisible to the naked eye. When these teeth are in perfect alignment the blade is sharp. But during the very first shave your beard bends these tiny teeth out of line—makes them irregular.

These irregular teeth catch in your beard, pull on the hair follicles, and—if you bear down hard to make the blade cut through—scrape the skin. That's what makes shaving so annoying, so unpleasant.

With most safety razors there is no way to smooth the minute teeth back into line. The original smooth, fine edge of the blade grows rougher with every shave. Too many men accept the pull and scrape of fast dulling blades as inevitable.

Yet the discomfort of a blade that pulls and scrapes can be eliminated if you use the AutoStrop Razor—the only safety razor that strops its own blades.

Built right into the frame of the AutoStrop Razor is a remarkable self-stropping device, simple and efficient, which renews the fine, keen edge of the AutoStrop blade day after day.

A safety razor and stropping device combined

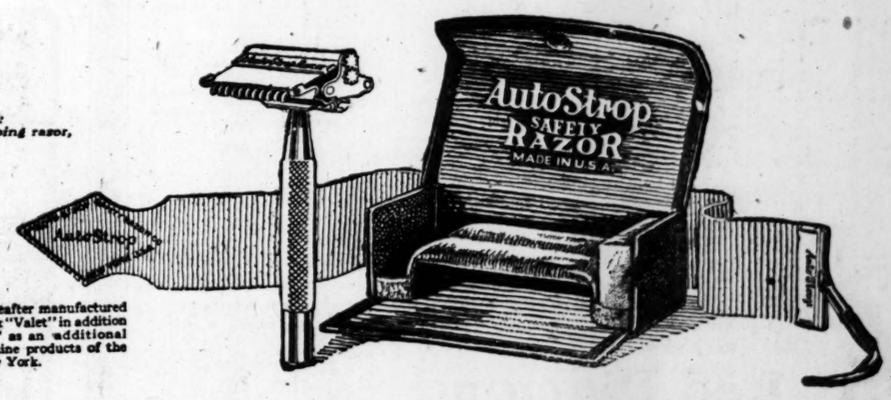

You don't have to take the razor apart nor even remove the blade. Insert the strop through the razor head; and slide the razor to and fro along the strop. The blade turns over and slaps down on the strop at the end of each stroke just as the blade of a straight razor does in the hands of a skilful barber. In 10 seconds you have a new, sharp shaving edge! 500 comfortable shaves are guaranteed from each dozen AutoStrop blades!

For cleaning, the blade of the AutoStrop Razor opens like the leaf of a book. Rinse and dry—that's all there is to it. The same lever that releases the blade also adjusts it for close, medium or light shaving.

In fact the whole AutoStrop Razor is so simply, so efficiently built that it sharpens, shaves and cleans without taking the razor apart or removing the blade. No other safety razor offers this advantage.

Don't put up any longer with the pull and scrape of unstropped blades. Begin tomorrow to get the comfort of a new, sharp shaving edge every morning. Ask your dealer about the AutoStrop Razor trial plan.

Standard set consists of:
silver-plated, self-stropping razor, selected leather strop, twelve blades,
all in neat leather case

On razors, strops, blades, etc., hereafter manufactured by us we shall apply the trade mark "Valet" in addition to the trade mark "AutoStrop" as an additional indication that they are the genuine products of the AutoStrop Safety Razor Co., New York.

15 CRAFTS IN BUILDING TRADES NOT TO SEEK HIGHER WAGES

Workers in Chicago Respond to Appeal in Campaign to Bring About Building of More Homes.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Oct. 5.—Fifteen of 48 trades affiliated with the Building Trades Council have responded favorably to an appeal sent out by the council not to ask for higher wages when present contracts expire, George Myers, appearing for Simon O'Donnell, the organization's president, told the Chicago Real Estate Board yesterday.

The board is conducting an active campaign to build more homes and has sought co-operation of workmen, bankers and material men. Lumbermen declared, however, that they saw no prospects for further cuts in lumber prices.

BISHOP JOHNSON RETURNS

Attended Lambeth Conference and Visited Battlefields.

Bishop Frederick F. Johnson, coadjutor bishop of the Episcopal diocese of Missouri, has returned from London, where he attended the Lambeth conference of bishops of the Anglican and Episcopal churches. He was made a member of the committee on Christian reunion.

After leaving London Bishop Johnson visited France and saw Rheims and the adjoining battlefields. He was impressed with the spirit shown by the French people in the devastated district, in undertaking reconstruction work.

You'll Say It Too—"They're Better"

Do You Unknowingly Deprive Yourself of Sleep's Benefits?

ONCE in every twenty-four hours, you literally turn your body, brain and nerves over to Mother Nature for repair.

¶ Few people understand that this is the real purpose of sleep. Nor do they realize that the tissue and cell renewing functions which take place within the body during sleep can be materially impaired by a mattress which is not suited to the individual physical characteristics of the sleeper.

¶ The sleeping conditions afforded by the Sealy Sanitary Tuftless Mattress are pre-eminently the most favorable to the nightly process of repair. It is designed with special relation to the functions of sleep as affected by the contact between the mattress and the body.

What the Body Requires During the Sleep Period

¶ In order for the process of repair to go on uninterruptedly during sleep, the body must be wholly free from tension and pressure.

¶ To insure these benefits, it is highly essential that uniform contact should exist between the body and the mattress. And this is precisely what the Sanitary Tuftless Sealy brings about.

¶ Its permanently resilient, Tuftless surface rises soothingly to "fill in" the arches of the back, and "gives" with such ease of resistance where the body indents itself into the mattress as to relieve that sense of pressure which the ordinary mattress develops.

A Single Undulating Batt Inseparably Interwoven

¶ The Sanitary Tuftless Sealy is not only noteworthy for its comfort and its specific relation to the functional requirements of sleep but also because it never really grows old.

¶ This is because it consists of a single giant batt of long-fibre cotton, inseparably interwoven by the Exclusive Sealy Air Weave Process.

¶ When completed, this batt stands five feet high. It is then pressed down, inserted into and released within the covering to the softness and generous depth of the mattress. An occasional sun bath such as all mattresses require, permanently preserves the original undulating Sealy qualities.

Old Fashioned Quality Rigorously Maintained

¶ The custom, inaugurated by the Sealy Mattress Company nearly a half century ago, of using only the highest grade cotton available is today rigorously maintained.

The Power of an Outspoken "YES"

The Gillette Safety Razor Company—largest of its kind in the world—was founded upon an idea. An idea so fundamental that it has changed the personal habits of a generation of men.

It was the idea of a personal shaving service—of putting into a man's own hands a razor that would shave him better and quicker and more satisfactorily than he had ever shaved before.

Out in the lumber camps of Michigan, down in the cotton fields of the South, in the heart of the big city, in the country village—the first Gillettes found their way into the hands of men who were on the lookout for better things—men who were not content with all the habits their fathers and grandfathers had passed down to them.

These men tried out the Gillette—found in it what they were looking for.

They found that it gave them the service they had always expected of a razor and had never received.

They talked about their discovery. They passed on the idea to their neighbors. They gave it their outspoken approval.

Today twenty million men of all classes, in every country on earth, are actively standing behind the Gillette—coming out publicly in favor of it—making it an issue in their personal affairs.

They are men of conviction, of ideas—who believe in the Gillette for what it does and what it has done for other men—and who refuse to shave or be shaved with any other kind of razor.

Outspoken approval on the part of users is the greatest power in business today.

The reason, perhaps, why more than a quarter of a million merchants in this country prefer to be known as "Gillette Dealers" rather than by any other title.

Win or Lose in the World's Series, the Robins Are Sure to Feather Their Nests

KONEY MISJUDGES HIGH FLY IN SUN THEN HURLS WILD

Former Cardinal's Hard Luck Starts Cleveland on Road to Two Runs—Both Teams Held to Few Hits by Good Hurling.

By the Associated Press.

EBBETS' FIELD, BROOKLYN, N. Y., Oct. 5.—The Clevelands, the American League leaders, toppled over Brooklyn by a score of 3 to 1 today, in the first game of the world's series. The National League champions were helpless before the mystifying slants of the big spitball pitcher, Coveleskie. He was given sterling support by the Clevelands, especially Speaker, who ranged far and near, robbing the hapless Brooklyns of seeming hits.

O'Neill starred at the bath, with two doubles.

The official attendance was 23,894.

First Inning.

CLEVELAND—Evans up. Ball one. Strike one. Foul, strike two. Evans out, Olson to Konetchy. Wambsganss up. Foul, strike one. Wamby bunted, but the ball rolled foul, strike two. Wamby flied out to Wheat, who had to come in fast to make the catch. Speaker got a hand when he came up. Strike one. Ball one. Foul, strike two. Speaker struck out, and the crowd gave Marquard a big cheer. NO RUNS, NO HITS, NO ERRORS.

BROOKLYN—Olson up. Olson flied to Wood, hitting the first ball pitched. Johnston up. Strike one. Foul, strike two. Foul. Ball one. Johnston struck out, Coveleskie's spitball being too much for him. Griffith up. Sewell threw out Griffith at first. NO RUNS, NO HITS, NO ERRORS.

Second Inning.

CLEVELAND—Burns up. Burns sent up a high fly, which fell behind Koney, who picked up the ball and threw into left field. Burns scored. Gardner up. Strike one. Foul strike two. Ball one. Olson threw out Gardner at first. Wood up. Ball one. Ball two. Strike one. Ball three. Ball four. Wood walked. Sewell up. The man who took Chapman's place got a cheer. Marquard tried to catch Wood off first. Strike one. Ball one. Sewell singled to right field, Wood going to third. O'Neill up. Strike one. Ball one. Ball two. Wood scored on O'Neill's double to left field, Sewell going to third. Mamaux warmed up for Brooklyn. Coveleskie up. Strike one. Coveleskie grounded out to Konetchy, and Sewell, attempting to score, was run down, the play being Koney to Krueger to Johnston. TWO RUNS, THREE HITS, ONE ERROR.

BROOKLYN—Wheat up. Ball one. Foul, strike one. Wheat flied to Speaker, who made a wonderful catch. Myers up. Strike one. Strike two. Ball one. Myers flied to Wood, who picked the ball off the wall. Koney up. Koney out. Sewell to Burns. NO RUNS, NO HITS, NO ERRORS.

Third Inning.

CLEVELAND—Evans up. Ball one, ball two, ball three, ball four. Evans walked. Wamby up. Wamby sacrificed, Johnston to Konetchy. Speaker up. Strike one, ball one, ball two. Speaker flied to Wheat. INDIANS BEAT DODGERS, 3-1, IN OPENING GAME OF WORLD TITLE SERIES the plate at the time he recovered it. Olson made a snappy pickup and threw to second. Koney redeemed himself by starting the double play that retired the side.

Great Catch by Speaker.

Speaker brought the crowd up standing with his catch of the drive with which Wheat opened the Brooklyn's second. Burns had to reach up on the fence to grab Myers' fly and the two hard licks in succession drove Gardner to the pitchers' hill to say a few words to the hurler. It may have helped some, for Koney died a peaceful death from short to first.

Cleveland's third inning was strictly baseball. It included a pass to Evans, a sacrifice by Wamby and a cleanup effort by Speaker, which ended in a long line drive to Wheat. Then Burns tapped to Johnson who elected to go after Evans, between third and second, and got him without much trouble.

Brooklyn made its nearest approach to a hit when Kilduff sent one to Sewell, whose throw beat him to first in an eyelash finish.

Wood doubled in fourth with a long drive that reached the bleacher fence on the first bound. Then, after Sewell had died on a long fly to center, O'Neill bounced one off the right field for his second double and Wood scored the first earned run.

Olson opened the fourth with a Texas leaguer over second and Wamby failed to reach.

Robins Narrowly Miss Scoring.

There were wild appeals to Johnson to push Olson along, but instead he forced him out. Griffith, however, obliged with a clean single to second, but quick fielding held Johnson at second. Wheat's fly to short left center looked dangerous, but Evans got it after a desperate race, with Speaker almost snatching it out of his hands. Myers' drive was just a trifle short to score the two runs that the Robins had on the bases, the Cleveland fielder backing up to the wall for it.

This inning showed the nearest approach to a punch the Brooklyn had yet developed.

The best fielding play of the game thus far was Griffith's catch of Speaker's drive to the fence, he having to back up to the wall and reach a yard in the air to get it.

The Last of Marquard.

It looked like Marquard was getting good again, in the sixth, retiring the enemy on strikeouts and an outfield fly; bu Robby wanted hits, so he sent Lamar in to bat for Rube. For a flash it apeared that Lamar would make good, but Sewell climbed high and snatched down a line drive. It hurt, because Olson followed with a clean single to center. Johnston sacrificed him along, but Griffith could only dump one in front of the plate and Coveleskie nailed him at first.

Mamaux succeeded Rube on the mound and, as an opener, fanned Sewell. Mamaux made a clean sweep of it by also fanning Coveleskie. Then the Brooklyn fans had their best chance of the game to roar.

Mamaux's work seemed to hearten the Robins, too, for Wheat opened the seventh with a smack to the wall in right center for a double for which eventuated in a Brooklyn run.

Brooklyn's switch to a right-handed pitcher was met by Speaker, who sent Jamieson in to bat for Evans in the eighth and to play in left.

Sisler Greater Than Ruth, 1920 Averages Prove

Besides World's Record for Number of Hits, Brownie Led in Total Bases.

George Sisler, the Browns' star, and leading batter of the American League, with an average of .409, according to unofficial figures, proved the real shining light of the late baseball campaign, both locally and nationally.

Besides rapping out 258 hits and setting a new world's record, Sisler scored 136 runs and drove in 127. He also stole 39 bases. Sisler's hits the past season included 49 doubles, 18 triples and 19 home runs, for a record of 400 total bases. This makes Sisler the leader in this line, as Ruth, despite his 54 home runs, had a total of only 377 bases.

The immortal Ty Cobb is no longer in Sisler's class.

Rogers Hornsby's figure in leading the Cardinals was .367 for 149 games. He had 217 hits and drove in 97 runs.

The leading pitchers for the local teams were Urban Shocker and Bill Doak. Shocker finished with 22-10 and Doak with 20-12. Between them, Shocker and Davis won 40 games for the Browns, while they lost only 22.

Indians, When Good, Are Very Very Good; but When They Are Bad They Are Horrid—Evans

American League Umpire and Manager Connie Mack Both Intimate Cleveland Is a Great but Erratic Ball Club—Picks It to Trim Brooklyn.

By Billy Evans,
American League Umpire.

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—In April, Connie Mack picked Cleveland to win the American League pennant. The Indians have delivered as per Mr. Mack's belief. In October, Connie is picking Cleveland to win the world's series. Will they again justify the opinion of the wise Mr. Mack?

I finished the American League season at Washington on Sunday. The Athletics opposed the Senators. Coming over from Washington to New York it so happened that Connie and I had adjoining seats in the chair car.

"Well, Cleveland had a strenuous season of it," remarked Connie. "They just did manage to stagger across the line a winner. It is too bad the pennant couldn't have been cinched a bit sooner. Cleveland is a pretty badly tired ball club. A few days of rest from the strain that the club has been playing under all season, which was greatly increased by the Chapman tragedy, would have helped the boys some."

"What do you think of Cleveland's chances to beat Brooklyn?" I asked. "Don't you think the Indians have their work cut out for them?"

"I will be disappointed if Cleveland does not win," replied Connie.

Mack Praises Speaker.

"Speaker has a pretty good ball club, not a great club, but plenty good enough, I think, to beat Brooklyn. Speaker has proven to me that he is a great manager. He has driven his club to the limit, got every bit of playing strength out of his team, yet has been able to keep perfect harmony and a proper fighting spirit on the club. The Cleveland club has great possibilities. I have seen the Indians play a brand of ball that would be hard to beat. It does not play that kind of ball all the time, because there are some players who are inclined to be a bit erratic. If the Cleveland club gets away on the right foot, and Speaker is able to drive his men through the series, as he did through the season, I am confident that another world's championship will be the American League's portion.

"Cleveland is the better balanced ball club," continued the astute Mr. Mack. "While I am not strong for the man-to-man comparison, because often players fail to run true to form, yet such a line of reasoning greatly favors the Indians. It is strong back of the bat, which is very essential in a world's series. O'Neill is a great catcher. Gardner at third is one of the best 'money' players in the game, while Speaker is an outfield in himself.

Mack Likes Recruit Sewell.

"A lot of people are expecting Cleveland to be weak at shortstop. A good many feel that the recruit Sewell will 'blow;' but I don't feel at all that way. I like this chap Sewell very much. True, he is inexperienced, but he has plenty of courage, and that goes a long way in a world's series. The Cleveland club can hit, and under Speaker's direction it has played a snappy, intelligent game.

"Perhaps Brooklyn has a slight shade in pitching, but not nearly as much as the critics would have us believe. Whatever shade there is lies in quantity rather than quality."

I was much impressed with what Connie Mack said. In a measure, it bore out to a great extent my opinion of the Cleveland ball club. It is a pretty fair team that has been superbly handled. When it looks good it is just about the greatest looking aggregation in the world. However, it is a club that can look about equally bad at times, although these occasions are greatly in the minority.

Brooklyn is not going to face a club that uses a stereotyped style of play. The Indians mix them up, do the unexpected, and often get away with it. I look for the Cleveland club to play snappy, intelligent baseball, for that is the only kind that Speaker tolerates. I have no fear for the Cleveland club from a managerial standpoint. Speaker will take good care of that department.

SPORT SALAD

BY L. C. Davis

WITH RESPECTS TO THE MIKADOUGH.

ON a bench at the ball park a ball player sat
With his willow, his willow, his willow.
He spat on his hands and he went to the bat
With his willow, his willow, his willow.
He fractured the air with the force of his blow.
Then straight to his home he proceeded to go,
Where he shortly discovered a large roll of dough
'Neath his pillow, his pillow, his pillow.

Said I to that ballplayer, "What do you bat
With your willow, your willow,
your willow?"
Said he, "I'm not hitting the size of my hat
With my willow, my willow, my willow."
Then the ball coming over as big as a church,
Three times at the pellet he made a wild lurch,
Then hurrying home instituted a search
'Neath his pillow, his pillow, his pillow.

Said I to that ballplayer, "Fie upon you!
And your willow, your willow,
your willow.
I wonder if that is the best you can do
With your willow, your willow,
your willow."
Said he with a sob as he looked at the score,
"I can't get my eye on the pill any more.
But of late I've been batting 5000 or more
With my pillow, my pillow, my pillow!"

PRETTY SOFT.

Some ballplayers seem to think it is easier to feather their nests with a pillow than by playing it straight.

But the man on the sandbox says uneasy lies the head when there is a wad of tainted dough under the pillow.

Cleveland may lose the world's series, but Ohio still will have Cox and Harding to fall back upon.

NOT SO BAD.

While the local season didn't exactly end in a blaze of glory, the Browns finished in first division and George Sisler and Rogers Hornsby lead their respective leagues in batting. Every little bit helps.

Not overlooking the work of the money changers who had a banner season in the box office.

Not tooting our own horn or anything, but we'll leave it to anybody if we didn't claim all along that it looked like first division.

As the curtain is about to ascend on the world's series the Indians seem to have a shade.

THE VEILED PROPHET.

We gave our seat on the sandbox this morning to our old friend the Veiled Prophet. The old boy declined to discuss the world's series other than to say that while Wilbert Robinson seemed to have a fat chance, Speaker might have something to say about it.

With reference to last year's debacle, the V. P. said he was so busy with the Veiled Prophet's ball that he didn't have time to investigate the brand of veiled profits ball being pulled off by certain ballplayers.

Charley Ebbets says that there will be no band at the world's series. We trust, however, that the crooks and gamblers will be banned.

Soccer Meeting Thursday.

A meeting of the Municipal Soccer League will be held at Community Center Hall, Grand and Vista, Thursday night, when plans for the coming season will be discussed.

Complete Billiken Squad Prepares For Tiger Game

Defeat of Rose Poly Makes St. Louis U. Optimistic as to Outcome of Game Next Saturday.

St. Louis University football forces moved over to Sportsman's Park yesterday afternoon and will practice there for the remainder of the season. Because the first day of moving was largely taken up with converting the diamond into a gridiron, the Billikens were able to get in only a few licks at preparation for the Missouri University eleven, which calls Saturday.

Last week the Blue and White directorate was rather pessimistic about the advent of the Tigers, but there is now a new spirit at the Grand avenue camp. The Billikens feel that they can defeat Miller's men, since they turned back the Rose Poly team last Saturday with a makeshift lineup.

The squad became complete, yesterday, with the appearance of Thornton, a halfback, who played on the 1918 team, but was absent from last year's play. Drace is another backfield candidate who is back in the fold, and it would not be surprising if either of these men broke into the backfield quartet this week. Drace was one of the best ground-gainers last year.

Line Needs Attention.

It is not the backfield that worries Coach Rademacher. The line will come in for the most attention this week, because 1920 graduatations left a number of weak spots on the forward defense. The forwards should look better against the State school forces, however, because four of the players who faced Rose Poly had the advantage of only three days of preliminary training. These were Webb, Kotkis, Meinhardt and Grone.

Preparations for the game include the erection of 50 boxes on the side of the field opposite the grand stand. These will be sold at $2.50 a seat. Grand stand boxes will bring $2 and general admission $1.50. Tickets are on sale at Leacock's, Spalding's and Baldwin Piano Co.

Officials for the game will be Don Henry, Kenyon College; Ed Cochrane, Kalamazoo College, and Edgar Meek, Kansas University.

Pikers Take Light Drill.

Things were being taken rather easily at Francis Field, as there is nothing in particular to hurry about. The Drury College Panthers of Springfield, Mo., call Saturday, and this game should not extend the Pikers to their utmost. Consequently, Coach Rider ran his squad through a light drill and then told them their faults as evidenced against Rolla.

The players came out of the Rolla mixup in good condition, with the exception of Ollie Kraehe, who showed a cut eye and a bruised hand. Ed Kleiber, who has been out of the game for two weeks, got his first bit of work when he ran through signals with the squad. Russell Deeds is still on the sidelines.

Matthew Brown, the new assistant coach, is expected to arrive on the Pikeway campus today. Brown has a reputation which bespeaks untold powers as an athlete and coach. He was graduated from Syracuse in 1917. While at the New York school he was a halfback and was named on the All-American by a number of critics. He also holds a number of Syracuse track and field records. Later he played professional baseball and coached the Horace Mann High School team to the "prep" basketball championship of New York. Brown is 30 years old, and weighs about 175 pounds.

THREE A. L. MAGNATES CONFER WITH COMISKEY

CHICAGO, Oct. 5.—Col. L. T. Huston and Jacob Ruppert, owners of the New York American League Club, and Harry Frazee of the Boston Americans, are en route to Chicago for a conference with Charles A. Comiskey, owner of the White Sox, and other baseball officials, in connection with the gambling scandal, it was learned today. The meeting will be held this afternoon.

The four baseball magnates represent the American League minority which, until peace was declared at the league meeting last spring, opposed President Ban Johnson.

Frazee recently proposed that every club owner in the league give Comiskey a player to replace the men suspended following the return of true bills charging them with accepting bribes to throw the 1919 world's series.

Leonard Stops Britt.

HARTFORD, Conn., Oct. 5.—Benny Leonard, lightweight champion of the world, scored a technical knockout over Frankie Britt of New Bedford, Mass.

Here's a Scandal That Makes Last Year's Look Silly, Writes Lardner

"It Is My Sickening Duty to Expose It to Try to Keep Baseball Clean and Also for the Sake of the Wife and Kiddies"—"Cootery" of Gamblers on Hand.

By Ring W. Lardner.

BROOKLYN, Oct. 5.

ON the eve of the comeing world serious between the Indians vs. the Robins it becomes my sickening duty to explode a baseball scandal that makes last year's look silly. This scandal has been commen gossip amist fans, ballplayers and newspaper men for the last 10 yrs. but it remains for the writer to publish the proof and bring the matter to the partially deef ears of the Natl Commission.

The facts as far as I been able to learn them is as follows: The Johnston playing on the Cleveland nine is a full brother to the Johnston that plays with the Brooklyn eleven.

Some of the evidents is circumstantial but some of it can be found in any high class cyclopedia. I will put down the former 1st. The Johnston bros. is both of them blondes and both got good teeth. They both spell their name with a small t. They was both born in Tennessee, Doc in Chattanooga and Jim in Cleveland. The fact that Doc aint called by his real name which is Wheeler and the fact that Jim was born in Cleveland and is now playing with Brooklyn is both of them suspicious. Doc was born in 1889. Both men is very fast, but if Jim had of been a yr. faster they would of been twins.

Corroborative Evidents.

Now in regards to corroborative evidents. When it come to my eye that Jim was born in Cleveland, Tenn., I immediately went next door and borrowed a cyclopedia to see was they any such place. Sure enough they was. And the clincher is that Cleveland is 30 miles from Chattanooga where Doc was born. Is it liable that 2 Johnstons that looks so much alike and both got good teeth and spells their name with a t and was born 30 miles from the other is not own brothers?

Further and more here is what I found out in regards to Cleveland, Tenn. In 1910, 21 yrs. after Jim Johnston was born there it had a pop. of 5980. It is the county seat of Bradley County witch was named after Bill Bradley that USE TO PLAY 3D BASE FOR CLEVELAND, O., and Jim Johnston is NOW PLAYING THE SAME POSITION FOR BROOKLYN. Cleveland, Tenn., is on the Southern R. R. and in a peach raising belt and the principle industrys is flour and woolen mills and A COFFIN FACTORY.

The waterworks is owned by the city.

Think of the Wife and Children.

I know both the Johnstons personally and don't know nothing vs. them and my sole purpose in publishing this information is to try and keep baseball clean and also for the sake of the wife and kiddies.

A side from the Johnston scandal the int. in this serious seems to be at flivver heat everywhere except in New England witch is said to be all a gog over the barnstorming tour of the Boston Braves. This tour was arranged on the theory that baseball fans have a morbid curiosity and the promoters expect to pack them in. The Braves is booked to play in New Bedford, Lowell and etc. and it looks like the loosers end would be enough to keep Stallings' boys in safety matches for a month to come. The master mind that conceived the Braves trip is said to be hideing under a thimble in North Attleboro.

Contrary to expectations the Indians didn't get here yesterday as Mgr. Speaker didn't want to take no chances of his boys being invited out to a theater by Abe Attell and etc. The Cleveland nine accompanied by a corpse of interpreters and guides reached Brooklyn early this morning. They will be no morning practice by the American League champs and they won't know what Ebbets Field looks like till they come out for the game and it wouldn't surprise me to see Mgr. Robinson mix them all up by changing the bases and putting 3d base where 1st base is in the Cleveland grounds and etc. Everything is fair in a world serious as we found out last year.

Betting Runs Into Tons of Nickels.

After a hearty breakfast of Indian meal the Cleveland players was took on a sightsen tour around Brooklyn. This was expected to take 10 minutes, and give the boys plenty of time to sleep it off before the game starts.

Betting on the first game, and the entire serious has ran up into the tons of nickels. The same cootery of gamblers that bribed the Athletics to loose 106 games is said to in Brooklyn trying to place their money on the Phillies.

The experts is picking Jim Bagby to pitch for Cleveland. Mails cant be depended upon under Burleson's administration. Most of the boys of my profession says that Grimes or Marquard will start for the Robins. Personly I believe it will be Smith, and I am usually wrong.

If Cleveland hits like they been hitting in the American League its libel to be Grimes, Smith, Marquard, Pfeffer, Mamaux, Cadore and Mitchell.

SIR BARTON IN WORKOUT SETS REMARKABLE PACE

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—John A. Payne, who purchased Oriole for commander J. K. L. Ross at the sale of the Livingston horses at Jamaica, Saturday, received word over the telephone yesterday from Trainer H. Bedwell, giving him particulars of the sensational preliminary workout of Sir Barton at the Laurel track, early yesterday morning.

Over a track that was estimated to be about 2 seconds slow, the son of Star Shoot reeled off the following fractional time: 11 3-5, 23 2-5, 47 4-5, 1.00 3-5, 1.13 1-5, 1.26 4-5; mile, 1.40 4-5, 1.53 3-5; mile and a quarter, 2.09, pulled up.

Trainers watching the workout pronounced it the most phenomenal ever seen at Laurel. For the first five eights of the ditsance Sir Barton was pased by Billy Kelly and the final half mile by Motor Cop.

If you believe in this policy come to the ORIGINAL McKnight

A wise man once said, "a business is only as big as the men who direct it." That's true. Twenty-three years ago we established this business. Starting in a small way we have developed until today we are the largest tailoring establishment in St. Louis making men's suits and overcoats exclusively. When we were small we did big things in a big way. Our policy then was "Clothes That Fit" at LOW prices—and that's our policy today. It proved successful. The public always appreciates a "square deal."

COUNTRY DAY SCHOOL STUDENTS COMPELLED TO PLAY FOOTBALL

The St. Louis Country Day School opened its football practice this week with a first squad of 25. The football coach is William R. Canty of Middlebury College, Vt. Canty played on his college team four years and was captain in his senior year. Last year he was athletic instructor and coach at the Fay School, Southboro, Mass.

The season will open Oct. 9 with a game with Ferguson High School. Games are also being arranged with Junior High, Cathedral High and other teams in the vicinity. The final game will be played with the Milwaukee Country Day School, at Miukaukee, on Nov. 20.

The enrollment has increased from 68 to 120. Every boy in the school is compelled to play football unless excused by the doctor. Each squad has its regular coach and plays outside games, as well as intraclass games. It is hoped to develop material at the bottom of the school which will in a few years form a nucleus of an unusually strong eleven.

Yale Team Shows Power in Opening Battle, Camp Says

Carnegie Not Strong Enough to Test Eli Defense; Blue Attack Was Commendable.

By WALTER CAMP.

(Copyright, 1920, by the Consolidated Press Association.)

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—Yale had her first tryout on Saturday against Carnegie Tech., but through the fumbling of the visitors the afternoon was very nearly wasted. There was no opportunity for Yale to test her defense except against rather ineffective lunges into the line and a repeated crude attempt on a wide end run.

Yale did, however, get a chance to try out her own attack and it showed power and, in the case of Aldrich, considerable deceptive quality. This was due to the fact that Aldrich reached his point quickly and had a good drive. The other Yale backs were a shade slower. The holes opened for them were often filled.

The quarterbacks, Kempton and Murphy, showed well in handling the ball and in individual running. Murphy runs on a low plane which conceals him from the secondary defense and thus misleads the defense as to the trend of the play.

The forward pass play was weak on the receiving end, but well thrown. The whole team was well along in fundamentals, so far as Carnegie was able to try them out. The end question, which has been known as a puzzling problem, showed itself still difficult, particularly in the line of getting downfield on kicks.

The general defense was sound and tenacious and well spread out against cross-the-field runs, while on line plunges the defense was tight. The condition of the men was all that could be desired and the most encouraging feature of all perhaps, was the close following of the ball by Yale. What Yale needs, however, and needs quickly, is a stiffer game, one that will give the men a chance to feel themselves against firm opposition.

CARDINAL BARNSTORMERS LOSE TO LOCAL GIANTS IN SERIES OPENER, 5-4

An error by Catcher Clemons enabled the St. Louis (negro) Giants to defeat the Cardinal Barnstormers, 4—4, in 10 innings in the first of a two-game series at the Giants' Park yesterday. Lyons, the Western League recruit, pitched for Stock's team, and allowed nine hits. His mates counted 12 off Drake and Finner.

The Giants got off to a long lead, scoring four runs in the first two innings, but rallies in the fifth and sixth enabled the Cardinals to tie.

M'KENDREE HAS FOUR GRID VETERANS BACK

With four letter men to build the team around and a promising lot of new material to pick the remainder from McKendree College, Lebanon, Ill., started gridiron practice last week. The four veterans of last season are: White, captain and center; Johnston, a guard of three seasons' experience, from St. Louis; Sayre and East at ends. Carelton, a last year's second-string man, who was counted on to fill one of the tackle positions, fractured his collarbone in the first practice. Wagener, another letter man, injured his hand during the summer and is unable to play. As there is keen competition for the remaining positions, Coach Lawrence expects to have little difficulty in filling them.

As a result of the recent decision of Southern Illinois Normal University not to play football this year, the final two dates on McKendree's schedule are open. The remainder of the schedule, however, will find McKendree pitted against some of the strongest teams in the Little Nineteen Conference.

IRREGULARITY IN RAILS; DISTINCT STRENGTH IN BONDS

Several of Liberty Issues Rise Point, All Going Above Last Week's Prices.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—The Evening Post, in its copyrighted financial review today, says:

"Some of the railway shares declined moderately today, a not unnatural sequel to the past week's rapid advance of their prices. Other stocks of the group went higher, however, and a particular effort was made to bid up the more speculative industrial shares. But the influence which partly checked the rise in the railway shares—the impracticability of relying on the money market for speculative purposes—will naturally apply with greater force to the industrials. The bond market continued distinctly strong, the notable movement being in the Liberty Bonds, several of which rose a point or more today and all of which went above last week's highest prices. Sterling exchange advanced again.

Steel Position Strong.

"The day's recovery in the steel shares had a special reason in the published interviews with important steel manufacturers, who agreed that the steel trade position is very strong and that decline in steel prices can be only gradual. No doubt this view is correct. But when the experts base their judgment on the probable very large requirements for the railways and the building trade, it may be worth while to remind them that the long-deferred 'normal' orders from those two industries is very unlikely to materialize except at less than the present very high prices. It is notorious that these orders were postponed in full expectation of reasonable prices later on, and the time has now come when the steel trade needs the business.

"Wheat fell to $1.93 a bushel this morning for December delivery at Chicago, then recovered sharply. This violent decline from the $2.40 price a week ago today, is a notable landmark in the economic readjustment. This is the first time since the United States declared war on Germany that wheat on the Board of Trade has fallen below $2 and it has been as high as $3.50 in the intervening period. Its price is now responding, in general, to the great economic change which the last six months have brought, and in particular to the embargo on use of credit for fixing artificial prices and the consumer's ultimatum that he must have fair play in cost of living. The course of wheat prices has been logical, granted the sufficient harvest which the season has produced. It should have been foreseen when the Government guarantee of $2.26 a bushel expired in June.

Recuperation of Europe.

"Today's statement of our August foreign trade by origin and destination throws a strong light on the recuperation of Europe. During the month our imports of merchandise from that continent increased $48,000,000 over 1919, and in the eight months ending with August the increase was $527,000,000, or 145 per cent. The value of the eight months' importations was actually larger by $96,000,000 than in the corresponding period of 1913. Naturally that remarkable increase, as compared with pre-war figures, is a consequence of the higher prices, and the increase in our exports to the European continent since 1913 is much larger. Yet, even with the export trade, the August figures show a great change from last year. In August our shipments to the European continent decreased $123,000,000 from 1919; in the eight months they decreased $511,000,000, or nearly 15 per cent.

"When we examine the trade with our four allies of the great war—England, France, Italy and Belgium—the comparison is even more impressive. It shows, as compared with 1919, an increase of $25,000,000 in our imports for August and of $351,000,000, or 170 per cent, in our imports for the eight-month period; whereas, our exports of August to the four countries combined decreased $110,000,000 and our exports for the year to Aug. 31 no less than $581,000,000. Last year the eight months' excess of our exports in that trade with those countries was $2,921,000,000; this year it has been $1,531,000,000. The balance against these countries, it will be observed, is still abnormally large; in 1913 the export balance for the period was only $169,000,000. But reduction of a thousand million dollars from the war-time balance against these countries in their trade with the United States is an economic fact of high importance."

Foreign Exchange and Domestic Money

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—The foreign exchange market was irregular today, sterling and Scandinavian showing a strong tone, while Italian was unsettled and French and German were both in supply at declines. Demand sterling moved up 1 cent to 3.49¾, but the dealings were small and the gain reflected scant offerings more than any other factor. Italian was pressed on the market, lire checks selling below 4.04 and closely approaching the low record. German was traded in at times on a large scale and showed a material loss. Spanish was strong in the early trading but reacted after noon. Today's latest prices of exchange on all the principal foreign markets were as follows:

Wall Street News and Comment
—SPECIAL DAILY—

A Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—Today's operations resulted in further discomfiture to the multitude of speculators who pinned their hopes to the price-cutting change and eagerly sold stocks which they did not own. The two groups which have been most discussed as not through with their decline and therefore the logical things to go short of were the steels and oils. It was in these that the short selling of the last week or so was heaviest and in which the short account became most overcrowded. Much of the dismay of the speculative bear following the oils and steels were the leaders in today's advance. The statement given out by the heads of the steel corporation, the Bethlehem Steel and Republic Steel yesterday regarding business and price conditions in the steel trade were not properly appreciated until this morning. As they were reflected upon overnight and had a chance to become more widely disseminated it was realized they were extremely reassuring. There will be a further reduction in some of the steel schedules, but it will be a moderate one, and nothing which will threaten to disturb the soundness and stability of the trade which the steel leaders have emphasized.

The significance of all this was that speculative Wall street as usual has overshot the mark and has allowed itself to get altogether too pessimistic about the business situation in general and about steel trade conditions in particular. The sharp recoil in the steel shares today which carried steel common up at one time 2 points and the independent steel stocks similarly was the logical outcome. There has been a lot of talk also about overproduction and price cutting in the oil industry and a lot of people have been missled by this talk into going short of the oils. The short interest was particularly heavy in Mexican Petroleum, Pan-American and Texas Co., and it was in these three that the short interest today was most roughly handled.

Sears Roebuck.

The announcement which Wall Street has been expecting for several days regarding some new financing by the Sears Roebuck Co. came today. The company has sold $50,000,000 of notes and the funds will be used to reduce bank loans and meet maturing paper of which large amounts were sold throughout the West several months ago. The company recently announced a heavy cut in prices in order to reduce its inventories.

...

The Bond Market.

The main incident in the bond market today was the continued rise in Libertys, which took them back substantially to the high prices reached on their upturn of 10 days ago. The third 4¼s sold up close to $1 and the fourth 4¼s close to $1. The second 4¼s were up about a half point and the 3½s of the first loan crossed $2 for the first time in a long while.

The new security issues which came in for most attention today was the $2,400,000 offering of Pittsburg-Lake Erie equipment trust certificates. These are the precursor presumably of numerous other issues of equipment bonds. They are out at prices to yield from 6¾ to 7 per cent and the excellence of their security is sufficiently indicated by the fact that they represent only 75 per cent of the cost of the 1375 steel hopper cars which are to be bought with the proceeds of the money and which will form the collateral back of the loan. The new $40,000,000 Swift & Co. 7-per-cent notes were quoted on the curb today at 97¼ bid, offered at 97¾.

In the foreign Government division the feature was the strength of Belgian 7½s, which were pushed up a point to 99¾. This quickened the demand for some of the other Governments, notably the Swiss 8s, but it did not help the French 8s which were still pretty sluggish.

Railway bonds were somewhat variable, conforming to the irregularity in railway stocks. Quite a bit of profit-taking was noticed in some of the recent favorites. Missouri Pacific general 4s at 58¾ were off a half point. Southern Pacific convertibles were fractionally lower and most of the other convertible bonds were shaded a trifle.

WORLD SERIES GAME ATTRACTS TRADERS, AND CURB IS DULL

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—Business was small on the curb market today. During the morning there were spurts of activity for short periods, but in the afternoon dealings fell off sharply, due mainly to the fact that many of the traders left the financial district to attend the first game in the world's series between Brooklyn and Cleveland. A number of these traders evened their accounts before their departure and this practice was responsible for some doing before 1 o'clock, as shorts were covered. The professionals who remained took profits on long stock generally, but one or two who had continued bearish since last week covered shorts, and caused a good demand at times. The tone of the market held about steady throughout the session.

United Profit Sharing was decidedly active and strong, being influenced by purchases for inside account. There was a good demand for British American Tobacco, Garland Steamship and Imperial Tobacco of Great Britain and Ireland. Retail Candy acted better than in several days.

International Products was firm. Sweets Co. was in moderate demand at a fractional upturn. General Asphalt was firm at the start, yielded nearly 2 points and then rallied. Car Lighting and Power sold up to a new high record for the present movement.

Changes were small in the oil list. Salt Creek producing moved up a point and advances were recorded in International Petroleum and Midwest. On the other hand, Simms Petroleum, Ryan Consolidated and others were reactionary.

Boston and Montana was again the leader of the mining department. Bonds were more quiet than usual and price changes were irregular.

WHEAT RUNS UNCERTAIN COURSE, CLOSES DOWN

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, Oct. 5.—The wheat market today was a good deal like a mystery story, no one seemed to know what course prices would pursue until the end. During the first half of the session most of the action was in higher territory, due to purchases estimated at 1,000,000 bushels by houses with export connections. During the last half bulls evidently tired and the play was mostly at lower levels. Sentiment has changed, but confidence in the buying side is lacking, and the only redeeming feature is a let-up in the selling pressure. Cash wheat is weak, and with only [illegible] expected, premiums were 2 to 4 cents lower. Export sales in all positions are estimated at over 1,000,000 bushels. Of this amount a local house reported 250,000 bushels worked at the Gulf. Minneapolis mills reported good flour sales late yesterday and premiums for cash wheat in that market were 3 to 5 cents higher. Market closed 2⅝@6 cents lower. December $1.85½. March $1.88¼@1.88⅜.

Corn Holds Better.

The action of corn was governed to a great extent by the trend of corn, but prices held better on the weak spots. Much short corn was covered on the breaks and the feeling in regard to future prices is much the same as in wheat. Prices are too low to make short sales profitable and yet there is little incentive to buy at present. Cash premiums were cut 2c. Shiping sales were only 10,000 bushels. Receipts continue heavy. Market closed 1⅛ to 1½ cents lower. October 89½. December 84⅝@84¾ and May 87¼@87½.

Oats Are Erratic.

Oats were erratic in trend, but followed the course of other grains. Good buying was in evidence early, but the demand subsided during the later trading. Cash premiums were shaded ¼ cent. Shipping sales only 40,000 bushels. New England is flooded with oats and demand is slow. Market closed ¼@⅜c lower. December 54¼@54⅝c. May 58⅞@58⅞c.

A good foreign demand for meats and lard and buying by packers who were removing hedges on product sold gave the market for provisions a firm tone. The late break in grain and the 50c decline in hogs were ignored. Pork closed 90c@$1.40 lower, lard 37½@72½c up and ribs unchanged to 12½c up.

Sugar.

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—Raw sugar, dull at 8.51c for centrifugal; refined, weak, and prices were reduced half a cent to the basis of 12 cents for fine granulated by one refiner; other refiners have not mentioned any change, although it is generally believed that they, too, would take orders at the 12-cent level.

Futures were less active early, but prices were a little firmer on covering and at midday were five to 20 points net higher.

Sugar futures closed firm; sales, 3250 tons. Dec., 7.90c; Jan., 7.80c; March, 7.65c; May, 7.50c.

The average investor—the man or woman of moderate means—is particularly concerned about three things in making an investment.

1st. The security back of the investment.
2d. The length of time the investment runs.
3d. The rate of interest the investment returns.

Considering these point by point, our First Mortgage Loans and Real Estate Gold Bonds meet the requirements of most exacting investors.

The safety they afford City real estate, improved with well-constructed buildings for homes, apartments, stores, offices and hotel purposes, offers ideal security for investment loans. This security is tangible; it is not subject to violent fluctuations in value; it can be seen, watched over and accurately appraised. We restrict our loans to the best type of improved city real estate and maintain a wide margin of security between the amounts we loan and the values at which we appraise the properties.

The time they run Our small loans on dwellings, in amounts ranging from $1800 to $15,000, are made for three-year periods. This permits reappraisements and readjustments of the loans every few years and affords protection against deterioration in the value of the properties.

Our larger loans on business properties run from one to ten years or longer and are offered in the form of $500 and $1000 bonds. These loans are paid off by annual retirements, the bonds maturing serially each year. This constantly increases the margin of security and gives investors a choice of maturities ranging from one year up to final maturity.

The income they return An investor in these securities obtains a sure interest return of 6% per annum paid every six months. We will attend to the collection of interest notes or coupons without charge and relieve you of all trouble in this matter. You simply deposit your notes or coupons with us and we will make collection and remit you the amounts due.

WHEAT CLOSES LOWER; COARSE GRAINS STEADY

Wheat futures closed sharply lower on the Merchants' Exchange today after having scored a liberal recovery in the forenoon. December wheat ranged between $1.88 and $2. A new low on the movement was recorded. Corn and oats lost the upturn but closed steady at but small fraction under the previous close. The market was nervous throughout.

The grain markets in the first hour only indicated that the downward swing in prices was to continue unabated. After new low prices were made by both wheat and corn a buying spell developed in the late forenoon. All losses of the day were recovered and sharp net gains recorded. The first buying was credited to shorts, but there probably was some uneasiness on the report from Chicago that exporters were thought to be buying December wheat futures. It was pointed out by some that the recent break in wheat had carried prices out of line with Argentine wheat values.

The weather map showed favorable conditions in the corn belt. The buying of corn futures again was largely profit-taking by shorts.

Receipts today were 144,000 bushels of wheat, including 50 cars local and ... cars through; 26,000 bushels of corn, including 16 cars local and 4 cars through; 54,0000 bushels of oats, including 21 cars local and 6 through.

NATIONAL STOCKYARDS, Ill., Oct. 5.—Today's estimated livestock receipts—Cattle and calves, 5500; hogs, 9500; sheep, 2000; horses and mules, 500.

CATTLE—A steady market prevailed for ... cattle today. Receipts were smaller than those Monday, but demand was still small and in some cases steers were not sold for lack of satisfactory bids. Movement was slow in butcher stock and values were no better tha nthose prevailing yesterday. Veals slumped 50c, best lights selling from $16@16.50.

HOGS—Under rather liberal receipts, the hog market continues to break rapidly. A ... to 50c price cut marked trading today. Several loads of hogs that were better than the rest invited a slight premium and went at $15.75, but the practical top was $15.65 and later $15.50. Bulk ranged from $15.25 to $15.50. Pig market generally 5c lower, with some good weights at $14. Rough hogs 25 to 50c lower, a range of $13.50@13.75 taking the best.

SHEEP—Receipts of sheep and lambs were again moderate, run being estimated at 2000 head. Market weak to 25c lower on lambs. Two decks of choice ewe and wether lambs brought $12. Bulk ranged from $11@11.50. Fat sheep sold unchanged, the choice light ones bringing $5.50, while heavier kinds sold at ...

COTTON FIRMER IN TONE AFTER YESTEDAY'S BREAK

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—The early cotton market showed a firmer tone, following yesterday's break to new low records. Liverpool was better than due, and first prices here were unchanged to 32 points higher on covering. Liverpool and some Japanese buying. There were October notices in circulation, which caused some scattering near-month liquidation, but offerings, which included southern selling and a little local pressure, encouraged by the favorable weather map, were readily absorbed. October soon sold up from 22.25c to 22.68c and January from 21.25c to 21.52c, or about 43 to 54 points above last night's closing. The opening action of the stock market promoted the covering movement.

The early advance of about 43 to 77 points net increased offerings. Recent buyers for profits on the short side seemed to be reselling their contracts, while there was profit taking by reactionists which caused reactions of 30 or 25 points. Southern selling, however, was much less active than recently, while the better feeling in Wall street was reflected in buying from that quarter. The development of a firmer tone in October after the circulation of notices estimated at 2000 bales was also a factor and most months made a new high ground for the day early in the noon hour, with October selling at 22.75c and December at 21.95c, or 50 to 72 points net higher.

October sold up to 23.30 in the early afternoon and the strength of the near month stimulated covering in the later deliveries. January advanced to 21.95, with active months generally showing net gains of 90 to 115 points, after which there were reactions of 40 or 50 points on reports of increasing short time in Fall River mills.

Cotton futures closed steady; October, 22.15; December, 21.55; January, 21.16; March, 20.90; May, 20.90.

POLICE ITEMS

AN AUTOMOBILE BELONGING TO J. T. Behr of 3927 Franklin avenue, stolen from in front of that address at 1 p. m. yesterday, was found last night wrecked against a telephone pole at Sixth and Gratiot streets. It was one the police had been seeking in connection with a collision shortly after 2 p. m. at Twelfth and Pine streets, when the machine rammed a United States mail truck. Two young men were in the machine at that time.

A HORSE AND BUGGY BELONGING TO Louis B. Waldron of 4775 Penrose street, containing sample jewelry and linens valued at $600 and mortgage notes representing $3000 additional jewelry, were stolen from in front of 1722 Biddle street at 3 p. m. yesterday. The outfit, minus the articles and the box containing the mortgages, was found later at Eleventh and Monroe streets.

HENRY YOUNG, 48 YEARS OLD, AN orderly at the city hospital, was held up and robbed of $21 in cash and a gold watch by two young men at Twelfth street and Russell avenue at 12:30 a. m. today.

TIMOTHY HOWARD OF 418 LUCAS avenue, a driver for the Schaefer Meat Co. at Union Market, was stopped by a stranger near Seventh and Morgan streets yesterday and questioned as to why he had not delivered meats for the McKinley Restaurant. He said he was on his way to the restaurant at that time. "Give me the meat. You're too slow," the man said, and Howard gave him two roasts of beef and a roast of pork. Later the restaurant manager learned of the swindle.

ROGER E. LORD OF 6204 ENRIGHT avenue, former district golf champion, was fined $5 and costs in police court today for speeding on Lindell boulevard west of King's highway yesterday afternoon. A policeman said Lord was driving 30 to 35 miles an hour.

WALTER GERNGROSS, 18 YEARS OLD, of 1722 North Twelfth street, is under arrest following the discovery by motor cycle policemen at King's highway and Natural Bridge avenue last night of 13 silk handkerchiefs and three silk boudoir caps, all stolen, in an automobile in which Gerngross was riding. Gerngross admitted stealing the articles from his employer, the Furstenwerth-Uhl Jewelry Co., 1125 Washington avenue, according to the police, who found at Gerngross' home a quantity of other articles that he admitted stealing.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

As we have no information bureau, it is impossible to answer queries by mail or telephone. Query for Sunday must be mailed a week beforehand.

ARNOLD.—You can motor straight out Broadway to Jefferson Barracks.

F. R. BANKS.—Apply to the optical houses for information concerning the price of such crystals.

CONSTANT READER.—Closing the piano and refraining from playing any musical instrument following a death in the family is a matter of personal opinion. The customary length is one year.

I. W. B.—We do not have the poem you request, you can probably secure it at the Public Library. The small script used during the 1907 panic under the Roosevelt administration was issued by the clearing houses of the various cities, and was not authorized by Congress.

E. MANON.—It is customary to give the minister a fee and to give gifts to your attendants at the wedding; however, it is not compulsory. A person should be guided by their circumstances in such a matter, and the amount of the fee is a matter of personal choice.

PETE R.—The surrendered ships of the German navy were distributed among the allied and associated powers on a tonnage basis, pro rata according to the shipping losses of the respective powers during the war. Great Britain having lost a greater tonnage than any other power, necessarily was awarded a larger proportion of the German fleet than the United States, whose shipping losses during the war were relatively small in comparison.

JANE.—On Oct. 22, 1910, Sarah Bernhard sailed for the United States to make her "farewell tour." In the course of 35 weeks she gave no less than 285 performances, of which 30 were one-night stands. She was also able to give three plays for the first time, one of which was "Madame X," by Alexander Bisson, at the Studebaker, Chicago, on Nov. 11, 1910. The other two were "Judas," by John de Kay, the American author, at the Globe, New York City, on Dec. 29, 1910, and Maeterlinck's "Sister Beatrice," at the Columbia, San Francisco, on May 7, 1911.

G. E.—Soak the spread in clean, warm water, remove the superfluous moisture, and spread the ink spot over a clean cloth. Now allow a few minims of liquor ammoniae fortis, specific gravity 0.891, to drop on the spot, then saturate a small tuft of absorbent cotton-wool with acidum phosphoricum dilutum, B. P., and apply repeatedly and with firm pressure over the stain. Repeat this process two or three times, and finally rinse well in warm water, afterwards drying in the sun, when every trace of ink should have vanished. This method is equally reliable for old and fresh ink stains, and will not injure the most delicate fabric.

J. R. D.—The only record we have concerning George Taylor, one of the murderers of the Meeks family in Osage, Mo., in 1892, subsequent to his escape from the Carroll County Jail at Carrollton, Mo., is an account which appeared in the Post-Dispatch on April 23, 1913, of a so-called "man of mystery" who walked into the North Market Street Station at 6:20 a. m., and gave himself up, declaring he was George Taylor, one of the convicted murderers. He was locked up and the records examined, showing that his brother, William, had been hanged, making an antemortem statement asserting his innocence, and that George Taylor had escaped. Later the man professed not to know who he was or to remember any of his antecedents, maintaining this attitude through long questioning by the heads of the Police Department.

LEGAL INFORMATION.

(Prepared by a Member of the St. Louis Bar Association.)

INVENTOR.—We would advise you to consult a patent lawyer.

V. L.—If you have the stock certificates in your possession you are protected.

MRS. JOSEY.—Under the circumstances she cannot sue him for breach of promise.

SIMP.—Failure to sign for the $1 will not affect the estate or prevent its being settled.

ANXIOUS.—Suit for slander must be brought within two years. If it is a criminal suit the fine goes to the school fund.

BENCH HAND.—The company is not liable for your stolen tools unless they instructed you to leave your tools there, or had a rule permitting it.

X. Y. Z.—The landlord can sue the tenant for waste, if, after giving them notice to vacate, he finds the property has been damaged.

HENRY A. B.—Selling clearing house tickets for cash prizes is not lawful. If the prize is not awarded to the winner, however, the promulgator of the affair can be prosecuted.

G. B. SUTTER.—Notify the License Collector at the City Hall that the dog taxes have not been paid. If the dogs are a nuisance to the neighbors, complain to the policeman on that beat.

MEDICAL QUESTIONS.

(Answers prepared by a physician of authority. Health and sanitation questions of public interest only will be considered. Diagnoses or treatment of individual cases will not be given. Questions that cannot be publicly discussed, if showing evidences of sincerity, will be answered when accompanied by stamped envelope.)

ROYAL.—The sac and the amount of fluid varies in individuals. There is nothing for you to worry about in this.

ANXIOUS.—The only absolutely dependable method of removing hair growth on the face is the electric needle, clearing up comparatively small areas at a sitting until all the surface is covered.

MRS. E. G. C.—You might try the following for hemorrhoids: Equal parts of washed sulphur, cream of tartar and powdered sugar. Mix thoroughly, and take one to two teaspoons of the mixture in a glass of water one-half hour before breakfast. If this moves the bowels too freely, take 10 grains of bismuth subnitrate two or three times a day.

FRANCES.—If your general health is below normal it is advisable that any constitutional irregularities be sought out and corrected. Anemia and digestive disturbances have a strong predisposing influence, if they are not directly causative. Frequent washings with soap and water are necessary for oily hair. For this purpose a mild toilet soap may be used, and in those of nonirritable skins the tincture of green soap. In obstinate cases 10 to 30 grains of resorcin to the ounce may be added to the tincture of green soap. If simple toilet soap is used it may be followed by a lotion of 2 to 10 per cent resorcin in 50 per cent alcohol, well rubbed in with the finger tips. Resorcin may also be used as an ointment with cold creams, with 20 to 60 grains of resorcin to the ounce of cream, this rubbed in with the finger tips. A good plan is to use the lotion up to two or three days of the shampooing, when the ointment may be used.

Duplicating the Shirt Sale of September 16th

A Recent Shipment of 400 Dozen Shirts for Men Enables Us to Again Offer Them at the Extraordinary Price of $1.65

¶ The instant and enthusiastic response to our first $1.65 Shirt Sale prompted us to endeavor to duplicate this event. Our efforts were rewarded and we succeeded in purchasing 4800 much under their market worth. These are the same high quality Shirts that were in the last sale, the same kind that men at that time bought in lots of 3, 6 and even more. They are carefully made of high-grade percale, a fabric that gives long and satisfactory service, and always looks neat. Cut generously full and made to fit with comfort. Choice of a wide range of patterns and colors.

Neat hairline stripes, fancy double stripes, two-color stripes, etc. Sizes 14 to 17. These Shirts are so clearly worth more than the special price that we expect a tremendous response, and for this reason, advise early attendance.

I know that my retirement will make no difference in its cardinal principles, that it will always fight for progress and reform, never tolerate injustice or corruption, always fight demagogues of all parties, never belong to any party, always oppose privileged classes and public plunderers, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the public welfare, never be satisfied with merely printing news, always be drastically independent; never be afraid to attack wrong, whether by predatory plutocracy or predatory poverty.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE.

The McCulloch Decision.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Your editorial in the Post-Dispatch of Sept. 30, under the caption, "Law Expert on McCulloch's Escape," is deserving of the highest public commendation. The trend of reasoning in same relative to the issue of said case is the only one that is consistent with common sense and of good, sound logic. It is indeed a strain on the lay mind to follow the meanderings of a judicial mind to the conclusion that there is no crime when one deprives another of anything forcibly, whether it be of value or not.

Frankly speaking, Mr. Editor, such a ruling seems to be almost on a par with the famous Dred Scott decision, in commenting on which, a citizen is reputed to have remarked that the Court is likely to get in the contempt of the American people. Not only is it true, as stated by the authority quoted by you, that the task is made more difficult to increase the confidence of the people in the courts, but such acts are certain to diminish such confidence, and if persisted in will eventually destroy it entirely.

There is no doubt that the belief of the public in the honor and integrity of the legal profession is rapidly waning, and will certainly vanish unless relieved by notable exceptions such as that of Circuit Attorney McDaniels, who, with his able staff of assistants, labored long and diligently to assemble an array of evidence that could not be attacked successfully on its merits, but had to be evaded on a technicality.

We desire to assure you, Mr. Editor, that, with the many thousands of our citizens who assisted the members of our league by circulating and signing our referendum petition, we appreciate most highly the public-spirited policy of your valuable paper in demanding that justice be done in this case, as well as the strenuous endeavors of the Circuit Attorney and his assistants to bring about such conclusion for the public welfare.

L. H. PROSKE,

Sale of Theater Tickets.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

The recent article signed "Mr. Fair Play" deserves censure. He accuses theatrical managers of petty connivance with cigar stand owners in regard to sale of tickets.

Nothing could be more ridiculous, for the first come to buy tickets are the first served, the managers' only interest being to dispose of their tickets. It was and is the usual custom to sell to everyone that wants to purchase them without making inquiries who are purchasing them and what is their occupation.

When we compare the prices of admission when $2 was charged for a seat, 50 cents in the gallery, the class of entertainment and houses provided with the present magnificent structures, courtesies and the comforts for the public and the very small charges for admission, we certainly have no just cause to complain.

Considering the enormous increase in cost of productions, increase in expenses, strict observance of union rules and charges paid employes, the managers of our show houses should be highly praised for their efforts to keep down the low cost of admission as it is.

GEO. A. DAVIES.

A Disappointed Civil Servant.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

My daughter gave up a position that was paying her $85 a month to take a Government one for $90. Now she was told on starting to work that her salary would be increased at the end of three months to $100, and at the end of the next three months she would get another increase, but alas, is there anything else our present administration can do to get us more disgusted? She has been informed that they will have to wait until five or six months and then perhaps a $5 raise in place of the $10. Uncle Sam hired them at $90 a month for three months, $100 for the next three months, and if our Government cannot keep its word, what can we expect of business houses? I would like to see if anyone can give a reasonable excuse for being treated so?

LIBERTY.

Senator Harding's Record.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

The peace treaty was signed on June 28, 1919.

It was submitted to the United States Senate on July 10, 1919, and was before that body eight months and nine days.

Senator Harding is a member of the Committee on Foreign Relations of the United States Senate, which considered the peacy treaty for months. He is a member of the United States Senate and familiar with its debates on this subject.

Senator Harding opposes the peace treaty and the League of Nations.

In a speech at Baltimore he made this startling statement:

"I am perfectly frank to say to you that I am without anything specific about a program constructive in character about an association of nations."

Senator Harding asks the American people to elect him President of the United States because he is without anything specific about a program constructive in character.

God save the country! CITIZEN.

SENATOR SPENCER'S MISSTATEMENT.

Reflecting on Mr. Tumulty's veracity and the President's capacity to make a statement, Senator Spencer, in answer to the President's denial that he made the statement about sending troops abroad credited to him, reiterates his charge. The statement upon which the Senator based his charge is an alleged report of the President's remarks to the Rumanian Premier. It is as follows:

> You must not forget that it is force which is the final guarantee of the public peace. If the world is again troubled, the guarantee which is given you means that the United States will send to (the European) side of the ocean their army and fleet.

Following is the statement of Senator Spencer as quoted by the Globe-Democrat, the accuracy of which he does not deny:

> He quoted Wilson's statement to the Rumanians and Serbs in which Spencer said Wilson told them that if any nation ever invaded their territory he would send the American army across the sea to defend their boundary lines.

The President's saying that if the world is again troubled the United States would send their army and fleet abroad under the guarantee of peace, is a very different thing from the President's saying that if Rumania and Serbia were involved he (the President) would send an army across the seas to protect their boundary lines.

It has been the contention of Republican opponents of the League that it empowered the President and foreign nations to put the United States into war without the consent of Congress. Senator Spencer's misstatement conveys that impression and thus grossly misrepresents both the President and the peace covenant. Garbling is a nasty form of misrepresentation.

THE POLICE REVIEW.

The revival last year of the police parade was followed this year by a revival of the practice of awarding special recognition to members of the force who have rendered distinctive service to the public. If the recent past has brought special problems in the prevalence of crimes of unusual daring, the force has shown unusual promptness and courage in combating the criminals. Gold, silver and bronze medals were presented to 38 policemen at the conclusion of the march. The number included men whose adequacy to emergency in the case of such sensational depredations as the robberies at the Meramec Trust Co., the Easton-Taylor Trust Co. and the Water Tower Trust Co., is still well remembered and the public will conclude that the awards were as worthily bestowed in the case of the other men.

The parade was an interesting exhibit to the community on resources available for restraining the forces of disorder and for the enemies of society had a wholesome warning on the strength which organized society is prepared to oppose to deeds of outlawry.

PURIFYING BASEBALL.

The baseball magnates have made an impressive bid for public confidence by their proposal to create a supreme tribunal, made up of men of national standing, which shall have absolute control of the sport. Such a commission would doubtless administer the business affairs of baseball more satisfactorily than does the present system. It could put an end to many vexatious practices and catchpenny devices which interfere with the spectator's enjoyment and rights. It could improve the general tone of the game. But it could not guarantee security against a repetition of the present scandal.

The functions of such a tribunal would be administrative, judicial and executive. It could not be a detective agency. It could not supervise the deportment and associations of the players outside of playing hours. Nor could it pass harsher professional judgment upon the faithless than will be meted out in the present instance. Banishment from baseball forever must be the penalty of the dishonest players. Anything short of that would be suicidal.

But no covenant, no scheme of organization, no administrative personnel, however dignified, will keep baseball honest, unless the players themselves are honest. That the great majority of the players are honest does not have to be asserted. The crooks are few. But, as has been shown, it does not take many such crooks to hurt baseball grievously, and unless means are devised for detecting crookedness and bringing the suspects immediately to trial, professional baseball is doomed.

It is in the players the power must be vested to scotch treachery instantly whenever it appears. An austere tribunal sitting on a purple throne won't do it.

TAXED MORTGAGES ON TAXED HOMES.

Among housing suggestions made by Senator Calder of New York are an inquiry to determine the extent to which dealers in building material are profiteers and the removal from building codes of too drastic restrictions. Tax exemption, however, seems the great feature of his plan. He would free mortgages of any amount on residence property from Federal taxes and mortgages to the amount of $50,000 from state taxes.

Tax exemptions of any kind are illegal under all circumstances in Missouri, so concessions or subsidies of this sort are impossible here. But there is nothing in the Missouri Constitution that necessitates double taxation, and double taxation is now a heavy handicap on all plans for increasing accommodations in St. Louis. Dwellings are not only taxed on the amount representing their full value, but on the part of their value represented by a mortgage incumbrance. It is none the less a handicap because so often evaded by subterfuge. It is always a possibility to be looked to in loan arrangements.

Next winter will be a good time to end this injustice of long standing. If it is insisted that the mortgage moiety in the value of a home already taxed must still bear some burden, it can be imposed in the form of the registry tax now collected on corporate and other bonds. A moderate tax of this kind will yield more revenue than the present tax which is dodged in so many cases with inevitable effects on personal and public morality.

INSTALLMENT-PLAN RAPID TRANSIT.

"St. Louis is a sprawling city," says the City Plan Commission in a discussion of our rapid transit needs.

One of our present problems is the reclamation of certain shabby intermediate areas, and the commission fears that the early construction of a rapid transit system would intensify this problem by encouraging a further shift of population to suburban districts.

It reaches the conclusion, after a study of present needs, that, with specified improvements, the present surface system can be made to serve the city without serious inconvenience for at least 10 years. Unless the city should in the meantime show a startling rate of growth, it says that the construction of a comprehensive rapid transit system may wisely be postponed until the end of the period.

Among its suggestions for improving present trolley facilities are these: The utilization for car lines of the new direct thoroughfares to the Northwest and the Southwest and an elaborate plan of rerouting present car lines, with abandonment of a considerable mileage of existing tracks and the construction of new tracks. The most important detail in its improvement plan is the building of a subway in the downtown section. This is designed to lessen the congestion on the streets of the business district and expedite the time of cars passing over the terminal lines in that territory and also to serve as the beginning of a comprehensive elevated or subway rapid-transit system, to be extended later to the north, west and south.

A perusal of the report carries with it an impression that its framers devoted much thought to the question and approached it from an eminently practical standpoint. What it really proposes is the creation of rapid transit facilities on the installment plan and the unit in those facilities which it suggests for early construction is one of obvious usefulness, while the estimated cost—$17,000,000—is not prohibitive. It outlines a definite and attainable plan to work from in the future, and in the case of a subject so difficult and complex an immediate and simple objective closely related to objectives to be pursued later is of large advantage.

A scheme which will spread over a long term of years the burden of providing rapid transit and in the meantime lessen congestion and cut down the time on surface lines will interest St. Louisans.

If we were running Brother Harding's campaign we'd insist upon his moving the front porch in behind the furnace.

THE PERSISTENCY OF WAR HABITS.

The case of the national guardsman turned over to the city jailer to serve out a $10 fine imposed by summary courtmartial for the offense of absence without leave, gave rise to some doubts in the minds of municipal authorities as to the right of the militia to incarcerate such prisoners in the city jail. Yet the law plainly provides for this use of county and city jails in section 8728-30 of the Revised Statutes, where the convictions of the courtmartial are in conformity with the provisions governing the militia.

The Missouri statutes provide for the establishment of general courtsmartial for the trial of enlisted men, setting out the distinct offenses of which they may take jurisdiction, and prescribing the punishments. The law appears to make no provision for special or summary courtsmartial. The distinction between these courts lies mainly in the number of their personnel, though under the Articles of War, governing the regular army, general courtsmartial take cognizance of the graver offenses, while the lesser, corresponding to misdemeanors in civil procedure, are tried by special and summary courts.

It was probably the feeling of the Missouri legislators that a general courtmartial was sufficient in all cases for the National Guard in times of peace, and it was constituted of "not less than three nor more than 13 officers." Among the offenses which it may try, "absence from drills, instruction, encampments or other duties," are specifically set out.

The St. Louis guardsman was convicted, not by a general courtmartial, but by a summary courtmartial; that is, by a single officer, the Captain of his company, the offense being absence from encampment. It appears questionable, in view of the silence of the statutes, whether a summary court can function with any authority in our National Guard organization. The case would seem to have been one in which the habits of discipline acquired in war are showing a natural but not desirable persistency.

After making 12 raids on the Seventeenth Ward Democratic Club the police finally succeeded in getting evidence of gambling. The number of raids necessary to get a conviction, however, will be announced later.

IN OLD KENTUCKY.

OH, the moon is shining still in Old Kentucky,
But the still the moon shone on is on the fritz;
And briny tears are falling on the brown jug—
The jug that used to give us Irish wits.

The land no longer flows with milk and honey,
The mountain dew no longer has a kick;
The man you used to gladly give your money
Is now no more than any other hick.

And sorrow reigns supreme in Old Kentucky;
They all see strange handwritings on the wall;
The guy who has a drop is mighty lucky,
And every private stock expects its call.

You can roam o'er hill and valley at your leisure,
You may seek the lonely passes in the hills;
But you couldn't find a quart of standard measure
Unless your lawyers found it in a will.

Orators still come from Old Kentucky,
And the ladies are the same unfailing hits;
But the moonshine's all turned green in Old Kentucky,
And the still the moon shone on is on the fritz.

After all, it seems that only the President can say what needs to be said in the present campaign. There are a few college professors who can express his ideals in excellent fashion, but these are unknown to and cannot reach the mass of the people. The President evidently appreciates this, since he has broken his silence and may be expected from this time to be an active participant in the campaign. Gov. Cox cannot do for himself what the President can do for him. He has not that gift of prophecy. No one else in our time has had it as the President has it. He foresees for us a better world—a world rid of the bugaboo of war. We are going to have that sort of world, but we cannot believe in it at this time. We are not prophets, and we have no such vision as prophets have. The Peace Conference was for the most part made up of men who disbelieve in ideals. The treaty reflected too much their disbelief. Except for the President it would not now be the hope of the world, which it is despite fault. The President has set the face of man toward an ideal which is by this indestructible. It canot matter whether he loses his solemn referendum or not—the ideal shall persist. That is what has from time to time happened in the upward climb of civilization. The troglodyte, peering out of his cave, foresaw nothing better. It took a prophet to do that for him, just as the President has done it for us. We are not dismayed by the Senate. The Senate is no worse than we are—no worse than any people have been. It disbelieves in a better world, notwithstanding nothing ahead of us is more certain. How many of us believe in it? Nothing could be more sincere than our disbelief. Vide Jamie Reed. We need the President at this time to indicate to us what we cannot ourselves see. He can do it, and no one can do it as he can. He was the spiritual leader of the war—the power greater than himself which the Kaiser went against in the end. He gave us the spiritual leadership of the world. It is ours still if we want it, but we won't want it unless the President tells us in his incomparable way what it means.

KNOTT.

BAITING A PRESIDENTIAL CANDIDATE.

The following, handed to Just a Minute by a stenographer upon the Cox special, is a verbatim report of the dialogue between the Governor and the audience at Chandler, Ok.:

Gov. Cox: I have a great stack of telegrams here and they are sent from Chandler, Ok. I am not quite sure that the persons whose names are attached to these telegrams ever sent them at all. Is there a Mrs. B. H. Sherman in Chandler (People in crowd shouted "Yes.") Do you imagine Mrs. Chandler sent me a telegram asking me a question about the League of Nations? (Man in crowd shouted: "She did not write it herself.") Is there a James Embry here? (Man in crowd: "He is here if he is sober.") I want to show you the ridiculousness of this telegram. It asks: "Are you in favor of or against the second Senate reservation?" Do you suppose that Jim knows what the second reservation is? (Shouts from crowd of "No.") I notice the name of Mrs. A. Eckart. Is Mrs. Eckart here? (Mrs. Eckart answered "Yes.") Mrs. Eckart, did you send me a telegram? (Mrs. Eckart replied: "Yes; one of the leaders of the woman's organization asked me if I would let them use my name.) What telegram was sent in your name? (Mrs. Eckart: "Well, I don't know.") That is all right, Mrs. Eckart; they simply imposed upon you, and I am bringing it up to show the tricks of some of the politicians in this campaign. Is there a Mrs. G. W. F. Shawner in this community? (Someone in the crowd said: "There are no negroes here, so I guess she isn't here.") I am going to read to you a telegram she sent: "In your speech at Chandler, please answer this question: Are you for or against the fourteenth Senate reservation, which says that the United States shall be entitled to cast a number of votes equal to that which any member of the league and itself governing dominion or parts of empires shall cast; providing that this nation shall not be bound by any such vote except where Congress shall have previously given its consent?" Do you suppose that Mrs. Shawner ever sent that telegram? I just submit that as an evidence of the tricks, the skull-duggery and the very unworthy methods that are being adopted. They won't fight this fight on the level, but I am going to continue to fight it on the level and I am going to give them a good licking."

Sir: Your prediction that rents will be the last thing to go down does credit to your caution, but it is not very scientific. Rents have had less justification for going up than anything else, since the landlord has not been able to prove increased costs to any great extent. The New York law requiring him to prove his case before Judge and jury recognizes his weakness on that point. Rents only got where they are upon the rising tide, and a falling tide will carry them down. You like to have us all right on everything, and I want to get you right on this.

WHY BORAH AND JOHNSON RULE.

From the New York World.

THE opinion of Messrs. Taft and Straus that the present controversy is in the nature of a pillow fight, and that so far as the league is concerned it really makes no difference whether Harding or Cox is to be President, rests upon several fallacies and self-deceptions. It assumes that Harding is not honest when he says over and over again that he will not go into the league. It implies that Hiram Johnson does not know what he is talking about when he boasts that "Harding has scrapped the league." It depends upon the theory that the votes of Democratic Senators, necessary to make up a two-thirds majority, can be had at any time for any dubious compromise, involving a new treaty or a separate treaty, that Republican desperation may suggest.

But more important than these considerations Messrs. Taft and Straus take no account of the strangle hold that the Republican treaty-wreckers of the Senate have acquired upon their party. There are not enough of these men to control the Senate as a Senate, but that they are able to bend every Republican member of that body to their imperious will has been demonstrated. How have they done it? How are they to do it in the future?

They have done it for more than a year past by threatening to bolt. In this way they mutilated and defeated the treaty. In this way they forced their party to adopt a two-faced platform at Chicago. In this way they have compelled Harding to repudiate his own record and grovel before them. They will do it in the future by threatening to oppose tariff and subsidy bills on which their party's heart is set. The price of their support of these measures will be the defeat of the League of Nations. They are in a position to command. They are members of a political organization that can be commanded.

When Messrs. Taft and Straus urge the people to bring this situation to pass they are delivering their party and their country anew into the hands of the Borahs, Johnsons and La Follettes.

AERIAL FOREST PATROLS.

From the Providence Journal.

PROGRESS in civil flying in this country has been so sluggish that it is a pleasure to record the excellent work now being done by the air patrols of the Federal Forestry Service. These patrols were established between May 14 and July 1 of this year. The first one operated out from Fresno, Cal. Others are now active at Mather Field, Red Bluff and March Field in the same State and at Medford and Eugene, Ore. Since the pioneer patrol began its flights last May, the aviators in the service have flown over nearly 6,300,000 square miles of forest lands and have discovered 464 fires, all of which were put out before they had done any serious damage. The amount of timber that the flyers have saved by their alertness cannot be computed in dollars. But unquestionably it represents a huge sum. It is, furthermore, reasonable to expect that, as the patrols are increased to take in all of the country's important forest reserves, the losses now suffered annually by fire will be reduced to a minimum. The expense of maintaining the patrols is a small item in comparison with these losses. Two men in an airplane can do the work of many forest rangers. With powerful glasses an observer can cover square miles of territory wholly beyond the range of vision of watchers in the highest towers. Best of all, he can detect a fire at its very beginning and can signal its exact location to the nearest control stations without loss of time. Thus he has a great advantage over a man in a tower or a ranger on foot, who often cannot see a blaze until the smoke attains a certain density, and who, even then, cannot quickly determine the precise spot.

UNCLE ETHAN RIPLEY by HAMLIN GARLAND...

THIRD INSTALLMENT.

MRS. RIPLEY was in a frightful mood about it, but she held herself in check for several days. At last she burst forth:

"Ethan Ripley, I can't stand that thing any longer, and I ain't goin' to, that's all! You've got to go and paint that thing out, or I will. I'm just about crazy with it."

"But mother, I promised"——

"I don't care what you promised, it's got to be painted out. I've got the nightmare now, seein' it. I'm goin' to send for a pail o' red paint, and I'm going to paint that out if it takes the last breath I've got to do it."

"I'll tend to it, mother, if you won't hurry me"——

"I can't stand it another day. It makes me boil every time I look out the winder."

Uncle Ethan hitched up his team and drove gloomily off to town, where he tried to find the agent. He lived in some other part of the county, however, and so the old man gave up and bought a pot of red paint, not daring to go back to his desperate wife without it.

"Goin' to paint y'r new barn?" inquired the merchant, with friendly interest.

Uncle Ethan turned with guilty sharpness; but the merchant's face was grave and kindly.

"Yes, I thought I'd touch it up a little—don't cost much."

"It pays—always," the merchant said, emphatically.

"Will it—stick jest as well put on evenings?" inquired Uncle Ethan, hesitatingly.

"Yes—won't make no difference. Why? Ain't goin' to have"——

"Wall— I kind o' thought I'd do it odd times night an' mornin'—kind o' odd times"——

He seemed oddly confused about it, and the merchant looked after him anxiously as he drove away.

After supper that night he went out to the barn, and Mrs. Ripley heard him sawing and hammering. Then the noise ceased and he came in and sat down in his usual place.

"What y' been makin'?" she inquired. Tewksbury had gone to bed. She sat darning a stocking.

"I jest thought I'd git the stagin' ready f'r paintin'," he said, evasively.

"Waal! I'll be glad when it's covered up." When she got ready for bed, he was still seated in his chair, and after she had dozed off two or three times she began to wonder why he didn't come. When the clock struck 10, and she realized that he had not stirred, she began to get impatient. "Come, are y' goin' to sit there all night?" There was no reply. She rose up in bed and looked about the room. The broad moon flooded it with light, so that she could see he was not asleep in his chair, as she supposed. There was something ominous in his disappearance.

"Ethan! Ethan Ripley, where are yeh?" There was no reply to her sharp call. She rose and distractedly looked about among the furniture, as if he might somehow be a cat and be hiding in a corner somewhere. Then she went upstairs, where the boy slept, her hard little heels making a curious tunking noise on the bare floor. The moon fell across the sleeping boy like a rode of silver. He was alone.

She began to be alarmed. Her eyes widened in fear. All sorts of vague horrors sprang unbidden into her brain. She still had the mist of sleep in her brain.

She hurried down the stairs and out into the fragrant night. The kaytdids were singing in infinite peace under the solemn splendor of the moon. The cattle sniffed and sighed, jangling their bells now and then, and the chickens in the coops stirred uneasily, as if overheated. The old woman stood there in her bare feet and long nightgown, horror-stricken. The ghastly story of a man who had hung himself in his barn, because his wife deserted him, came into her mind and stayed there with frightful persistency. Her throat filled chokingly.

All sorts of vague horrors sprang unbidden into her brain.

She felt a wild rush of loneliness. She had a sudden realization of how dear that gaunt old figure was, with its grizzled face and ready smile. Her breath came quick and quicker, and she was at the point of bursting into a wild cry to Tewksbury, when she heard a strange noise. It came from the barn, a creaking noise. She looked that way, and saw in the shadowed side a deeper shadow moving to and fro. A revulsion to astonishment and anger took place in her.

"Land o' Bungay! If he ain't paintin' that barn, like a perfect old idiot, in the night."

Uncle Ethan, working desperately, did not hear his wife approaching and was startled by her shrill voice

"Well, 'Ethan Ripley, whadd y' think you're doin' now?"

He made two or three slapping passes with the brush, and then snapped: "I'm a-paintin' this barn—whaddy ye s'pose? If ye had eyes y' wouldn't ask."

Well, you come right straight to bed. What d' you mean by actin' so?"

"You go back into the house an' let me be. I know what I'm a-doin'. You've pestered me about this sign just about enough." He dabbed his brush to and fro as he spoke. His gaunt figure towered above her in a shadow. His slapping brush had a vicious sound.

Neither spoke for some time. At length she said, more gently: "Ain't you comin' in?"

"No—not till I get a-ready. Yo go 'long an' tend to y'r own business. Don't stan' there an' ketch cold."

She moved off slowly toward the house. His voice subdued her. Working alone out there had rendered him savage; he was not to be pushed any farther. She knew by the tone of his voice that he must not be assaulted. She slipped on her shoes and shawl and came back where he was working, and took a seat on a saw-horse.

"I'm a-goin' to sit right here till you come in, Ethan Ripley," she said, in a firm voice, but gentler than usual.

"Waal, you'll set a good while," was his ungracious reply. But each felt a furtive tenderness for the other. He worked on in silence. The boards creaked heavily as he walked to and fro, and the slapping sound of the paint brush sounded loud in the sweet harmony of the night. The majestic moon swung slowly round the corner of the barn, and fell upon the old man's grizzled head and bent shoulders. The horses inside could be heard stamping the mosquitoes away, and chewing their hay in pleasant chorus.

The little figure seated on the saw-horse drew the shawl closer about her thin shoulders. Her eyes were in shadow, and her hands were wrapped in her shawl. At last she spoke, in a curious tone.

"Well, I don't know as you was so very much to blame. I didn't want that Bible myself—I held out I did, but I didn't."

Ethan worked on until the full meaning of this unprecedented surrender penetrated his head, and then he threw down his brush.

"Waal, I guess I'll let 'er go at that. I've covered up the most of it, anyhow. Guess we'd better go in."

The Maternal Feminine

"Love Is Tender From 16 to 20—Woman Lives Most Intensely From 25 to 40."
—Lady Muir MacKenzie.

"Between 17 and 35 Most Women Find Life Unendurable."
—Dr. Josiah Oldfield

By MARGUERITE MOOERS MARSHALL.

WHAT are woman's happiest years?

"The years after ——" is the surprising answer of Dr. Josiah Oldfield of London, a well-known British physician. In addressing the Medico-Legal Society he observed that it is between 17 and 35 that women most frequently find life unendurable and so try, by suicide, to blot it out altogether. Men, on the contrary, commit suicide more readily after 35, but women who have reached that period seem to find existence happier."

Lady Muir Mackenzie in commenting on these conclusions points out that although spring is a delightful period to watch it is an anxious time for spring growths in danger of frosts, cold winds or premature drouths.

"The very young," she says truly enough, "suffer because they hope too vividly and fear unnecessarily. The young girl dreams of a Prince Charming in shining armour and is surprised to find herself plighted to a mere nice young man in a serge suit."

As for those figures on female suicides, the explanation is simple enough. A woman usually kills herself on account of some man, and, at 35 or over, she has learned that no man is worth it! Juliet, you know, is supposed to have been only 14.

A woman may live through at least four seasons of happiness, her spring, summer, autumn and winter, and it is as absurd arbitrarily to pick out one season and assert that to be the happiest for all women as to argue that every human being prefers roses to violets, the pink and pearl of spring to the scarlet and gold of autumn, the lush warmth of summer to the glittering sparkle of winter.

The happiest years of every woman depend on the sort of "hearts' weather" she most enjoys. Perhaps she is a dreamer, a romanticist. Then in her first youth—say from 16 to 20—she is happier than she ever will be again, for no illusions have been blighted, the first freshness of life is unspoiled and love itself seems as tender, sweet and fragrant a thing as a white violet of spring.

But perhaps it is "the roses and raptures of passion" rather than "the lilies and languors of love" to which a woman's heart turns. Then she will look back on youthful romance as a pale and thin-blooded affair, and the summer of womanhood—from 25 to 35, perhaps even to 40—will be the time when she lives most completely and intensely. It is true, as Browning wrote, that "hearts, after leaps, ache," but some of us would rather endure the pain of loving greatly, the reaction from ardors, than a phlegmatic peace, a perpetual May day of the heart.

The autumn of life is usually best appreciated by the woman who is interested in things of the mind, who has worked for years to attain success in her chosen art or profession, and who, after 40, feels that her endeavors have borne fruit, that her harvest is worth gathering. For her, too, may come a brief but splendid autumn of love, an upflaring of emotion, color and warmth the more dramatic for its subtle hint that the beauty of fire is followed by the beauty of ashes.

Though a girl would be slow to admit it, nevertheless a woman's virtue is not infrequently her happiest season, especially now that she is no longer laid on the shelf or pushed into the chimney corner after turning her threescore years. She can share in the lives and thoughts of the young, and she is too wise to share in their worries, their habit of taking life tragically. With serenity as her shield and humor as her sword, she can look even old Father Time in the face and not tremble.

But granted an individual preference for one of the seasons of the heart, there is no reason why a woman should find all the other seasons unhappy years. The four should be taken with at least as much philosophy as we apply to the weather man's four. And if we happen to prefer summer, for example, we still do not go about mourning and moaning these early fall days.

The unhappiest years of a woman's life are certainly those of which she is afraid. And her happy years—if not her happiest—are all those which she lives with courage, with zest and with the friendly Comic Spirit as a familiar.

DELMONICO BEANS AND SPAGHETTI

FRY six thin slices of bacon until crisp; remove from the fire and keep hot. Into the fat put six large tomatoes peeled and cut in small pieces, one and one-half teaspoonfuls of salt, one teaspoonful of sugar, one-fourth teaspoonful of black pepper, a minced green pepper, a small onion, shredded, and two cloves. Simmer, stirring, until cooked and thick like a sauce. Then add a pint of cooked horticultural or lima beans and three cupfuls of cooked spaghetti, both of which have been cooked in salted water. Let all get very hot, your on a deep platter, garnish with the bacon and parsley, and serve.

CLAM CHOWDER

ADD a cupful of cold water to a solid quart of clams. Pick over carefully, rinsing in the water and removing bits of shell. Strain the water and clam liquor through two folds of cheesecloth. Heat to the boiling point and in it scald the clams. Skim out the clams and keep them hot. Fry out the fat from a thin slice of salt pork, cut in bits, and in it cook a small onion cut in thin slices, without browning the onion. Add one-third cupful flour. Cook until frothy, then gradually add the clam liquor and when the mixture boils, strain it over one pint of sliced potatoes, parboiled five minutes and blanched by rinsing in cold water. Add a teaspoonful of salt and half a teaspoonful pepper. When potatoes are tender, add three cupfuls scalded milk, the clams and additional seasoning if needed.

Is the Cultivation of Beauty Worth While?

By Dr. Charlotte C. West.

BEAUTY is a subject that has occupied the attention of great men of all ages—thus Aristotle used to say that personal beauty is a better introduction than any letter; some say it was Diogenes who gave this description of it, while Aristotle called beauty, the "Gift of God."

That was thousands of years ago in a civilization which differed in every particular from ours, yet this opinion, credited to the ancient Greek philosopher, fits into the needs of the modern woman as though it had been said today, because woman is taken more seriously than she has been at any time in history.

She has awakened to the fact that mental endowments, unless of an extraordinary character, are not in themselves sufficient to break down the barriers of opposition to her entrance into world affairs. But when associated with personal beauty, a potent charm is exercised before which all argument fails, for what man can retain his callous attitude when confronted with the beautiful in womanhood as represented by Luis Mora's triumphant figure, or the exquisite painting "Motherhood," donated to the "cause" by the distinguished artist, John W. Alexander?

A well known dramatic producer expresses himself very clearly upon the value of beauty. This is what he says:

"A man can have any kind of a face and succeed, but a woman must have a perfect face, or at least, one that is not scarred or maimed. As far as the value of beauty is concerned, while it is a valuable asset for an actress, I would not call it altogether essential to her success, but I do believe that woman's business is to be beautiful, and by this I do not mean on the stage alone, but everywhere. Physical beauty goes a long way toward the success of any woman. On the stage, of course, ability must be coupled with beauty to make her success complete. That is why I insist that it is such a valuable adjunct."

Heretofore we have considered the cultivation of beauty worth while in our flowers and plants, in our horses and dogs, in our fruits and vegetables and in our livestock. The ancient Greeks thought it worth while in their men and women, and we are beginning to think so, too. The art of cultivating human beauty passed out with ancient Greece, but has lately received a world-wide impetus. We cannot say just where and how it started, but we can be certain that it has its roots in many sources, all of which are tending to one end, i. e. the physical improvement of the race.

We of today are not the children of a pure race but of a commingling of many, and consequently we have developed a tremendous variety of flowers, as it were, each of which makes its appeal. It must not be forgotten that while beauty of the body is a valuable asset, its charms, like that of a beautiful picture, are enhanced when becomingly framed.

In Lady Holland's "Memoirs" she quotes Sidney Smith to this effect: "Never teach false modesty. How exquisitely absurd to tell girls that beauty is of no value, dress is of no use; her whole prospects and happiness in life may depend upon a new gown or a becoming bonnet.

I have always been of the same opinion—beauty is of value, beauty of face, form of manner, speech—and every one must accede to this. Few are beautiful in every particular, but we all possess some beauty points. Again, no girl is so poorly endowed by nature but that she can improve herself—vastly if she only knows how.

IS THIS YOUR TYPE?

By MARIE LA ROQUE

BEAUTY SPOTS.

BALZAC'S famous Henriette, the Countess of Mortsauf in "The Lily of the Valley," was possessed of a mole, and a very distracting mole it proved to be. When Felix, the "I" of the book, first sees the Countess, he is a lonely lad at a ball, and apparently it is with the Countess' very lovely shoulders that he first falls in love. He is gazing at those shoulders, and he tells us, "my eye rent the stuff of her dress, and I saw a mole that marked the top of the pretty line between her sfoulders, a speck lying on milk."

One is left in no doubt of the fact that Balzac, for one, regarded a mole here and there as anything but a blemish. To him the "speck on milk" was decidedly an attribute of beauty. And he was not original in this notion, for there is a persistent feeling among the French that even on the face a mole is a "beauty spot." Moles, in fact, have been called a "sign of beauty." Beautiful women, so they say, are more likely to have them than plain women. This may be because the mole occurs usually in company with pronounced pigmentation. The woman with moles is pretty sure to have richly colored hair and eyes, and a richer tone in complexion than the moleless woman.

Anne Boleyn, Who Had Moles.

Why else was it that hundreds of years ago French women began using patches of black court plaster on their faces and shoulders than through tribute to these court beauties who, having been endowed by nature with beauty spots, had no need of black patches? True, the black patch has the effect of making the skin appear whiter and more dazzling in contrast, but the natural beauty spot has the same effect.

Santa Teresa's three moles have come down in history and, so far from being looked upon as a blemish on her charming face, they were considered a contribution to her beauty. For her contemporaries were never so preoccupied in telling of this saint's great piety and spirituality as to fail to tell us that she was a remarkably beautiful woman. One biographer leaves little to the imagination as far as those moles were concerned and says that "she had three moles on her left cheek which became her much—one below the bridge of her nose, another between her nose and mouth and a third below her mouth."

Anne Boleyn was another celebrated woman whose beauty was accentuated by moles. She was, you may or may not remember, the second of the consorts of that many-wived, Bluebeard monarch of England, Henry VIII. A young lady of the court was she who, possessing the buxom type of beauty admired so much by the King, coquetted with him during the wane of Queen Catherine's charms. Sans natural modesty she was as reticent as she was alluring, and it was because of her charms quite as much as through the King's desire to have a male heir that he sought to divorce Catherine. Anne played her cards well; achieved the ousting of Catherine, was married and wore the coveted consort crown. But the game couldn't have been worth the candle, for she paid the price on the block.

Wyatt, a poet and artist of the court, says in enumerating her charms: "Likewise there were said to be upon certain parts of her body small moles, incident to the clearest complexions." Certain it is that Anne Boleyn had a lovely complexion and the courtiers of the time referred to her as "fresh and young." Whether or not her daughter, that truly great monarch Elizabeth, inherited any of her mother's beauty spots history does not tell. Madame Arnoux in Gustave Flaubert's "Sentimental Education" is another bemoled beauty of literature, and it is especially interesting because from the novelist's point of view she is of the same type as Balzac's Henriette—the married woman who because of her devotion to her children no less than because of her own innate virtue holds in abeyance the prolonged devotion of a young bachelor. The bachelor in this case is Frederick Moreau and Flaubert tells us that at the dinners he attended as the guest of the charming lady's husband Frederick he "scarcely uttered a word; he kept gazing at her. She had a little mole close to her temple." Apparently it was quite the fad for love-struck young bachelors of the last century in France to sit and gaze at distracting moles of their beloved.

FASHION'S FANCIES

The new handbags bear almost prohibitive price tags. However, they are beautiful and we must have them, so what matters the price? The chiffon velvet bag seems to be the favorite in fabric bags and one considers the exquisitely carved handles or those of metal set with jewels and the elaborate beaded ones as it is no wonder the price is high. Black seems to be the most in demand, but this is probably due to the fact that black costumes are fashionable this season.

Since sashes are required to brighten up the somber dress tones that fashion now decrees the shops are displaying a bewildering assortment of handsome ribbons. Sashes are made up of very wide and very gorgeous ribbon. These are loosely twisted about the hips—which is the present fashionable waistline—and tied at the left side in large loops and flowing ends.

Women artists models in Japan are paid $26 to $30 per month.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

By THORNTON W. BURGESS.

Buster's Temper Grows Worse.

BUSTER BEAR knows. Losing control of his temper has made him no end of trouble. And it has made a lot of trouble for other people as well. A bad temper out of control is almost sure to do this.

As Buster Bear, sore at heart because he had lost that honey, and sore of body from the bumps he had received and the stings from the Bees, hurried toward the pond of Paddy the Beaver he was fast working himself into a blind rage. He had lost control of his temper. Usually Buster is one of the best natured people in all the Green Forest, but when he has lost control of his temper he is one of the ugliest. It was well for Farmer Brown's boy that he wasn't where he would meet Buster Bear just then. Buster was too thoroughly angry to be afraid of anybody or anything.

Just before he reached the pond he came to a tree from one of the lower branches of which hung a great pear-shaped, gray globe. Buster knew what it was. Of course. It was the home of Bald-face the Hornet. At any other time Buster would have turned aside and passed it at a respectful distance. But Buster was in a bad temper, a very bad temper, and the sight of that gray paper home made him angrier than ever, especially as two or three Hornets came flying about his head in a threatening way. One of them stung him on his already sore nose.

Buster stood up and, with one of his great paws, smashed that gray paper house, all on account of that bad temper. Instantly a cloud of fighting-mad Hornets surrounded him and the stings of the Bees were as nothing to the stings he now received. With a roar Buster plunged ahead for that pond, and, as before, bumped into trees and stumbled over logs.

Fortunately that pond was not far away. When he reached it Buster didn't stop. He plunged right in, making the water fly in every direction. Out into deep water he plunged and swam as fast as ever he could to get to the middle of Paddy's pond. He swam very low so that only the upper part of his head was above water, and over this he continually splashed water. Even then he received a few more stings before those angry Hornets gave up.

Now, every one of these Hornets was mad clear through. They darted this way and that way in all directions looking for anyone on whom to vent their anger now that Buster Bear had escaped them. Some of them found Paddy the Beaver sitting on his dam at the lower end of the pond wondering what under the sun was the matter with Buster Bear. At the touch of the sharp little lances of those Hornets, he knew, and frantically dived into the water.

Some found Lightfoot the Deer lying behind a pile of brush and sent him crashing away through the Green Forest. One found Bobby Coon washing a root he had dug up and straightaway Bobby lost his appetite and started to get away from there as fast as his legs could take him. Chatterer, the Red Squirrel, sitting in a pine tree, where he could see all that was going on, snickered once and then a sharp pain in one ear made him jump so suddenly that he missed the next branch and fell to the ground with a thump that for just a second knocked the breath out of him.

Yes, indeed, Buster Bear's bad temper had made a lot of trouble not only for himself but for others. That is often the way with a bad temper.

Home Suggestions

FISH will not break apart in frying if the slices are put into the hot fat with the skin side uppermost and allowed to brown well before turning.

If you are late in getting the string or lima beans on the stove add a pinch of baking soda. They will cook in half the time. It is a good idea to add the soda to these vegetables anyway as it makes them more tender and digestible.

You can clean the light window shades beautifully if you gently rub them with a soft cloth dipped into a solution of three tablespoonfuls of benzine and one pint hot water. Dry by wiping with a soft towel.

Save the meat skewers and use them for cleaning out the corners and crevices of the refrigerator. Particles of food are apt to lodge in corners, but a skewer covered with a wet cloth will readily dislodge them.

If you put an ordinary rubber ring such as is used on preserve jars under the plate on the ice there will be no danger of its falling off.

You need not iron handkerchiefs if after washing them you spread them out on the sides of the bathtub.

MORE TRUTH THAN POETRY

By James J. Montague.

THEN AND NOW.

When Cheops ruled with iron hand,
  Defense was rife and plagues were plenty,
And doctors in as much demand
  As they are now in 1920.
The people were benighted still;
  They had not devised papyrus,
And when a patient ran a bill
  For calomel or vaccine virus,
The doctor figured up the cost
  Of bromides, sedatives and tonics,
And these he carefully embossed
  Upon a chunky block of onyx.

If patients paid, they got the bills
  Receipted with an iron hammer,
But if they still complained of ills
  Or put up any undue clamor,
Complaining that they'd never seen
  Such thieving charges for specifics,
The doctor crowned them on the bean
  With seven-pound hieroglyphics.
But few disputed with the Doc,
  However costly his prescriptions,
For such was the effect of shock
  Upon the early day Egyptians.

Today a doctor does not need
  So rudely to impress a person
That if his bill they do not heed
  They presently will get a worse 'un.
They drop a missive in the mail,
  Next day the postman brings it to you,
You read it, turn a trifle pale
  And thrills of horror hurry through you.
For if you're not o'erstocked with pelf
  You need no rock your soul to harry,
For you will find the bill itself
  Is all the shock that's necessary.

GAS IS STILL GOING UP.

Subject to Change.

Einstein, we are told, has bowled over Galileo, Newton and a host of others with his new theory. If this is so, it puts a lot of our professors in the back-number class. We are reminded, somehow, of what ex-Gov. Robinson remarked to a law student he was examining. Having failed in many questions of law, the student suggested that he be tried on the statutes.

"My dear young man," said Mr. Robinson pleasantly, "I do not doubt that you are up on the statutes, but granted that you have the utmost familiarity with them, what is to prevent the Legislature from repealing all you know?"—Boston Transcript.

"How are you getting on, Erickson?"

"Rotten! I never have peace with my wife."

"Why not?"

"She's always wanting money, money, money!"

"What does she do with so much money?"

"I don't know! I never give her any!"

New Janes for Old.

You can say what you like of the old?
  girl at home.
But give me a new one each week;
I'm wise in the ways of the wild,
  wicked world,
And words full of wisdom I speak.

If you rush a strange girl she will never get wise
To the fact that your dress suit is hired,
But old ones will note how much varies the size
Of the tail-coat in which you're attired.

If you have a new Jane you are never afraid
That your chatter is growing too
  stale;
You can hand her the line that a week ago made
You seem bright to another fair frail.

So, list to the wise words of men who have seen
And know the things whereof they speak;
Get a girl—rush her hard while you're at it—but then,
Get another one after a week.
